BOTH PARTIES URGE A HEAVY REPEAL VOTE

Push Battle Over Bench Election.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A heavy vote for repeal of prohibition next Monday was the objective emphasized last night in meetings of workers of both Democratic and Republican organizations held throughout Cook county. While the campaign for the rival judicial tickets went on apace, with the Republicans and Democrats accusing each other of trying to drag the bench into politics, the precinct battlers in both parties were besought to go into the highways and byways and keep informing the voters that Monday brings them the opportunity sought for years, to vote directly on repeal of the 18th amendment.

Across the state border there were similar activities in Indiana, which follows Illinois the next day in voting on the election of repeal delegates. Illinois is the ninth state to vote and Indiana the tenth.

Women Active in Drive.

Meanwhile in opening the final drive for repeal delegates women busied themselves yesterday in distributing handbills throughout the state under the direction of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. They invaded the downtown business section and had booths in hotel lobbies, railroad stations, and at other spots where people congregate, while in the outlying districts similar activities were carried on.

Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, co-chairmen of the women's organization, reported that in nearly every county in the state yesterday was celebrated as "Ratification day" by women who actively campaigned for a repeal vote. The handbills carried the caption "How to Vote Wet" and showed the easy and sure way of marking a cross in the left hand circle only on the delegate ballot.

A Call for Repeal Vote.

To every precinct captain the Democrats gave stacks of their new pamphlet for distribution. It is in three colors—red, white, and blue—and the front leaf carries the legend: "Support the President. Repeal the 18th amendment. Elect judicial leaders. Vote Democratic."

Similarly the Republicans sent out stacks of their booklet. It carried the lines, "Vote for Repeal. Smash Receivership Racket. No Receivership Judge on Republican Ticket. Vote the Republican Ticket Straight."

Viewing the activities, the Democratic organization chiefs estimated that on Monday Cook county will have a total vote of between 700,000 and a full million. In ordinary judicial elections 350,000 is the usual vote.

Both political parties argue that their judicial tickets will be the beneficiaries of the large vote. In the campaigning last night the Republican managers were accused of violating the principle of nonpartisanship in judicial elections.

Judge Trude Attacks G. O. P.

As spokesman for the eight sitting Republican Circuit judges who chose to run under the Democratic circle on the Democratic fusion ticket Judge Daniel P. Trude, Republican Circuit judge, who is running for reelection, criticized the Republican management last night. In an address at 343 East 55th street Judge Trude said:

"The Republican ticket was made up on the principle that adherence to some political party is indispensable for qualification for judicial office. No sitting judge who was affiliated with the Democratic party was deemed qualified for a place on that ticket, no matter how long his service and how unimpeachable his integrity.

"Other Candidates Sought."

"Acting on this principle, the Republican convention refused an indorsement to every sitting judge who was in any way affiliated with the Democratic party. So consistently did the Republican committee adhere to this principle that when six sitting judges, of which I was one, refused to indorse this partisan principle and elected to take a place offered them on the Democratic ballot beside sitting Democratic judges, other candidates were sought to fill those places on the Republican ticket.

"The Republican committee now stands in the position of seeking to defeat the Republican judges who refused to accept this partisan principle, although it had thought their work, worth, and qualifications sufficient to place them on the Republican ticket.

"It is interesting to note that only a few days before they took this ultra

SENATE JOLTS ECONOMY PLANS OF PRESIDENT

Limits Reduction of Bonus to Vets.

The senate finance committee last night developed stiff opposition to the Roosevelt industry control and public works bill, knocking out four important features. A Democratic senator, Bennett Clark of Missouri, led the revolt against President Roosevelt's program. Page 10.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—The senate today delivered a serious upset to the Roosevelt economy program by voting a 25 per cent limitation on reductions in compensation payments to war veterans.

The action had the effect of adding 170 million dollars to the independent offices appropriation bill, which was passed shortly afterward by a voice vote.

This addition, with two other amendments adding a million apiece to the total fund for veterans, brought the total required under the bill to $714,740,000 instead of the $543,740,000 it appropriated when it started through the senate several days ago.

The increases made necessary by the 25 per cent reduction limit were not voted into the measure by the senate today, but will, if the conference committee retains the amendment, have to be met by a deficiency appropriation later on.

The measure now proceeds to conference, where house managers are expected to accept the 172 million dollar addition.

First Major Defeat.

The vote on the 25 per cent reduction in veterans' payments, proposed in an amendment by Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], found President Roosevelt's own personal leaders casting affirmative ballots, and marked the administration's first major defeat in congress.

But the defeat, it was pointed out, might have been much more severe had not Vice President Garner voted to break a 42 to 42 tie and assure adoption of the 25 per cent restriction instead of a more drastic 15 per cent limit proposed by Senator Park Trammel [Dem., Fla.].

The latter plan would have cost the treasury an estimated 190 million dollars a year. Most of the senators opposing the 25 per cent limit voted "no" in an effort to secure subsequent adoption of the 15 per cent restriction.

Ties String to Economy.

Senator Connally's amendment ties a string to the power to slash veterans' benefits which was conferred upon President Roosevelt in the economy bill. It provides that the compensation of world war veterans with service connected disabilities may not be reduced more than 25 per cent; that the pensions of Spanish and civil war veterans and pensions paid to widows and dependents of world war soldiers killed in action shall not be reduced more than 25 per cent.

It was Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], who crystallized sentiment regarding veterans' reductions in a vigorous speech just before the vote.

"Every one was in agreement that we must effect economies," he said, "and early this session we passed the economy bill, giving the President power to reduce the payments to veterans. But it has been apparent even to children that grave injustices have been done. The question now is whether we, charged with legislating and presented with the opportunity of correcting those injustices, are to act or wait for the administration to act.

"Rampant at Injustice."

"We are here confronted with the duty of correcting them and I find only one course open. The feeling is so strong in congress that if this thing goes on the whole economy act will be destroyed. The President and the budget director apparently are unable to sense that congress is rampant with the feeling that it has a duty before adjournment to correct these injustices."

Also adopted today was an amendment by Senator William H. Dieterich [Dem., Ill.] providing $1,000,000 for paying the expenses of neuro-psychiatric veteran cases in state hospitals. Another amendment by Senator Hugh Black [Dem., Ala.], adopted yesterday, provided another $1,000,000 for hospitalization of veterans with non-service connected disabilities.

Before the vote in the senate word had come out of the White House that the President was still determined to

EX-SENATOR REED IS SLIGHTLY INJURED AS AIR LINER CRASHES

Tulsa, Okla., June 2.—(AP)—James A. Reed, former United States senator, and three other persons escaped serious injury in an airplane crash from an altitude of 30 feet today.

Reed suffered a cut on the forehead and bruises about the body. Thorough examination showed no other injuries.

The others hurt were W. E. Gregory of Kansas City, who had cuts on the head, and R. S. Lee, the pilot, whose face and hands were cut. Both were injured by broken window glass.

J. R. Grisham, 20, of Dallas, the fourth person in the ship, was uninjured.

The ship, a transport plane [Bowen Airlines], was taking off for Dallas when the motor quit. The ship was still over the runway. Lee said he saw a hangar not far in front of him and knew the ship would strike it unless he turned.

As he maneuvered to land downwind, the ship lost so much forward speed he could not control it and it fell in the first stages of a spin, crumpling a wing and the undercarriage.

Reed, who was on his way to San Antonio, will leave the hospital tomorrow.

BLIND BEGGAR'S ASSISTANT RUINED BY PROSPERITY

Albert Capek, 65 years old, 1656 South Throop street, is blind. Anton Kripner, 53 years old, of the same address, is out of a job. Several months ago they pooled their misfortunes and changed them into something like prosperity.

Together they went out on the streets to beg. Pennies and dimes and nickels were put in the blind man's cup. Kripner led him around and for his services was rewarded with a place to sleep, his food and—when business was extra good—with an occasional pint of moonshine.

All went well until Memorial day, when Kripner decided that he should have a raise from his employer. It was refused. So he beat the blind man, tied him to a chair and thrust a knife against his chest, threatening to cut his heart out. Capek screamed for help and a passing policeman responded. The story was told yesterday before Judge McIntyre, who fined Kripner $100.

"I wish I hadn't done it," moaned the blind man's assistant. "We used to make $10 a day and eat big, thick steaks. But Albert is a little stingy with the help."

7 Are Killed in Long Beach Oil Explosion

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Long Beach, Cal., June 2.—[Special.]—From seven to twenty persons were killed, twenty or more suffered injuries by mangling and burns, and six blocks of the residential area in Signal Hill and Northeast Long Beach were demolished today by an explosion in the Signal Hill oil field. Fire and further explosions followed the original blast.

Coming on the heels of the severe earthquake of last March 10, the explosion threw the city into a panic. Windows were broken and property damage was reported in an area exceeding one-quarter of the city. Loss could not be accurately estimated this evening, but it may reach a million.

Woman, Daughter Killed.

Among the identified dead are Mrs. Lottie Carlyn, Long Beach, and her daughter, Marilyn, 8, and five oil workers.

The first explosion, according to generally agreed reports, took place at 1:59 p. m. and seemed to come from the Richfield refinery known as Plant No. 9, at 27th and Lime streets. Several other explosions followed rapidly.

In half an hour two acres closely studded with oil buildings were burning in such a solid sheet of flame that human proximity was impossible. Trickles of crude oil swelled to a stream and licked down the side of the hill, lapped over the concrete highways, and puddled in the low places.

Hospital Is Blown Up.

One of the buildings which was blown up in the first blast was the Signal Hill hospital. Fortunately, no patients were in the building. No one was killed there.

Every piece of fire apparatus, every ambulance, physician, and policeman in Long Beach was rushed to the stricken area and aid quickly began to pour in from Los Angeles and the surrounding localities. Twenty blocks of the city were roped off against ingress.

The flames, fanned by a stiff breeze, spread rapidly and, fed by oil, burned fiercely for hours. It was only after a day of valiant battling that the fire was brought under control.

Survivors said that three men had died in a heroic but futile sacrifice when they raced for a machinery room in the Richfield refinery to cut off the gasoline valves and avert the spread of flames to the main reservoir. They were too late and were blown up in the blast they had tried to avert.

First witnesses described the terrific scene as a succession of three or four blasts rocked the area and huge timbers and fragments of metal went sailing through the air. Houses trembled and fell into heaps of ruin, with flames licking up through the debris.

Several of the huge oil derricks, 70, 80 and 100 feet in height, rocked and slowly toppled against surrounding oil towers. Sides of stores and homes caved in. Policemen who entered the area searching for victims reported that the scene of sudden chaos in some places proved more tragic than the recent earthquake.

Automobiles Wrecked.

Force of the explosions was so terrific that automobiles which were passing on the Long Beach boulevard highway, which is a 100 foot concrete ribbon traversing the middle of the oil derrick reservation, were blown and tilted into wreckage off the highway traffic lanes.

Force of the blast was felt in Los Angeles, thirty miles distant. Wilmington, Compton, Watts, Huntington Park, Torrance, South Gate and the Seal Beach and Belmont harbor areas all felt the explosion.

Ten miles from the scene, at Maywood, the effects of the explosion were so strong that an emergency earthquake relief call was sounded, and all school children were marched out of the city school.

NEW YORK TO PLACE TAX ON AUTOS WHICH USE CITY'S BRIDGES

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—All motor vehicles, except taxicabs, using city bridges will be taxed by the city in an amount equal to the tax imposed by the state, and a 5 cent tax will be imposed on all taxicab rides, according to an agreement reached today by the board of estimate in a secret session called to establish new sources of city revenue.

Owners of motor vehicles will be given the option of obtaining a city license annually or paying tolls of 25 cents on the four East river bridges and 10 cent tolls on the Harlem river bridges. In effect, the city levy will double the cost of registering an automobile.

The board also decided to increase the fees now charged by the building departments in the five boroughs.

Robot Drives Hawks' Plane Most of Way

BULLETIN.

New York, June 3 (Saturday.)—(AP)—James Joseph Mattern, aviation's jack-of-all work, streaked away from Floyd Bennett field at 4:20 a. m., Chicago daylight time, today on a single handed flight around the globe.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Establishing a new record for a nonstop flight across the United States, Capt. Frank Hawks landed at Floyd Bennett field at 11:19 o'clock tonight, 13 hours 26 minutes and 15 seconds after leaving the municipal airport in Los Angeles. Hawks had cut four hours and 10 minutes from the previous nonstop record, established by himself four years ago.

The time record for a flight across the continent with stops en route made by a United States army racing plane is 10 hours and 19 minutes.

Pilot Looks Country Over.

With a robot doing most of the piloting, Hawks, a veteran of many flights across the continent, said when he landed here that he traveled virtually as a passenger most of the time "and had my first chance to look the country over and enjoy the scenery."

Two thousand persons cheered the flyer as he alighted from his all metal low wing Northrop monoplane. His wife, who had been waiting, was the first to spot his plane with its green running lights as it flew over New York bay.

Hawks was over the field here 13 hours and 24 minutes after he left Los Angeles. He flew at an altitude of 15,000 feet most of the 2,440 mile flight across the continent.

Climbs to 11,000 Feet.

The robot had been set to take the plane to that altitude. During the first 40 miles after leaving Los Angeles the plane climbed to 11,000 feet, high enough to take its "passenger" over the San Bernardino mountains.

During the eastern part of the flight Hawks encountered head winds that slowed down the plane, which has a cruising speed of 220 miles per hour. About 9 p. m. when darkness overtook him while he was near Butler, Pa., Hawks disconnected the robot and took over the controls.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon, Hawks related, he did not know what part of the country he was flying over, but he did not worry, with the robot in charge. About 2 hours later he sighted Kansas City.

The coffee which Hawks put aboard in Los Angeles in the morning was still hot when he landed.

The robot is a mechanical device of the Sperry gyroscope type. With the controls set, the course indicated and the height and speed set, the robot actually operates the plane. Hawks said he could have taken several hours' sleep, but instead he kept awake, although all the work he had to do was check the course occasionally.

HINT INQUIRY ON TAX PAYMENTS OF MORGAN AIDS

Whitney Tells About Market Pool.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—Signs of an inquiry into the Morgan partners' income tax returns appeared today as the senate's Pecora committee adjourned for the week-end in the midst of another battle of lawyers.

The individual income tax returns of some of the Morgan partners are due for an airing, it was hinted by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, as he and John W. Davis, Morgan attorney, fought heatedly over the questioning of Thomas S. Lamont, young partner of the firm.

The committee counsel argued vehemently for his right to ask young Lamont, son of Partner Thomas W. Lamont, concerning the sale of an assorted set of stocks on Dec. 30, 1930. The Morgan attorney argued energetically that the witness had been given no notice of such a question and that inquiry into the personal affairs of the individual partners, in any case, was no business of the committee.

Cannot Recall Transaction.

Mr. Lamont settled the debate for the time being by saying that he could not recall the transaction. But Mr. Lamont's failure to remember meant only a postponement.

At Mr. Davis' request the committee, when it meets next Monday, will convene in executive session, there to thrash out the propriety of going into the partners' individual affairs. Mr. Pecora would neither confirm nor deny that his line of questioning was leading up to an examination of the tax returns of young Lamont and other partners.

Up to the time of the concluding explosion the hearing had jogged on more or less calmly, with George Whitney, one of the Morgan partners, again on the stand. He related the circumstances of the 25 million dollar bank pool formed by Morgan & Co. and others to steady the downward slide of the market in the last days of October and the first days of November, 1929.

Profit Over a Million.

His testimony showed that, despite the risk of a chaotic and falling market, Morgan & Co. and the other participants in the pool were able to liquidate their purchases in February and March of 1930 and come out with a gross profit of $1,067,355 on the $137,752,705 which they had actually invested.

Mr. Pecora sought to show also that Morgan & Co. and the others had gone into the enterprise not to perform a public benefaction so much as to bolster up the market for stocks in their own portfolios, and to help out corporations with which they had had valuable financial connections.

This interpretation Mr. Whitney repeatedly denied.

"The sole object was to try to restore order out of chaos," he insisted. "It was purely a rescue party."

Bought as "Key Stocks."

The stocks which were bought, he explained, were bought because they were "key stocks," and he declared it was only natural that twenty-five of the country's leading corporations should have had financial relations with seven of the country's leading banking houses. Mr. Lamont followed Mr. Whitney on the stand. He explained that he had joined the Morgan firm Dec. 31, 1928.

Mr. Pecora demanded to know what Mr. Lamont could tell about the sale on Dec. 30, 1930, of 1,500 shares of Continental Oil, 200 shares of Dureaum Products, 300 shares of Half Electric Heating, 237 shares of E. R. Mallory & Co., 1,000 shares of Shamrock Oil and Gas, 500 shares of State Street Investment company, 350 shares of Investment corporation of Philadelphia, and 1,000 shares of Simms Petroleum.

"One moment, Mr. Lamont," put in Mr. Davis, rising and placing a monitory hand upon the witness' shoulder. Then he turned to Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.].

Says It's Not Fair Play.

"I do not follow this at all," Mr. Davis complained. "We have been for sixty-odd days engaged in giving information about the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. We have been given no notice of any inquiry into any transaction of any individual, no opportunity to assemble any facts. I submit it is not fair play.

"Nor am I able easily to understand how the individual transactions of any individual partner, Mr. T. S. Lamont or any other, enter into the scope of the inquiry that the commit-

Mr. Pecora's underlip stuck out stubbornly as he replied:

"I don't know of any requirement that notice should be given to any witness who is to be examined before this committee, or before any senate investigating committee, for that matter, concerning any of the matters with respect to which it is desired to examine the witness."

Mr. Davis' prominent chin became even more prominent.

Continues His Fight.

"I venture to say," he flared, "that there is not a man in this room who could be asked about his individual transactions of any sort and give an accurate, correct, responsive, satisfactory reply unless he had been notified and had an opportunity to advise himself.

"And I am prepared to assert to the committee that if it is going into the individual transactions of 20 odd men we will be here until the snow flies."

"No, we won't," retorted Mr. Pecora.

"I insist that it is not fair play," proclaimed Mr. Davis.

"And that we have done," he declared, "with a degree of thoroughness, of candor, of fullness, which I submit no persons appearing before a congressional committee or a court have ever exceeded. Now we insist that the same sort of fair play shall run the whole way down the line here."

Pecora Makes Objection.

"I do not think you are called upon," barked Mr. Pecora, "to represent this witness before this committee with the standing of counsel that usually is accorded in a court proceeding, to a litigant."

"I am perfectly within my rights, which I know quite as well as you know," Mr. Davis came back, "and I am submitting that this is not an orderly proceeding before this committee."

Chairman Fletcher sat in the midst of the cross fire. Finally he broke in, saying that he could see no harm in the witness stating whether or not he could answer the question.

"If the witness wants to inform himself with regard to the subject of the question," agreed Mr. Pecora, "I have no objection to his being given a reasonable opportunity to do it."

"I have no recollection of that transaction," submitted Mr. Lamont.

Told to Get Information.

He was excused from the stand with instructions to seek the required information. And similar instructions were given William Ewing, another Morgan partner.

J. P. Morgan himself will not be required to resume the stand, Mr. Pecora announced. But Mr. Morgan announced that he would be on hand next Monday to see the hearing through. Because they took pictures yesterday of a circus midget whom a press agent plumped into Mr. Morgan's lap, photographers were barred from the room today. Mr. Morgan deplored the prohibition. When he came to Washington, he said, he had made up his mind to be ready for anything. At the close of the day's session the photographers were readmitted.

In addition to T. S. Lamont, Mr. Ewing and Mr. Whitney, Partners Arthur Anderson and Harold Stanley will be put on the stand, Mr. Pecora said.

Van Sweringens Called.

The Van Sweringen brothers also will be witnesses. Next week's hearings will see the inquiry go into Morgan & Co.'s financing of the Alleghany corporation, the Van Sweringens' great railroad holding company, and into the Morgan firm's dealings in Johns-Manville shares.

If possible, the Morgan hearings will be concluded by Tuesday afternoon. The inquiry into Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is to begin June 12, with Otto Kahn for the first witness. The Dillon, Read & Co. hearing will follow.

Senator Robert Reynolds [Dem., N. C.] enlivened the opening of today's session by questioning Mr. Whitney concerning shares on the so-called "preferred lists" that had been allotted to Morgan, Grenfell & Co. in London and Morgan & Co. in Paris.

Senator Reynolds wanted to know whether Mr. Whitney knew whether any such shares had been purchased by King George or any of the British royal family, by King Albert of Belgium, or by the "director of the Italian government."

Confused Abont Name.

"I sometimes call him Mussolini and sometimes Mussoloni," the senator explained. "I have never learned what it really is."

The senator read the questions from a typewritten sheet which previously had been in the hands of a reporter for the radical or "liberal" press, which has been getting as much enjoyment out of investigating Mr. Morgan as the radicals are.

Senator Reynolds' colleagues smiled; the senator smiled as he asked the question. Mr. Pecora smiled tolerantly. Mr. Pecora having been assistant district attorney in New York, and Senator Reynolds having been a prosecuting attorney in North Carolina, the committee counsel could sympathize with this bit of theater for the benefit of the press.

"I have no definite knowledge that any of these gentlemen referred to participated in the sale of these shares," was Mr. Whitney's final answer, given with what gravity he could muster. "I would be willing to state, however, without the slightest fear of contradiction that they did not."

Whitney Describes Pool.

Mr. Whitney described at length the formation of the bank pool, Oct. 24, 1929, by Morgan & Co., First Securities company, Chase Securities company, Guaranty Company of New York, National City bank, the Bankers' company and the Guggenheim Brothers.

He did not like the word pool because of the colloquial meaning which had been given to it. He preferred "special suspense account" or "divided joint account." Nor did he like to say that the purpose of the pool or account was to "stabilize" the market. "Stabilize," he said, had also acquired an unpleasant connotation. He preferred to use "steady."

"The only object of this transaction from beginning to end was to try to restore some kind of order, to bring the situation out of chaos," said Mr. Whitney. "There was never the slightest attempt to hold prices at any level.

"We purchased altogether 1,146,609 different shares of stocks," he went on. "The total cost of them was $137,752,705. We sold those, later on in 1930, when the account was closed, for $138,820,060.04, which gave us a net gross profit of $1,067,355.04, which is exclusive of interest. And that was the gross."

The drop in the market, he said, was "just stark fright, and panic, and liquidation."

Expected to Lose, He Says.

"This was never gone into with the slightest idea that we would do anything but lose money," Mr. Whitney declared. "At one time before we were able to liquidate I think we had about a $40,000,000 book loss. We only went into it in a desperate effort to be of help in a very dangerous situation."

The best that the pool could do, he testified, was to provide some market for leading stocks, which would otherwise have gone plunging into air pockets for absolute lack of any bids.

Morgan & Co.'s share and that of the five banks and securities affiliates was 4-25 of the pool each and that of Guggenheim Brothers, 1-25.

SEEK NEW LAND PLANE RECORD AT JULY AIR RACES

Plans for an attempt at a new world's land plane speed record during the American air races at Chicago airport, July 1, 2, 3, and 4, were disclosed yesterday by Arthur Knapp, owner of the Laird Super Solution racing plane, which he has rebuilt to do an estimated 300 mile san hour. He said the plane would be flown by E. M. [Matty] Laird, veteran Chicago plane designer and racing pilot.

Mr. Knapp told his plans for the record attempt to Maj. R. W. Schroeder, director of events of the air races. He said the plane had just been completely rebuilt with many improvements which raised its high speed well above 300 miles an hour. The attempts, he said, will be made over a one mile straightaway course on each of the four days of the races. The present land plane speed record is 294 miles an hour.

Three years ago the Super Solution won the Thompson trophy race at the Chicago air races at a speed of 201.9 miles an hour, with a motor of only 450 horsepower. It was piloted by the late Charles W. [Speed] Holman. In 1931 the plane placed third in the Thompson race at the Cleveland air races, despite the fact that the pilot flew through a tree, tearing the fabric.

Mr. Knapp bought the plane last fall, and since then has devoted 1,500 hours of labor in his plant at Battle Creek, Mich., to stream lining and rebuilding it to add 100 miles an hour to its speed. One hundred and fifty horsepower have been added to the navy type Whirlwind motor, giving it a total of 600 horsepower, through super charging. A controllable pitch propeller has been installed on the plane.

POET MARKHAM ON STAND; TELLS LOANS TO WOMAN

'Poor Business Man,' He Describes Self.

Edwin Markham, 81 year old poet who wrote "The Man with the Hoe," described himself as a poor business man at a hearing before Federal Master in Chancery Thomas J. Peden yesterday. He testified in an action brought in the federal court by the Canada Life Assurance company for an interpretation of the rights of five persons under a $500 a month annuity contract created for Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson, comely novelist, by Ernest R. Graham, noted Chicago achitect.

The flowing silver haired and white bearded poet told of loans advanced by him to Mrs. Anderson on her assignment of annuity checks. Despite the temperature of 82 degrees, Mr. Markham wore a top coat. He entered the hearing room without nodding to Mrs. Anderson, who was seated across a table, and opened a battered brief case containing the purported assignments.

Claimed by Five.

The clerk of the United States District court is holding $4,400 of the annuity created in November of 1929 by Mr. Graham. Under its terms Mrs. Anderson was to receive $500 a month from the assurance society until April of 1934. The insurance company is asking the court to decide to whom the money should go. It is claimed by Mr. Markham, Mrs. Anderson, Attorneys I. R. O'Crowley, and Lucy C. McDannell of New York, who are seeking fees for services rendered the poet, and Attorney Robert E. Burke, who represented Mrs. Anderson in litigation against the insurance company.

Mr. Markham said that he now has due him $5,500 in money advanced to Mrs. Anderson on the annuity and $3,095 in other loans. Mrs. Anderson insists she repaid all loans made by the poet and charged that he levied exorbitant interest for his "trouble."

"Cost Life Savings."

"My friendship with Mrs. Anderson and my efforts to aid her in her financial plight has cost me $40,000, which represents my life's savings," he said. "Mrs. Anderson came to me two years ago and begged me for advances on her annuity. I told her to go to the banks. She returned to implore aid, declaring banks were not interested in making the loans.

"I advanced her about $1,095. Another time I advanced her $5,500 and made other loans. In order to do this I was obliged to sell large blocks of stock. As a result I have since suffered a paper loss of $40,000."

Mrs. Anderson testified Markham has been paid in full. She said she assigned to him the $500 a month payments and received the equivalent of $400 a month in loans made her. She also said Markham was given $500 in consideration for raising the money.

In reply to Mrs. Anderson's charges on high interest, the poet said she told him to take something for his trouble and he took $50 from each check in collecting against the loans. This profit was eaten away because Mrs. Anderson borrowed over and above the value of the annuity, he said.

The existence of the annuity was first revealed last January in a $500,000 suit brought by Mrs. Anderson against Mr. Graham and a private detective on charges of conspiracy to harass her. Superior Judge Paul McWilliams directed a jury to return a verdict of not guilty in favor of Graham.

Bares "Love Affair."

A week later a bill was filed in the Superior court against Graham to amend a second annuity contract executed by him in her favor in 1928. She has also a $500,000 libel suit pending in the Superior court here and another for $250,000 in New York.

From the witness stand in Judge McWilliams' court Mrs. Anderson told of "a violent and passionate" ten year love affair with the architect which ended shortly before his second marriage in 1925. She testified he had given her an average of $30,000 a year during the period and also she had received almost $100,000 in various settlements exclusive of the annuities.

The hearing before Master Peden will continue this morning.

NEW U. S. INDICTMENT AGAINST HARRIMAN NAMES BANKER'S AID

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Joseph W. Harriman, former president and former chairman of the board of the Harriman National Bank and Trust company, which he founded, again was indicted today by the federal grand jury for misuse of the bank's funds and "abstraction" of hundreds of thousands of dollars in stock of the Standard Oil of New Jersey.

The new indictment also names Albert Murray Austin, a vice president of the bank, as having aided and abetted Harriman in the alleged falsifications and withdrawal of stocks. There are seventeen counts in the new bill.

The first fourteen counts of the new indictment reiterated the transactions previously recorded in the first indictment and add the name of Austin as a defendant.

The naming of Austin is the first indication in the sensational history of the bank's troubles that Harriman had any associate in the transactions which the indictment calls illegal. It is the first time that Austin's name has been mentioned in connection with the case.

Austin jointly is charged now with making or causing to be made the false entries in the books of the bank which were found by a federal inspector and which brought on the closing of the bank during the banking holiday. It is now in the hands of a federal conservator.

Inquest Jury Frees Capone Aid; Police Arrest Him

A coroner's jury under Deputy Coroner Louis Nadherny yesterday exonerated Dominic Russo, 41 years old, alias Tony Marino, public enemy and reputed former henchman of Al Capone, at the inquest into the death of Miss Sally Sirusas, 19 years old, 2739 West 43d street. Miss Sirusas was killed on April 30 when Russo's automobile, in which she was riding, collided with a street car at 35th street and 54th avenue, Cicero. Although the jury returned a verdict of accidental death, the Cicero police placed a manslaughter charge against Russo.

MITCHELL CASE DEFENSE WILL START MONDAY

Government Completes Its Tax Testimony.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—The government closed its income tax case against Charles E. Mitchell this afternoon, after presenting evidence for three weeks.

As United States Attorney George Z. Medalie announced, "the government rests," Mr. Mitchell leaned forward at the counsel table and congratulated his counsel, Max D. Steuer, on his conduct of the cross-examination of government witnesses. The trial was adjourned by Jederal Judge Henry W. Goddard until Monday morning.

Mr. Steuer announced that he would make a motion to dismiss. If that is denied he will be prepared to put defense witnesses on the stand at once. Both Mr. Mitchell and his wife, Elizabeth R. Mitchell, will testify, Mr. Steuer said.

Figures Tax at $850,429.

The prosecution's last witness was Martin Kunkel, a special agent of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue bureau. Thomas E. Dewey, chief assistant United States attorney, brought out from Mr. Kunkel that Mr. Mitchell would have paid a tax of $850,429.68 in 1929 and 1930 if he had figured the same way the government does.

"But the fact is that Mr. Mitchell paid no tax whatever in either 1929 or 1930?" Mr. Dewey asked.

"That is right," said the witness. Mr. Kunkel testified that except for the $2,872,305 loss established by the sale of 18,300 shares of National City bank stock by Mr. Mitchell to Mrs. Mitchell, and for Mr. Mitchell's failure to report the receipt of $666,666.67 from the management fund of the National City company, his net income for 1929 would have been $3,466,324.02 and his tax $728,709.84.

Estimates 1930 Tax.

Except for his sale of 8,500 shares of Anaconda stock to W. D. Thornton, president of the Greene Cananea Copper company, which established a loss of $758,918.25, according to Mr. Kunkel, Mr. Mitchell's 1930 taxable income would have been $625,637.89 and his tax $121,719.84.

Mr. Steuer implied in his cross-examination that it was unfair to expect Mr. Mitchell to pay a tax on his profits from security sales and not to deduct his losses. He developed from the witness that Mr. Mitchell reported a profit of $655,000 from the sale of 15,000 shares of National City bank stock in 1929 and that the government's calculation as the 1929 tax due included this profit item, but excluded the loss on the sale to Mrs. Mitchell.

WALLACE SEEKS CONTROL OF DRUG OUTPUT AND ADS

Prepares Bill Giving Wide Department Powers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—Secretary Wallace, already the dictator over agriculture, today moved to capture broad powers over the manufacture, distribution, and the advertising of foods, drugs, and cosmetics.

Dissatisfied with the authority he already possesses under the existing food and drug act, Secretary Wallace today submitted a bill to congress which would give him powers of censorship over labels on foods and drugs, and talcs, beauty creams, lip sticks, and other toilet accessories. He would also be able to proscribe newspaper advertising of these products.

Prison terms and heavy fines would face those who defied the secretary's promulgations, but the defendants have been granted the right of jury trials in the courts.

But the bill would also provide that if any one repeated offenses an injunction might be obtained against him and then the jury trial privilege would be withdrawn, and defendants might be sentenced for contempt of court. This was the procedure followed in prohibition cases.

Creates Army of Inspectors.

The bill would also create an army of inspectors who would be empowered, under the secretary's direction, to enter stores and factories, freight cars and even motor trucks, to inspect products. The bill would give them the right to seize any article not upon a search warrant, but simply if they had "probable cause to believe the article is so adulterated as to be imminently dangerous to health."

If an officer or inspector of the secretary should go beyond his rights in the invasion of any citizen's liberty or property, and were sued and a judgment obtained against him, the Wallace bill provides that the officer should be exempt and that the judgment should be paid out of the federal treasury.

Although Secretary Wallace is held to be desirous of early action on the bill, President Roosevelt has declared that while he favored its submission to congress he did not consider it an emergency act, and would not press for final consideration at this session. His attitude is that it is a matter for discussion, and might be allowed to lay over until the regular session next winter.

Guard Free Press.

The bill was prepared by Mr. Wallace in collaboration with Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell of the Roosevelt brain trust, and Walter G. Campbell, chief of the federal food and drug administration.

In order to get around the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press the bill provides that publishers of newspapers and magazines will not be punished for violations of the regulations, but only upon the condition that they give the names and addresses of the advertisers who inserted the advertising.

However, under the injunction clause of the bill, if an editor persisted in publishing "false" advertising as defined in the bill, he could be enjoined by the federal courts, and then punished for contempt.

The penalties allowed by the bill are imprisonment up to one year or a fine up to $1,000, but if the court finds the defendant a "wilful" violator, the imprisonment may range up to two years and the fine up to $3,000.

Following the preaching of the baccalaureate sermon in the First Methodist church, the 1933 graduates went to the meadow near the Deering library in cap and gown. Then, each carrying a lantern, they passed in review before the trustees and the faculty, who stood on the library steps. After this ceremony the graduates were taken into the alumni organization.

WALTER WILHARM, FRIEND OF BIRDS, DIES ON STREET

Walter Wilharm, 65 years old, fed the birds and pigeons in Grant park for the last time yesterday. He was leaving the park and was on his way home when he collapsed in front of the Art institute. He was dead when picked up. A heart attack was responsible.

Police could learn little about Wilharm, except that he operated as an independent buyer of tax titles, with an office at 25 North Dearborn street.

Wilharm, police believe, was moderately wealthy. He lived somewhere around Madison and Halsted streets. He was a bachelor. Police are seeking relatives.

ROOSEVELT WILL SAIL SCHOONER ON HIS VACATION

New Bedford, Mass., June 2.—(AP)—Way for a sailor! And have a man on the flag halyard to dip the colors if you pass the trim little schooner Amberjack II. anywhere between this old port and the Canadian border after June 10, for Capt. Franklin D. Roosevelt, otherwise President of the United States, will be in command.

The New Bedford Standard Times announced today it had been informed by Mrs. Roosevelt that June 10 had been tentatively set as the start of the President's vacation cruise. He will visit his old friend, Dr. William McDonald, who guided him back to health after an infantile paralysis attack in 1921, at the physician's Marion home, just below here on Buzzard bay, and then the cruise will begin, the paper said it was informed.

If plans are adhered to President Roosevelt and his sons, their cousin, Bobby Delano, and George K. Briggs of Marblehead, will sail Amberjack II. all the way "down east" to Campobello island, New Brunswick, where the Roosevelts have spent many summers.

2 MORE TO FACE CHARGES IN GIRL JAILING BY POLICE

Zagel Case Involves Sergeant and Matron.

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday ordered charges filed against two more members of the police department as a result of the treatment accorded Miss Lilyan Zagel, 18 years old, 1357 North Rockwell street, after she had been involved in an automobile accident.

The new charges are against Desk Sergeant Joseph J. Purcell of the West North avenue station, who refused to place a charge against Miss Zagel so that she might be admitted to bail, and against Matron Margaret Jones, in charge of the women's quarters at the Racine avenue station, who forced the girl to spend the night in a cell with a demented woman.

Three Others Face Charges.

Commissioner Allman on Thursday, ordered charges against Patrolmen Walter H. Green, Patrick Griffin, and Eugene Piggott, members of the squad which arrested Miss Zagel. Patrolman Green, who was in command of the squad, will be charged with rendering a false official report, and the other two with conduct unbecoming police officers. The same charge will be placed against Sergt. Purcell. Matron Jones will be charged with neglect of duty.

Miss Zagel struck Hyman Muslin, 4 years old, with the automobile which she was driving on the afternoon of May 19. Police refused to book her that she might provide bail and locked her up until the following afternoon, when her release was ordered by Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green.

Col. Philip R. Crippen, police department inspector, found that Patrolman Green had made a false report when he charged that Miss Zagel attempted to escape from the scene of the accident until men in the neighborhood jumped on her car and stopped her. Col. Crippen found that she stopped of her own accord. She was technically guilty of leaving the scene, Col. Crippen asserted, because she refused later to give her name and address, after she had gone to the Muslin boy's home.

Purcell in Charge at Time.

He found, however, that there was no necessity for locking her up under the circumstances.

Col. Crippen was ordered Thursday to investigate the part played in the case by Lieut. John Hardy, in command of the West North avenue station at the time of Miss Zagel's arrest. He found that Lieut. Hardy was absent from the station at the time on an official assignment given him by Capt. Frank Matchett, his commander, and that Sergt. Purcell was the senior officer in charge.

OBTAINS DIVORCE; WEDS NO. 2; THEN DECREE IS VOIDED

Doctor's Plight Bared by New Action.

Disclosures that Dr. Paul E. Duffee, 1018 North State street, physician and surgeon, obtained a secret divorce from his first wife, made a second marriage, and then was forced to separate from his second wife by a court order which rescinded the divorce decree and annulled the second wedding, were made yesterday.

These facts were learned when Dr. Duffee's first wife, Mrs. Margaret Welch Duffee, 1100 North State street, through her attorney, Norman Becker, placed an attachment for the physician's arrest in the hands of deputy sheriffs. The attachment was issued by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude on the grounds that the physician fled after his second marriage was annulled one year ago, and has failed to support his wife.

Secret Divorce Revealed.

Court records, examined yesterday, told a dramatic story of the revelation of the secret divorce and marriage in Judge Trude's court in May, 1932. The revelation came when the physician was under cross-examination by Attorney Becker in Judge Trude's courtroom after Mrs. Margaret Duffee filed her bill for separate maintenance on April 6 of that year.

Mrs. Duffee recited in her bill that she was married to the doctor on May 18, 1929, and was deserted by him three months later. She charged cruelty, alleging that he beat her on several occasions and reciting that once during a fit of rage he jerked from the wall the telephone over which she was holding a conversation with a friend.

The bill also related that Dr. Duffee had borrowed $2,000 from his wife on the day before their marriage, but had never repaid the loan. Mrs. Duffee asked for support money and the return of her loan.

Appearing in court on May 10, 1932, Dr. Duffee opposed his wife's suit by asserting to Judge Trude that he already had obtained a divorce on grounds of desertion on Nov. 2, 1931. The physician stated that he had obtained the decree after serving his wife by publication. Judge Trude, the doctor said, had granted the divorce.

Weds Boyhood Sweetheart.

Under cross-examination the physician informed Attorney Becker that he had remarried soon after the decree was granted. He stated that he married a young woman who was his boyhood sweetheart. He refused to disclose her name. After declaring to the court that his client had never received notice of the divorce although her husband had known her whereabouts ever since the separation, Attorney Becker demanded that the divorce be set aside. This Judge Trude granted.

When Dr. Duffee protested that he already had a wife, Judge Trude replied that his first duty under the law was to his first wife.

After this hearing Dr. Duffee abandoned his expensively furnished offices at 6 North Michigan avenue and disappeared from the city. Neither Mrs. Duffee nor Attorney Becker were able to trace him until yesterday when they learned that he had returned to Chicago and was living at the North State parkway address.

HOTEL MEN ASK TAX QUIZ INTO Y. M. C. A. HERE

An appeal to tax authorities to investigate the operations of the Young Men's Christian Association in Chicago with a view to taxing its extensive property holdings, now tax-exempt was voiced yesterday at a meeting of directors of the North Shore Hotel association. A resolution was unanimously adopted to that effect and a copy forwarded to County Assessor J. L. Jacobs.

The Y. M. C. A. has recently launched a hugh advertising campaign to induce World's Fair visitors to stop in the various hotel buildings its owns the resolution pointed out. Elaborate circulars have been printed, listing sixteen buildings with 6,000 rooms for the accommodation of all comers, membership requirements having been waived for the summer.

Open a "Headquarters."

The circulars state that "Y. M. C. A. Exposition Headquarters" have been established at 826 South Wabash avenue and a "Y. M. C. A. information bureau" in the loop at 19 South La Salle street where special bids for A Century of Progress hotel business are being made, the resolution declared.

"The widespread distribution of circulars, advertisements, and posters of the Y. M. C. A. is of such magnitude that it would be impossible for any hotel or group of hotels to finance," the resolution stated.

"The Y. M. C. A. operates its various establishments under a special charter granted in 1861 and amended in 1867 'for the purpose of establishing and maintaining free libraries and reading rooms and for benevolent and religious purposes,' and for these purposes the organization was granted exemption from the payment of all real and personal property taxes.

Deviates from Purpose.

"The Y. M. C. A. has, since this charter was granted, deviated widely from the specific purposes for which exemption for taxes was granted and as a result has entered into unfair competition with hotels which are taxed heavily."

The Supreme court of Missouri has already ruled that the Y. M. C. A. buildings in that state must be taxed because they are no longer exclusively devoted to charitable or religious purposes, the directors of the hotel association pointed out.

In the case of the county collector versus the St. Louis Y. M. C. A. Supreme Court Justice E. S. Gantt delivered the following opinion:

"The test for taxation exemptions is not the number of good purposes to which a building is put nor the amount of good derived by the general public from the performance and accomplishment of such purposes, but whether the building is used exclusively for religious, educational or charitable pursuits. If used for one or more commercial purposes, it is not used exclusively for any exempted purpose and is subject for taxation."

Income $3,500,000.

The accounts of the Y. M. C. A. for 1932 show that it owns 31 properties with an income of $3,500,000 a year. On one parcel of property alone, the value has been placed at $2,822,488 and the taxes on the assessed value would be $64,225. The total taxes now withheld from the county by reason of these tax-exempt properties amounts to more than half a million dollars a year, tax officials said.

partisan position the Republican county committee had voted in favor of a coalition ticket upon which every sitting Democratic judge was to be renominated. Their committee met with the Republican judges, asked their assistance to that end, and advised that if offered a place on the Democratic ticket the Republican judges should accept it.

"Now on partisan grounds they seek to defeat us for doing the very thing which a committee authorized by them requested us to do.

"In taking this ultra-partisan position as to the judiciary, they have departed from the best traditions of the Republican party, that justice should be nonpartisan. No one has questioned hitherto the party loyalty of any judge in this county because his name appeared in the column of a political party with which he was not affiliated. Tuley, Windes, Clifford, Baker, and Adams did not cease to be Democrats because they accepted places on a Republican judicial ticket. The Republicans who ran on a coalition slate in 1921 did not cease to be Republicans, and the Democrats who accepted places in the Republican column in 1927 did not cease to be Democrats."

Countering on this, Republican headquarters said: "The Republican party, in keeping with its time honored traditions, adheres to the principle that a free people have an unquestioned right to select their public officials. In no other manner can the blessings of liberty be reserved. For these well defined reasons the Republican party presents to the electorate a full list of candidates for judicial offices in Cook county to be voted on Monday."

Considerable activity was displayed in the loop by the peoples' judiciary ticket, and the politicians regarded it as strengthening the Democratic-fusion ticket on the theory that it will take more from the Republican than the Democrats. Blake C. Smith, who tops the third ticket, was for ten years examiner of titles in the Torrens office of the county recorder's office under the late Joseph F. Haas, by them requested us to do.

FORM "13" CLUBS TO BACK KINNE FOR BENCH RACE

Supporters of Harry C. Kinne, Republican candidate for judge of the Circuit court in next Monday's election, have organized a series of "13" clubs throughout the suburban towns, in city wards, and in the Chicago Bar association, to emphasize the fact that his position in the list of Republican judges on the ballot is thirteenth. Mr. Kinne has been a practicing lawyer in Chicago for twenty-three years. His candidacy is approved by the bar association. In its report the association said: "He is an able lawyer, courteous, industrious, and even tempered. He is well qualified for office."

The "13" club idea found special favor with residents of Wilmette, where Mr. Kinne lives. He is a member of the village board of trustees. Members of the various Republican political organizations in the village pointed out that there are exactly thirteen precincts there.

Mr. Kinne is one of three candidates on the Republican judicial ticket who are expected to poll a heavy vote in the country towns. City Judge Craig Hood of Chicago Heights, who now is sitting as a Circuit court judge, and Frank J. Matousek of Berwyn, are the other candidates expected to draw the country town vote.

NEW ATTEMPT TO RETURN INSULL PLANNED BY U. S.

Attorney General Takes Up Case.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—A new attempt to extradite Samuel Insull, fugitive utilities magnate now in Greece, may soon be launched by the department of justice.

Attorney General Cummings today refused to make a definite statement on the plans of his department but he indicated that action was under consideration and that the government had found new grounds for action.

What offense the government would attempt to use in its second effort to bring Insull back for trial was shrouded in mystery today. Cummings refused point blank even to indicate what offenses are extraditable under Greek law.

At the state department it was revealed that among the offenses mentioned in the extradition treaty with Greece as furnishing grounds for extradition are forgery or utterance of forged papers, embezzlement when it is punishable by imprisonment, the obtaining of money or securities by false pretenses, and fraud or breach of trust by the officer of any company or by any one in a fudiciary position. It is believed that one of these categories would furnish the foundation for the new proceedings.

The extradition attempt would involve a new indictment against Insull to be brought by the district attorney in Chicago, it was explained, and the basis for the new action probably will not be revealed until the indictment is brought.

JUDGE CONSIDERS MOTIONS TO QUASH INSULL INDICTMENTS

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday took under advisement motions to quash the mail fraud indictment against 19 defendants formerly connected with the Corporation Securities company, defunct Insull investment trust. The court had heard arguments for two days from half a dozen defense attorneys and the government prosecutors. The defendants include Samuel Insull, Martin Insull, Samuel Insull Jr., officials of Halsey, Stuart & Co., and Stanley Field, former banker.

MERCURY RISES TO 86° AND TIES RECORD FOR YEAR

Between sunrise and 4 p. m. yesterday the temperature in Chicago rose twenty-two degrees, to a high of 86. The same reading was noted at 5 p. m. This maximum tied the high record for 1933, established on May 23. It was, however, well below the maximum for June 2, which is 92, set in 1895. The forecast for today indicated that the weather would continue warm through the morning, but that it would be cloudy and cooler, with a possibility of showers, in the afternoon.

CAREERS OF TWO JUDGES OPPOSED BY BAR TRACED

Normoyle and Rush Tell Their Stands.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

In the cases of Judges D. J. Normoyle and George Fred Rush of the Circuit bench, a persistent inside campaign against them in bar association circles has been shown. This was successful and the public is asked to retire them from the bench next Monday for the following reasons:

Judge Normoyle—He has served six years as a judge of the Circuit court following seven years as master in chancery. "His usefulness as a judge is impaired by a lack of patience in the courtroom. He is fairly qualified for the office."

Judge Rush—He became a Circuit judge in 1919. He was reelected in 1921 and 1927. "The returns on the recent questionnaire and the bar primary following it indicate that a substantial number of the members regard him as lacking in essential qualifications for judicial office."

Approved on Questionnaire.

In the questionnaire sent out last winter Judge Normoyle received an 82 per cent favorable vote on general questions of fitness such as promptness, diligence, fairness, and legal ability. The lawyers declared their confidence in him and 76 per cent of them voted for his renomination.

The booklet was then issued to members with the comment quoted in the foregoing test which was the judgment of the powerful association committees and in the primary that followed Judge Normoyle's vote was substantially cut, 1,404 voting for his renomination and 983 against him. In the May 10 primary he was still further down, receiving only 951 votes for renomination and 1,661 opposing votes.

No further reasons are advanced by the bar association for his defeat except his "lack of patience." The judge admits that there was a period a few months when he was irritable, due to a temporary illness, but submits that the lawyers should have considered his whole term: It was comment on this, he thinks, which forced his vote down.

Hits "Receivership Coterie."

There are other instances when he showed impatience.

"When I came into chancery," he said, "I found a receivership coterie in control. I regard the law as a profession, but I found that these young men regarded it as a way of making money quickly. I was irritable with some of them."

In 1927 Judge Normoyle was the only candidate for the bench, not a sitting judge, who was approved by the bar association.

He hates politics and does not like controversy of that kind. He is not entering into controversy with his opponents in this election. With many other judges he is in favor of the 14 year elective term because that would leave the judges free from politics for a longer time.

As it is now there is the bar association politics to consider. The committee heads of this organization and members of important committees all are known to the judges.

They may hold the fate of the judges in their hands at the next bar primary. What effect does that have on their treatment in the courtroom? Some of the judges admittedly worked hard for this coveted indorsement.

Opposes Leniency for Robbers.

Judge Normoyle has one peculiarity. Given a case of robbery with a gun, irrespective of age, color, creed, or sex, no one goes on probation from his court. This has led to criticism and applications for change of venue. He probably made some enemies among the lawyers in the Criminal court.

As chief justice of the Criminal court he caused the making of rules that all petitions for habeas corpus must be filed with the clerk and given a number and never withdrawn, and that this number must be transmitted to the state's attorney and the police commissioner in order to avoid spurious cases to force a booking. He also adopted the rule permitting surety companies to go on bonds. In his last year as chief justice he disposed of 854 indictments.

The Vote on Judge Rush.

Judge Rush received a mark of 69 per cent on his general fitness in the bar questionnaire. The lawyers said he was an able judge and approved his nomination by a vote of 757 to 498. They expressed confidence in his integrity.

Following the issuance of the campaign booklet of Feb. 3 last the first primary vote resulted in 934 lawyers voting for his renomination and 1,423 against it. The May primary vote was a still further reduction, 727 voting for him and 1,885 against. Judge Rush then questioned some of the lawyers.

"You know I am all right," he said. "Tell me what you have against me."

There was nothing against him unless they recalled a criticism made against him in 1923 and which he thought had been forgiven by their indorsement of him in 1927.

Forces Cases to Trial.

Judge Rush admits he has often driven lawyers to trial when they did not want to start their cases.

"It is said that I lean backward against my friends in court," he said. "That is not true, but I think I know what is in the public interest, what is just and right. What are the interests of a lawyer before a court? To get what favors they can from the judges. The bailiffs and clerks know more than the lawyers do about the fairness, honesty, courtesy, and health of a judge. I have been very careful all these years, but lawyers lose cases and are ruled against and in the course of years this piles up.

"It is not true that politics influences judges to any great extent. This is as nothing compared with the influence of bar association committee members. I was sponsored by Roy O. West and Charles S. Deneen, but they have seldom been in my court. Senator Deneen, I recall, came in once one a case, but it had already been disposed of. No, this is not the trouble with the courts.

"The bar association is all right and does good work in keeping lawyers up to the mark, but a clique gets in control of it, and has too much influence."

Judge Rush is 65 years old. Graduated from the University of Michigan, he engaged in general law practice in Chicago until he was elected judge of the Circuit court. He taught common law and equity pleading and practice at Northwestern university law school and teaches equity pleading at John Marshall Law school. He is the author of two textbooks on equity pleading and practice. For years he has been paying back business debts which he and his brother incurred and payment of which he might have avoided.

Judge Rush says he is considered "hard boiled" by some people because of his attitude on probations. He is much like Judge Normoyle in this, that few if any defendants who are found guilty of robbery with a gun, or who plead guilty, are admitted to probation. Judge Rush considers himself responsible for the protection of the public from men and boys who have shown such inclinations, and he does not accept protestations of sorrow and a promise to be good.

EIGHT ARRESTED AS KIDNAPERS OF KANSAS CITY GIRL

BULLETIN.

Amarillo, Tex., June 2.—(AP)—Walter H. McGee, 37, held here with four companions for questioning regarding the abduction of Mary McElroy, made a statement to police tonight in which he admitted the $9,000 in currency found in his possession was "kidnap" money, but did not connect it specifically with the McElroy case.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—[Special.]—The gang that kidnapped Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager H. McElroy Saturday was under arrest today, police announced.

Tonight police said they had found the house where Miss McElroy was held prisoner in the basement. The house is in the suburban territory between Kansas City and Shawnee, Kas.

Walter H. McGee, leader of the gang, was caught at Amarillo, Tex., with four companions, two men and two women, said to be their wives. Three other were arrested here.

McGee, a former truck driver and said by police to be an ex-convict sought in connection with two bank robberies, had $4,291, which the police said was a part of the McElroy ransom of $30,000.

Gets "Good Look" at Two.

Miss McElroy said tonight that she believed she could identify at least two of her abductors. "I got a good look at the two who came to our home last Saturday and took me away," she said. "I'm not certain that I could identify the others because I heard only their voices."

McGee was tripped up through an intercepted telegram to A. Starr, a Leavenworth, Kas., junk dealer, in which McGee was seeking to check the ownership record of a motor car for which he was dealing in Amarillo.

The four others arrested in the Texas city were using the names: Windell Johnson, Mrs. Hazel Johnson, said to be Johnson's wife; L. R. Gilbert, and Mrs. L. R. Gilbert.

Three Others Arrested.

A man whose name was given as Clarence Click was arrested in Kansas City, Kas., and two others whose names were not divulged were reported in custody.

McGee, leader of the gang, figured in all contacts in connection with the kidnapping last Saturday and Sunday. He was one of the two men kidnaping last Saturday, and Sunday daughter from her country club home. He was present when H. F. McElroy and his son turned over the $30,000 ransom and he superintended the release of Miss McElroy later.

Click was arrested at 8:10 o'clock this morning by Jeff Moran and Joseph Brennan, Kansas City, Mo., detectives, and R. E. Vetterli, agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation.

The arrests at Amarillo followed later and Click's arrest was not revealed until the others sought were apprehended.

Identities Known to Police.

The police got their first tip on the identity of the kidnapers Monday. Since then they have known definitely who was in the gang. It was just a case of locating them. They even had pictures of the principals. Their chief attention was devoted to locating McGee, leader of the kidnapers.

But confusing reports were received as to where McGee had gone. Detectives flew to Portland, Ore., on one tip. Later others flew to Minneapolis.

Following Click's arrest, detectives and a federal investigator went to Leavenworth, Kas., and established a watch on the mail and telegrams addressed to Starr, the junk dealer. Starr, however, had nothing to do with the kidnaping, police said.

Telegram Is Intercepted.

Shortly after the detectives and federal investigators arrived in Leavenworth a telegram addressed to Starr was intercepted.

As soon as Director Reppert received word of the intercepted telegram he called the chief of police at Amarillo on the telephone and asked that McGee and those in his party be arrested.

McGee was described by Mr. Reppert as about 37 years old. The director said McGee had lived at many addresses in Kansas City. McGee's occupation here had been as a driver of large transportation trucks.

According to the police, McGee is an ex-convict from the Oregon state penitentiary at Salem and is sought in Kansas for several bank robberies.

GIVE ROOSEVELT PLAN FAIR TRIAL, SAYS P. J. HURLEY

Good sportsmanship requires the giving of a fair trial to the Roosevelt administration if working out an economic program, Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war in the Hoover cabinet, declared in a speech last night at a banquet of the Sigma Chi fraternity in the Union League club.

"It is true," said Mr. Hurley, "that we cannot all agree to the different phases of the economic reform program now being worked out by congress, but we can all cooperate in at least giving a fair trial to what is presumed to be the will of the majority insofar as that may be done within constitutional limitations."

Reduction Considered Not Enough by Council.

Taxicab fares will be reduced 5 cents per trip by the Yellow and Checker Cab companies, starting today. The reduction was announced yesterday by Ben Samuels, vice president of the Yellow company, to the council subcommittee on taxicabs, which is considering an ordinance in which maximum rates will be fixed by the city. The charge will be 20 cents instead of 25 cents for the first quarter mile. The old charge of 10 cents for each subsequent half mile remains.

The aldermen also received a petition from a new corporation asking the right to put 200 cabs in service immediately at a charge of 15 cents for the first one-third mile and 5 cents for each third mile thereafter. A waiting charge of 10 cents for each 4 minues, or $1.50 an hour, is offered, as compared with the 10 cents for three minutes, or $2.00 an hour charged by the Yellow and Checker companies.

Call Cut Not Enough.

There was strong sentiment among the aldermen that the 5 cents a trip reduction by the large companies was not enough. They pointed out that the new company was asking the opportunity to invest $100,000 in the taxicab business in Chicago on a 15 cents per mile rate, while the two companies which practically have a monopoly on the cab business are charging 20 cents a mile. These companies assert they make only 1.4 cents profit per trip now, and a cut of a nickel will mean a loss unless the volume of business is greatly increased. This statement was puzzling to the aldermen.

They voted to send R. D. Kelker, engineer for the council transportation committee, to Cleveland to see how the company seeking a Chicago franchise operates there. They neither accepted nor rejected the offer of the 5 cent saving to cab riders, but postponed further consideration until next Wednesday.

Answers Toman Demand.

Ald. John Toman [23d] had requested the Yellow and Checker companies to state what reduction they would make voluntarily. Mr. Samuel's statement was the answer. Michael Sokol, president of the Checker company, said his company had decided to "go along."

Mr. Samuels, however, made it clear that the 5 cent reduction is merely an experiment.

"We feel, in fairness to our company and to its thousands of stockholders," he said, "that if, after this experiment, it is found the company cannot operate at this rate so as to give proper service to the public at a fair profit to our stockholders, that the city council will, after a thorough and complete examination of the subject and proof of this fact, enact legislation establishing a reasonable rate of fare."

McDermott Opposed.

"I'll not stultify myself by voting for a 5 cent reduction," said Ald. James J. McDermott [14th]. "It's not sufficient and I will oppose an ordinance authorizing such a rate."

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], who represents the south Chicago region, said the 5 cent cut would mean practically nothing on long rides, and he joined with others in a demand that the mileage rate come down. He pointed out the fact that the present rate is really more than 20 cents per mile, that the meter is registering at every stop and that with a few red light stops in a mile the charge would be 30 cents instead of 20.

Daniel Sherby, who spoke before the council committee in behalf of the petition to authorize the City Cab company to put 200 taxicabs on the streets, was questioned by Mr. Samuels as to methods used in Cleveland, where Sherby is secretary and treasurer of the Zone Cab company.

Sherby said his company was not connected in any way with General Motors and was able to buy low cost cabs. In an exchange of words, Sherby declared that the Yellow Cab company of his city is affiliated with the Yellow Cab company here because both pay for management service to the Parmalee company.

Attorney Stephen Love said the new company has $100,000 on hand ready for business and will hire union drivers. He said John T. Collins, 3255 Division street, a coal merchant, is president and that the company will be operated by Chicagoans, backed by the experience of the Cleveland management. Consideration of the request was deferred until next week.

LONDON, June 2.—Cardinal Francis Bourne, archbishop of Westminster, became critically ill today following an attack of pulmonary edema. [Edema is defined as a general swelling of serous fluid in the cellular tissue.] Oxygen was administered during the day. The cardinal was stricken with pneumonia on a visit to the Vatican Dec. 1. He recovered sufficiently to return to England, but was seriously ill last March when he received the last sacraments.

Italian Flies 440 Miles an Hour in Trial Spin, Report

ROME, June 2. — (AP) — Warrant Officer Franceso Agello was reported today in aviation circles to have unofficially broken his own world record by averaging a speed of 440 miles an hour in a practice flight over Lake Garda. Agello set a mark of 426⅓ miles an hour in his "Red Bullet" plane on April 10. This was 20 miles an hour faster than the former record set by the British lieutenant, O. H. Stainforth, in 1931.

HERE'S MAGICIAN WHO EXPLAINS ALL HIS TRICKS

Shows Electrical Wonders at World's Fair.

A new kind of magician was discovered doing tricks yesterday at the World's Fair. He carries no black hats, disappearing doves, or ladies to be sawed in half. His only equipment is a set of tubes of assorted sizes, a couple of radios, and a phonograph. His name is W. A. Gluesing, physicist of the research laboratories of the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y.

In a little theater which his company has built and named the House of Magic in the Electrical building, Dr. Gluesing puts on a show that refills the seats for a new performance every hour. The lure of Dr. Gluesing's show is that he endeavors to explain all his tricks—to amuse instead of mystify the audience.

Cites Lesson of Electron.

"The pure science of yesterday is the applied science of today, and the pure science of today will be the applied science of tomorrow," Dr. Gluesing announces. "The electron, about which scientists still know very little, is an illustration. But we have discovered the important principle that electrons can be forced out of metal if the metal be heated, and that is the principle behind the electron tube."

Whereupon, Dr. Gluesing puts the electron through its paces. He turns electric current into an electro-magnetic coil. Nothing happens until he picks up a slender tube filled with helium gas and holds it near the coil.

Immediately the tube glows with lavender light. He tilts the tube and grasps its center with his fingers. Instantly the section of the tube above his grasp turns black, while the part below still glows. Then he passes his encircling fingers down the tube, "squeezing" the light out of it.

"The coil of copper, heated by the electric current, has been broadcasting electrons," he explains. "You didn't know it until you saw the effect of the electrons lighting helium gas. I passed my hands down the tube to show you how, when the bombardment of electrons is cut off, the light goes out."

Uses a Television Lamp.

Dr. Gluesing then put his electrons through a neon television lamp, a tiny bulb screwed into a small telescopic case to give its faint red rays direction. This is the type of tube which the General Electro company used to broadcast the human voice and other sounds 24 miles over a beam of light in an experiment that attracted worldwide attention last November.

Dr. Gluesing set his phonograph playing. No music came forth, for the sound waves of the phonograph were being transformed into electric impulses and carried over a wire to the neon lamp. Dr. Gluesing turned on the lamp and focused its feeble beam on a magnifying glass hooked up with a loud speaker in a box. Now the music of the waltz on the phonograph could be clearly heard, as the television lamp transmitted the sound waves to the loud speaker.

BINGA FOUND GUILTY OF FRAUD; FACES PRISON

Jesse Binga, 63 years old, south side Negro banker, was found guilty this morning by a jury before Judge James F. Fardy in the Criminal court on a charge of embezzling $32,500 from the defunct Binga State bank, of which he was the president. He faces a penalty of one to ten years in prison.

The jury went out to deliberate at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The verdict was reached shortly after midnight, but was delayed in being read until Judge Fardy appeared in court. Binga received the verdict without any show of emotion.

Evidence introduced by Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson indicated that the Negro banker as head of his bank had taken the funds from the bank and from customers, the latters' money having been intrusted to him to purchase stock in a proposed national bank. Binga on the stand sobbed out a denial of the general charges. The trial was the banker's second, the first having ended in a jury disagreement.

BEGIN INQUIRY ON WORK HOURS FOR WOMEN AT FAIR

Reports that women employés at A Century of Progress exhibits and concessions were being forced to work from 12 to 14 hours a day caused State Director of Labor Barney Cohen to assign investigators yesterday to study working conditions there. Half a dozen of the department's factory inspectors will be stationed at the Fair today, Sunday, and Monday to investigate working conditions for women.

Some of the reports received at the director's office yesterday stated that women employed in many of the restaurants and food concessions had been working from 10 o'clock in the morning when the Fair grounds open until they close. This interval varies, it was said, but none of these concessions has been closed before midnight at any time since the Fair opened.

Director Cohen said that his inspectors were ordered to warn employers against working women employés more than 10 hours a day. Those found violating the state law in this respect will be prosecuted if they fail to heed the warnings. The penalty is a fine ranging from $5 to $100 or a short jail sentence or both.

GANGSTER QUIRK FREED.

Martin Quirk, south side gangster, was freed on a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday by Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten. Quirk was arrested on May 18 while sitting in a taxicab in front of 4201 South Halsted street.

2 STATES SHARE HONORS TODAY AT WORLD FAIR

Indiana to Dedicate Its Exhibit.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Finishing the opening week, the Fair this morning will swing into its stride with the first of special programs. From now on virtually every day will be designated for the presentation of programs by some specific group, the ceremony to be the main event both at day and at night.

Today has been officially designated as Alabama day, with a special Alabama program attended by state leaders representing Gov. B. M. Miller, who was unable to attend because of pressing legislative business. Sharing honors with the southern commonwealth in today's program, Indiana will dedicate the state exhibit in the Court of States. Two other states, Wisconsin and Missouri, will dedicate their exhibits tomorrow and on Wednesday the Florida exhibit will be presented to the Exposition.

See a Record Week-End.

Enjoying the midsummer weather, thousands of visitors early yesterday began to throng the Avenue of Flags with the chair cars and rickshaws getting the greatest play since the opening. Officials were optimistic about today's attendance, pointing out that yesterday's attendance of 39,435 presaged a record breaking week-end crowd.

No comparison could be made with the seventh day attendance of the Columbian Exposition of 1893, because the old Fair did not open on Sunday. However, the Saturday crowd on the sixth day of the old Fair was only 17,854. There was promise, therefore, that the 129 per cent increase of the present Exposition over that of 1893 as indicated in the figures for the first few days would be maintained for the week-end.

As an added attraction for families and children, Fair officials yesterday were working on a program by which children may enter the grounds and see the various concessions at cut rates. It is planned to have one day each week during which all rides and concessions may be enjoyed by children under 12 years for a nickel. A definite program will be announced early next week.

Aside from the official programs today and this evening all of the concessions and shows have announced special presentations for the week-end crowds.

The Indiana Dedication.

In the dedication of Indiana's exhibit this afternoon, A. Murray Turner of Hammond, chairman of the Indiana Century of Progress commission, will present the exhibit to Harry S. New, former postmaster general who is now federal commissioner to the Fair.

Mr. New in turn will call on Richard Lieber, Indiana state parks chief and director of the Indiana exhibit, and he will present Gov. Paul V. McNutt, who will dedicate the exhibit and turn it over to Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress. The program, beginning at 2 p. m., will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting company.

The Alabama delegation in today's ceremony will be headed by Orville J. Borcher, director of the Glee club of the Women's College of Alabama at Birmingham. The Alabama program will be presented at 8:15 p. m. in the Court of States in the Federal building on the island.

Italians to Conduct Ceremony.

At 4 p. m. today Prince Spada Verralli de Potenziani will preside at the dedication of the Italian pavilion. Italian consulate officials and prominent Chicagoans of Italian nativity will attend.

The only other dedication on today's program is that of the Gas Industry hall and the Fountain of Flame, in the south wing of the Home Planning hall. The ceremony, presided over by Arthur Hewitt, president of the American Gas association, will take place at 11 a. m. One hundred and fifty executives of the gas association will take part in the program. The exhibit shows the part taken by gas in the development of heating and lighting.

Fair officials yesterday were pleased with the reception given the strolling troubadors who stroll through the Fair grounds during the afternoon and evening giving serenades and concerts at request. The presence of the strolling players, in the opinion of officials, fills a need expressed by hundreds of visitors. While music has been provided in numerous concessions on the grounds, there has been a lack of music presented by the Exposition itself.

An Orchestra of 1,400.

Tomorrow evening a special musical feature will be presented when a massed orchestra of 1,400 players will give a two hour concert in the Court of States. The concert will be the final presentation of the fourth annual contest sponsored by the National School Orchestra association of Elmhurst.

The Chinese pavilion at the Fair will be opened to visitors this morning. A finely carved pagoda, chiseled from a solid block of pure green jade, two lamps and an arch, duplicating that of the Lama temple, form the principal exhibits. They are termed the "Three Wonders of Modern China." The two lamps, flanking the temple, are copied after two found in the imperial palace of the Tang dynasty. Made of eggshell jade, they are considered to be some of the finest jade carvings in the world.

The pavilion is built in the form of a Chinese house with an inclosed garden called the Jade pavilion. Fine silks, lacquers, and jade carvings are among the other exhibits. Ten important figures in Chinese history are included in the exhibition. Fifteen Chinese players will present native entertainment in the theater in one wing of the building. Today a Chinese artisan will demonstrate jade carving.

Police Search for Girl of 10, Lost Three Days

Missing three days, June Kolar, 10 years old, 7919 Wellington avenue, Elmwood Park, is being sought by city and suburban police. She is the daughter of Edward Kolar, a street car motorman, and Mrs. Daisy Kolar. June failed to return home from school Wednesday noon and has not been heard from nor seen since then. Mrs. Kolar said that June is of the adventurous, inquisitive type. A month ago she remained away from home all day, Mrs. Kolar said. Her present absence, the parents fear, may not be willful.

RACINE TO HONOR QUEEN OF FAIR AND COURT TODAY

Miss Lillian Anderson, Queen of the World's Fair, will leave with her court of 50 young women this morning at 11:30 o'clock over the North Shore line for her home town of Racine, Wis., to ride at the head of a parade there today given in her honor. She will be greeted at a reception in the afternoon before returning to Chicago this evening.

Last night the winners of THE TRIBUNE beauty contest dined and danced at the Café de la Paix in the Streets of Paris at a farewell party, where they were given their checks by Louis H. Rose of THE TRIBUNE. Miss Anderson received $5,000; Miss Lorraine Nevens, Evanston, first lady in waiting, $3,000; and Miss Ruth Joyce Hardie, Austin, second lady in waiting, $2,000.

Earlier in the day the beauties were given a reception by the Stock Yards company when they were escorted in the stock yards aluminum chariot by the Stock Yards American Legion Kiltles drum corps and a band of cowboys. The mile long parade ended at the Saddle and Sirloin club, where C. E. Snyder, president, presented the guests to 250 executives of packing houses. Miss Anderson was given a ten gallon hat in behalf of the Legion post, the only woman ever to receive the honor.

GAMBLING JUST GOOD, CLEAN FUN AT WORLD'S FAIR

"Cashing In Chips" Is a Mere Gesture.

A number of complaints have been made recently that "crooked gambling" is permitted in the Streets of Paris, one of the larger concessions at the World's Fair. This is denied by both concession and exposition officials.

Meanwhile, however, a quiet investigation of the charges has been made by Capt. Timothy Howard of the south park police. Thus far his inquiry has disclosed nothing illegal, he said. He will submit a secret report of his findings to Mayor Kelly today. The mayor had asked for the inquiry.

Gambling Is Mere Pretense.

The basis of some of the complaints, it appears, is that the games of chance in the Streets of Paris are not real. This is confirmed by concession officials. The gambling, they point out, is only simulated; the player can't win.

The gambling casino is readily found. It is tucked away in a gay section of the concession. In the room are a couple of roulette wheels, with slick croupiers standing over them and inviting trade. The response is brisk. The player buys chips in lots of $1 and up. He plays them on a number, or on the red or black.

The lucky ball indicates his winning number, and he envisions fancy returns of 36 to 1. But his return is not in the coin of the realm. It is in scrip which is said to be practically worthless except, perhaps, as souvenirs. Several players have protested so vigorously against being paid in scrip that their money was refunded, it is said.

Merely Playing for Fun.

"There is no real gambling in the Streets of Paris," said Roy Hall, secretary treasurer of the concession, last night. "The only purpose of the game is to simulate the Monte Carlo casino. Players buy chips, and that is the cost to them for enjoying the playing of the game. There have been stories of crooked gambling here, and also that liquor is being sold. They are untrue. We are open to investigation."

Exposition officials said last night that the Fair is clean and it will be kept that way, with prosecution by them of any illegal operations.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

Charles E. Hogan, 83 years old, who made the world's speed record of 112½ miles an hour with the New York Central locomotive 999 in 1893, will operate the engine again today at the transportation pageant at A Century of Progress. The engine was exhibited at Columbian Exposition after the record run of 1893.

Two beehives, each 100 years old, containing live bees and 25 pounds of honey, were stolen yesterday by automobile accessory thieves who stripped the car of Louis Park, Watertown, Wis., at Chicago and Ashland avenues. The hives were to have been exhibited in the Food and Agriculture building on Northerly island.

Lewis Bernays, English vice consul, and Mrs. Bernays will be guests of honor at the celebration of the birthday celebration of King George V. today at the Story cove on the Enchanted island. Scotch, Irish, and Welsh children will provide entertainment, featuring the Highland fling, Irish jigs, and singing. The Story cove is a free attraction, containing an international library of story books in several languages.

The exhibit of the Paper Foundation, Inc., in the General Exhibits building was opened to the public yesterday. All uses for paper are demonstrated. A model paper making machine shows the principles of paper making today in contrast with a replica of a paper machine of the 18th century.

The outdoor garden section of the horticultural exhibit on Northerly island was opened yesterday. A bare earth yard with a few wild flowers growing in the corners represents the middle western garden of a hundred years ago and is surrounded by modern gardens, including an Italian garden and a reproduction of Cook county landscape. A general display of cut flowers fills the exhibition halls of the Horticultural building.

A boy from the Allendale school in Lake Villa, Ill., will demonstrate an Indian game called totemonga in the Enchanted Island theater today at 11 a. m. The game is played with a stick and a bunch of rings. It was used by the Indians to develop quickness of the eye, and is said to be useful in improving one's batting eye in baseball or tennis.

An exhibit of art work from the elementary schools of Chicago is being displayed in the children's gallery, adjoining the theater and play room, on the Enchanted island.

ITALY'S AIR FLEET FORCED TO DELAY CHICAGO FLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 2.—Bad weather conditions, unusual for this time of the year, will prevent the departure of Italy's air armada for Chicago some time next week as had been expected, the Italian air ministry announced today.

The twenty-four planes are now ready for the flight. Instruments have been installed and tested. Ministry officials said that preparations along the northern route across the Atlantic also have been completed.

"Weather conditions here and over the north Atlantic are bad," said an air official. "The only thing we can say now is that we will take off some time during this month."

Austrian Chief in Rome to Sign Vatican Treaty

6 GERMAN PLANES TO HOP ACROSS SOUTH ATLANTIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 2.—Capt. Hermann Koehl, trans-Atlantic flyer, is organizing a new ocean flight. With a squadron of six planes he plans to carry it out next year.

Capt. Koehl for a long time has been working on a new type of plane. First tests will be carried out this autumn. It is specially adapted for long flights.

The first stage of the flight will be from Germany to the west coast of Africa, from there to South America and then to the United States. The floating airport vessel, Westfalen, recently was stationed in the South Atlantic by Lufthansa to supply the squadron with weather reports.

Capt. Koehl will be aboard the Graf Zeppelin tomorrow on a flight from Friedrichshafen to South America to investigate meteorological conditions, examine airports and make preliminary arrangements.

DETROIT NOTES TRAFFIC BOUND TO CHICAGO FAIR

Many from Canada and the East.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—[Special.]—Here, 275 miles from Chicago, there is a perceptible automobile traffic headed for A Century of Progress from New York, New England states, and from Canada. Tourists in increasing numbers are crossing the Detroit river headed for the Exposition. The World's Fair is a common subject of conversation here, and highways leading toward Chicago are carrying a goodly number of Michigan cars.

Demand for Information.

Francis Lankin of the Automobile Club of Michigan said he has issued hundreds of booklets, pamphlets and maps in response to inquiries about routes, hotels and camp sites for A Century of Progress visitors.

He said that some of the inquiring club members were going to Chicago for weekends and that others were merely planning their vacations.

George R. Cooke, received for the Detroit-Canada Tunnel company, said that buses from the east were passing through the tube under the International river with heavy loads of passengers for Chicago. He also reported increases in private car tourist traffic en route to Chicago during the last few days.

Bridge Traffic Increased.

Alexander Buchanan, chief accountant for the operators of the Ambassador bridge between Canada and the United States likewise reported a noticeable increase in the number of cars from the east headed for Chicago.

The destinations of the automobiles are learned from directions asked by the drivers when they pass through the toll gates. Conversations about the Fair are overhead on every hand. At a lunch this noon in the General Motors building two men and a woman were eating together and planning vacations later this month at A Century of Progress.

JARECKI LANDS $237,939 BACK TAX PAYMENT

Collection a Record in Drive on Delinquents.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

	1928	1929
June 2.....$	22,078	$ 42,200
Uncollected ..	19,620,114	51,815,006
	1930	1931
June 2.....$	95,010	$ 113,041
Uncollected .	83,499,919	114,977,743

Personal property collections for 1931, which are not included in the table, totaled, $15,716.

The largest single payment of delinquent taxes made in County Judge Jarecki's court since the beginning of his drive to collect back taxes under the Kerner-Skarda law was recorded yesterday when the Straus Safe Deposit company, 300 South Michigan avenue, paid $237,939, which added to previous payments made a total of 75 per cent paid on an original delinquent tax bill of $444,573.

Moreover, the 25 per cent balance of taxes will be paid as soon as objections to the assessment can be heard, attorneys promised. Judge Jarecki said he would dispose of these objections in the near future. The lawyers cited the fact that $619,901 had been paid on delinquent and current taxes within the last eighteen months as proof of their willingness to cooperate in the drive to reduce the vast total of uncollected taxes in the county.

Representatives of the property at 24 West Washington street who grabbed back a check for $30,982 last week when the judge refused to dismiss a receivership order, appeared in court yesterday and produced receipts to show that they had changed their minds and had paid the $30,982 on delinquent taxes. They again asked the dismissal of the county receiver, but the judge refused.

Promises Ruling on Objection.

"There will be a final ruling on your objections tomorrow," he said, "and if you pay the taxes in full after the objections are disposed of, the receiver will be dismissed."

An investigation was ordered by the judge into the nonpayment of delinquent taxes totaling $65,739 on the George Griffith Building corporation property at 29 South Wabash avenue. The court was informed that Circuit Judge Hugo Friend had ordered the payment of all money on hand ten days ago and ordered an information directed against the Chicago Title and Trust company, as receiver, to determine why the Circuit court order had not been obeyed.

William L. Kerney, through his lawyers, explained that he had just received the Sinton hotel, 4931 Sheridan road, back from the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver. The judge ordered another information against the trust company to discover why back taxes of $27,429 had not been paid.

Informed that $42,000 was in the hands of Charles H. Abbers, receiver for the 328 South Wells Street building upon which delinquent taxes total $66,757, Judge Jarecki ordered an information filed against the receiver to force him to explain why the money had not bene used for back taxes.

Other Big Payments Made.

Another payment yesterday in the court was made by the Chicago Title and Trust company and Leschin, Inc., 318 South Michigan avenue. A check for $16,695 was handed the judge, making a total of 75 per cent paid on delinquent taxes pending the disposition of objections to the assessment. The City State Safe Deposit company, 120 North Wells street, also paid $14,392 to raise the total paid on $50,735 back taxes to 75 per cent.

Receivers were appointed for the 6315 Stony Island avenue property, which owes $26,491, and the Patio apartments, 6218 North Clark street, which owes $26,466 in delinquent taxes.

$500,000 BLAZE WRECKS HANGAR AND 28 PLANES

Garden City, L. I., June 2.—[Special.]—Twenty-eight airplanes, including one owned by Russell Thaw, son of Harry K. Thaw, were destroyed tonight in a fire which razed a large hangar at Roosevelt field. The damage was estimated at $500,000.

The cause of the blaze was not determined, but Nassau county detectives began an investigation of the presence near the hangar of a small coupe about 15 minutes before the fire started. It aroused the suspicion of a watchman, who took the license number of the car. The police said they would seek the owner for questioning.

The fire occurred in a large fireproof hangar which was occupied until about a month ago by Air Services, Inc., owned by William B. Leeds. Since he gave it up it has been shared by five flying companies.

Robber Beats Woman with Blackjack; Gets Only $1.75

Miss Maxine Henschel, 25 years old, 4531 North Ashland avenue, was struck on the head with a blackjack when she attempted to resist a purse snatcher in front of 1314 Leland avenue this morning. As he grabbed her purse Miss Henschel offered fight. The thief hit her on the head several times, felling her. He ran away with the purse, which contained $1.75.

Clerk in 40 East Oak Hotel Robbed of $393

Donald Streed, 1049 Rush street, clerk in the 40 East Oak street apartments, was robbed of $393 in hotel funds last night by a bandit. The robber forced Streed to crouch behind the desk during the holdup.

HOLD YOUTHS AS BURGLARS.

Edmund Flood, 19 years old, 6036 Harper avenue, and Alexander Martin, 20 years old, 6032 Harper avenue, free on probation, were held to the grand jury on five charges of burglary yesterday by Municipal Judge John Gutknecht.

La Buy Launches Move to Cut Relief Cost by 50 Per Cent

A drastic reduction in the number of families on the city and county relief rolls was undertaken yesterday by County Commissioner Walter J. La Buy, who launched an investigation of methods used by the bureau of public welfare to determine and remove from the rolls families receiving employment as the result of the present trade expansion. The natural shrinkage in costs, due to lack of necessity of coal in this summer weather, has not been greatly in evidence.

"Business has increased tremendously throughout the country during the last two months, and that increase has been nothing short of phenomenal in Cook county," Commissioner LaBuy said. "With the upturn of trade, employment has increased, pay rolls are larger, and there is every reason to believe that many of the families on the relief rolls are receiving employment of some kind, either part or full time.

Wants 50 Per Cent Cut.

"In view of these facts, I believe that the number of families on the relief rolls can be reduced drastically. The tremendous sums we are spending for relief of the idle each month should be cut in half. I am convinced that this can be done if a thorough and consistent investigation is made of all families on the rolls in their homes.

"I have discovered through a preliminary survey that the unemployment relief service is so bound up by red tape that the investigation of families receiving aid is grossly inadequate. The case workers are handling an average of 250 families each. This permits them to make a call upon the individual family only once in two months or more. Under such conditions fraud and deception are flourishing.

"As I pointed out last January, in my original attempt to revise the methods of distributing relief to the idle, the key to a humane and economical relief service requires a sufficient number of efficient case aids to make frequent contacts with relief families so that fraud may be detected and the actual needs of the family ascertained.

"Unfair to Taxpayer."

"The lack of this close supervision of those receiving aid not only is grossly unfair to the overburdened taxpayer, but also is unfair to the many families in actual, dire need. Proper aid could be supplied to those in actual need if the impostors were removed from the rolls. And this is certainly the time, when business is on the upgrade, to clean the relief rolls of all families with sufficient incomes. The continued drain of supporting 127,000 families in idleness will do more than anything else to halt the business revival.

"When my investigation of conditions at the district relief offices is complete I plan to ask for a report from Joseph L. Moss, director of the bureau of public welfare, on the methods he has instituted to discover what families are no longer deserving of relief because of employment. I understand that some methods of determining employment have been instituted, but these are not being followed rigorously from what I can discover.

"The principal means to date has been purely clerical and is done in the district offices. I believe that the only certain method is to have every family on the rolls visited in the home twice a month."

Commissioner LaBuy introduced a resolution in the county board demanding extensive adjustments in the methods of giving relief last January. After a conference with officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, the county board put several of his recommendations into effect and nullified others because they were not considered sound practice by professional social workers.

AWARD TO GIRL ACCUSER OF BALL PLAYER SET ASIDE

Judge Martin Finneran, in the Circuit court yesterday, set aside a $10,000 verdict that a jury had returned before him on May 19 against Harley Boss, first baseman of the Cleveland American league baseball club.

The verdict was in favor of Miss Lillian Eloise Mitchell, 22 years old, 5054 Winthrop avenue, who charged that Boss struck her and tried to attack her in a Cleveland hotel last April 19. Miss Mitchell, represented by Attorney Lloyd A. Faxon, won the verdict by default when Boss did not appear at the hearing.

Attorney Faxon yesterday agreed to reopen the case when Attorney William J. McGah, counsel for Boss, said that the ball player had not known of the hearing and that he wished to defend himself. Miss Mitchell sued for $50,000. Judge Finneran set the new hearing for June 19.

SEEK U. S. FUNDS TO END DEADLY RAIL CROSSINGS

County to Ask for Cash in Public Works Program.

The county board yesterday adopted a resolution to request federal funds for the improvement of two railroad grade crossings known as the deadliest in Cook county. The resolution, introduced by Commissioner Peter M. Kelly and adopted unanimously, asks the government to include the crossings in the provisions of the $3,300,000,000 public works program now pending in congress.

The crossings are at the intersection of the Milwaukee railroad tracks and Waukegan road near Glenview and the intersection of the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks and River road in Des Plaines. There have been 27 fatalities at each of these crossings within the last six years as a result of collisions of trains and automobiles. Grade separations will be constructed at the crossings if the funds are made available.

Take Up Pay Roll Problem.

The board again concerned itself yesterday with planning for the payment of the seven months' back salaries to county employés.

At a meeting of the county finance committee President Emmett Whealan, who is in Springfield, was criticized by the other commissioners for his failure to produce a definite plan for pay days.

"The way President Whealan is doing is not fair to the board," Commissioner Dan Ryan said. "The unpaid county employés are becoming threatening. Yet when we ask the president what he is doing we are told he is in Springfield to get the Kelly tax machinery bill amended. Mr. Whealan should have some plan to meet the pay rolls, or he should not be president."

Commissioner Marie Plumb said that the board had only "dawdled along in the matter" and urged drastic steps to produce funds for pay days.

"Depends on Tax Collection."

"Why don't you talk this way when President Whealan is here?" interposed Assistant Controller Michael J. O'Connor. He said the collection of taxes was the only solution of the problem. Commissioner Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the committee, said that he would telephone to President Whealan at Springfield and urge him to seek relief from the legislature.

On the motion of Commissioner Plumb the committee agreed to have County Treasurer McDonough appear before it next week and give information as to funds on hand and the practicability of using them for pay rolls.

The finance committee refused to provide for the payment of $50,000 to 1,000 Municipal court jurors until a test case has been made of the recent law which shifts the expense of Municipal court jurors from the city to the county. Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court, who appeared before the committee, said that in all other counties in the state the county bore the expense of all jurors.

The board adopted a motion to pay the Photostat company, an affiliate of the Eastman Kodak company, $10,000 so that supplies of photostat paper for the county recorder would not be stopped. The county owes the company $20,000 for this paper, which is used in the recording of documents.

DEMOCRATS PUSH EIGHT MEASURES IN LEGISLATURE

Program Includes Sales Tax, Minimum Pay.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 3.—[Special.]—Activities in both houses of the general assembly as it closed its week's work today disclosed the first group of objectives determined upon at conferences between Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, and some of their Democratic associates.

Leaders in both houses were given copies of a memorandum listing eight pieces of legislation which the conferees decided required immediate pressure. Other matters, it was said, will be added from time to time, but because of the approach of the usual date for sine die adjournment the Democratic majority was told to concentrate on these matters at once.

There was some criticism from the Republican minority that the procedure constituted "issuing orders," but the reply was that the action of the conferees at last established a definite program which had been sorely needed for some time.

Called Occupational Tax.

Although listed in third place on the memorandum, the greatest importance was attached to the new sales tax, officially known as the "occupational tax upon retailers"—the 2 per cent levy which is expected to net about $2,000,000 a month. The conference agreed that the proceeds from this tax for the first eight months should go to the Illinois emergency relief commission and that thereafter they should go toward the reduction of the state tax rate. A previous proposal that after the first eight months the receipts should go specifically to the school fund was discarded.

The effect of this decision was definite instructions to Dewitt Billman, executive secretary of the legislative reference bureau, to draft for presentation next week the appropriation bills that are to accompany the sales tax bill on its way through the two houses. The promised reduction in the state tax rate—now 50 cents—is the inducement which the proponents of the plan believe will rally enough votes for the tax, although the proceeds until next March are to be expended for relief in a limited number of counties.

"Counties which do not need relief," said Gov. Horner, "should make this temporary sacrifice to the humanitarian needs of other counties."

Offered in Both Houses.

Another effect of the adoption of the Horner-Kelly program was the introduction in both houses of the bill to establish a minimum wage scale for women and minors, a policy to which Gov. Horner, following an appeal from President Roosevelt, committed himself last week. In the house it was presented by Howard L. Doyle [Dem., Decatur] and in the senate by John M. Lee [Dem., Chicago]. Each said he would rush his measure as rapidly as possible.

The Chicago board of education bill to permit the increase of the working cash fund of that body by the issuance of $40,000,000 worth of nonreferendum bonds, the proceeds to be loaned to the educational fund for the payment of the salaries of teachers and other employés, was introduced in both houses yesterday, and this project also is to be pressed, under the Horner-Kelly plans.

Other legislation covered by the program consists of the proposal to grant the Chicago sanitary district new nonreferendum bonding power to the extent of 100 million dollars to meet the orders of the United States Supreme court, the creation of a department of insurance with increased powers, the bills to extend the powers of the Illinois commerce commission, the bill to place the capital stock of all corporations under the assessing power of the state tax commission, and the Chicago housing commission bills.

ROOSEVELT TO NAME SZYMCZAK TO POST ON RESERVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will nominate M. S. Szymczak, city controller of Chicago, to fill the position on the federal reserve board allocated to the Chicago reserve district, it was learned today. The appointment may be sent to the senate tomorrow.

Mr. Szymczak will be one of two board members nominated tomorrow, it was said, but the name of the other nominee was withheld. There are two vacancies on the reserve board, including the vice governorship. Since Eugene Black, now governor of the board, has indicated that he will not retain the post for many months, the nominee who is designated tomorrow as vice governor soon may succeed to the governorship. Whether Mr. Szymczak or the other new member will be designated vice governor was not revealed tonight.

KAINDL MAY GET JOB.

Edward J. Kaindl, city collector, was mentioned yesterday in city hall reports as the probable successor to the position of city controller providing the Szymczak appointment to the federal reserve board is confirmed. Kaindl has been city collector for two years, and before that served a number of years in the city council. He was defeated for city treasurer in 1931 by James A. Kearns.

BRADFORD SHORT IN ACCOUNTS DUE TO BANK CLOSING

Ralph Bradford of Pontiac, state director of conservation under Gov. Emmerson and who continues to hold his post under Gov. Horner, is a second cabinet member who is short in his accounts because of the closing of banks in which he had deposited state funds. Investigators from the office of Joseph J. Rice, state director of finance, stated that Bradford had $37,864 of state funds, collected mostly from game and fish licenses, on deposit in the National Bank of Pontiac when it closed Jan. 23, of this year. None of this money has yet been recovered, they said.

The loss was discovered after a certified check drawn on the Pontiac bank was presented to the state treasurer in accordance with orders given by Gov. Horner when he took office, that all state officers holding state money should immediately turn it over to the treasurer. The check failed to clear because the bank closed its doors the day after it was drawn. The failure of the bank, according to examiners, does not relieve Bradford of responsibility for the funds.

Garrett DeForest Kinney, state director of finance under Gov. Emmerson, is the other cabinet official. His shortage in accounts amounts to $352,803, and it also was caused by bank closings.

PAY CUT VOTED; AFFECTS JUDGES, STATE OFFICERS

Some Strings Attached to Assembly Action.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—Success for one economy in government was achieved today when the house concurred in senate amendments cutting 10 per cent from the salaries of most state officers and judges of the Supreme, Circuit, and Superior courts of Illinois.

Drawn to affect judges to be elected next Monday, the bills will be rushed to Gov. Horner, who may sign them tomorrow. Lawyers here say that even if the signature is delayed until Monday, the cuts will be effective if signed before the polls close.

This was the first major victory scored by Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee], who has labored for economy since the start of the present session. Much of his $15,000,000 savings program is still to be enacted, but he has "reached those at the top," he said today.

Concurrence was given today despite the fact that if these bills became law, judges of the Supreme court will be receiving less than those of the Cook County Circuit and Superior courts in one year's time.

Help Chicago Judges.

This situation was created when Senators R. V. Graham, president pro tem of the senate, and Harold G. Ward, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, both Chicago Democrats, succeeded in tacking on an amendment for Chicago jurists. Under the bill both Supreme and Cook county judges would receive $13,500 instead of $15,000. But the amendment starts the pay upwards again for Chicago judges next year, and by 1936 they would be receiving their present salary, while the Supreme court would remain at $13,500.

When Mr. Burns asked for concurrence in this amendment, Minority Leader Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago] declared that the bill was "a joke upon the taxpayers," and "that the senate was for economy only in the smallest degree."

"But if we do not concur, we won't have any economy at all," Schnackenberg added. "So I shall vote for it."

Roger F. Little [Rep., Champaign], former floor leader, also called attention to the discrepancy. He refused to vote for concurrence.

State Officers Affected.

State officers affected by the ten per cent cut are attorney general, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, and superintendent of public instruction. They now receive $10,000 annually, and although the house originally made cuts to $7,500, the senate raised them to $9,000. The house also cut the lieutenant governor from $5,000 to $2,500, but the senate killed that provision and gave the "second in command" the same pay which is now being drawn.

The reductions will apply to officials elected in 1936, not to incumbents.

STATE AUDITOR TELLS SENATE HE CAN CUT EXPENSES $87,000

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—State Auditor Edward J. Barrett notified the senate today that he would volunteer to take a further reduction of $87,000 in the appropriation for his office. He already had lowered his estimate $35,000 below the present biennial appropriation.

His offer to trim still further was contained in a letter to Senator Harry C. Stuttle [Dem., Litchfield], who introduced the appropriation bill.

"The banking situation has improved somewhat," read the letter, "and it is our belief that we may be able to reduce the number of examinations required. Being in complete harmony with all other officials in carrying out the strictest economy, I believe that the auditor's office can operate with a reduction of more than $100,000, and that we shall be able to carry on."

SENATORS BOLT; CHANGE INDUSTRY CONTROL BILL

Strike Out Roosevelt's License Section.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—The senate finance committee in executive session tonight overrode the wishes of the administration on four important features of the Roosevelt public works-industry control bill.

Only by a margin of 2 votes was the industry control section of the measure saved from complete elimination as Democratic members of the committee joined Republicans in a complete revolt against the Roosevelt plan. A Democrat, Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Mo.], offered a motion to strike out the entire industry control provision of the bill and was defeated by the slim majority of 10 to 8.

Heart of Control Bill.

The drastic licensing plan, under which the President would have authority to enforce his industrial control regulations by the issuance of licenses for interstate shipments, was stricken out by the committee by a vote of 12 to 7. Chairman Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] described this section as the "meat of the whole industry control title."

In direct contravention of the expressed wishes of President Roosevelt the committee voted 10 to 8 for the inclusion of a provision providing for an embargo against foreign imports which might tend to reduce the effectiveness of the bill by their entry into this country. Offered by Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], this amendment would give the President discretionary power to invoke the embargo against foreign goods produced by labor working under conditions more favorable to cheap production than the conditions of American labor under the terms of the measure.

The committee, by a vote of 7 to 11, refused to include the special oil regulation amendment presented to the house ways and means committee two days ago by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, with the statement that President Roosevelt was definitely in favor of its inclusion. Eight of the eleven "no" votes cast on this amendment were cast by Democrats.

Bolt President's Leadership.

Completing its consideration of the industry control section of the measure with these boltings from its leadership in the White House, the committee proceeded to override the administration in one particular with respect to the public works section.

Despite the protests of Chairman Harrison the committee voted to create a board of 3 members, each to be confirmed by the senate, to administer the public works fund instead of the public works administrator proposed in the measure.

The committee also voted to require that all employés under the bill receiving more than $5,000 a year must be confirmed by the senate.

Senator Harrison was disquieted at the treatment accorded the administration bill by the committee in its first executive session tonight.

"Every effort," he said, "will be made on the floor of the senate by administration senators to restore the bill to the form desired by the President. Every effort will be made to reinsert the licensing features; every effort will be made to include the oil section, and every effort will be made to eliminate the embargo provision and the section calling for a public works board instead of an administrator."

Clark Leads Opposition.

It was Senator Clark who appeared to have led the Democratic revolt against the administration in committee. It was he who offered the first motion to knock out the industry control title completely. It was likewise he who presented the motion to strike out the licensing provision, and it was he who made the motion to establish a public works board.

Voting with him in favor of eliminating the licensing plan were six other Democratic members of the committee, Senators King, Connally, Gore, Bailey, McAdoo, and Byrd. Four Democrats voted in favor of Republican Senator Reed's embargo provision, while eight Democrats voted against the administration oil amendment. They were: Senators King, Walsh, Connally, Bailey, Clark, McAdoo, Byrd, and Lonergan.

Harrison's New Tax Plan.

New tax schedules and amendments to the revenue laws designed to shift the tax burden from individuals and corporations and to penalize private bankers, recommended by Senator Harrison were not taken up by the committee.

The Harrison proposal is intended to raise the 220 million dollars a year needed to finance President Roosevelt's 3 billion 300 million public works bill. The house revenue section of the measure calls for a sharp increase in income taxes upon persons of moderate salaries.

As the result of the disclosures in the Morgan hearing, he said, Senator Harrison recommended that private bankers be denied the privilege of the clause in the security loss section of the 1932 revenue act, which now gives corporate banks and trust companies, dealers in securities, and private bankers the right to deduct from ordinary income losses on stocks and bonds held less than two years.

Senator Harrison also recommended that individual partners be denied the right to take up on their personal returns the distributive share of any partnership losses.

Delete Normal Tax Increase.

Senator Harrison's recommendations deleted the normal tax increase, lowered the additional gas tax to ½ cent, and imposed instead the former "fair value" tax on the capital stock of corporations which was taken off in 1924. The tax would be at a rate of 1-10 one one per cent on the net worth of all corporations.

The committee chairman also recommended that the normal tax on corporation dividends be levied at the source instead of on the individual.

Senator Harrison's program was calculated, he said, to produce revenue as follows:

Tax on dividends withheld at source	$ 70,000,000
Capital stock tax	80,000,000
Administrative changes	15,000,000
Gasoline increase of ½ cent per gallon	62,000,000
Total	$227,000,000

"Such a tax program as I have described," he said, "will force some of the private banking concerns to pay a fair proportion of our tax burden or it will force their incorporatiop so that they will pay at least as much tax as our ordinary corporations."

SENATE JOLTS ECONOMY PLANS OF ROOSEVELT

But it was learned that in this determination the President was relying upon the full amount of the savings on veterans' payments. If the senate action is sustained the yearly saving would be reduced to 830 million.

An effort was made to verify reports that President Roosevelt will veto the bill containing such a drastic change as was voted by the senate. The President declined to affirm or deny the report.

It was learned that the President had been disturbed by the fact that his announcement that he had been forced to put most of his reorganization program over until the regular session of congress had been widely interpreted as a letdown in his economy program.

The fact is, according to the President's advisers, he expects only comparatively minor savings to result from reorganizations and consolidations of bureaus and departments, and that the great economies are being effected within departments.

Orders That Miss Congress.

It was pointed out that consolidations require the presentation of an executive order to congress, while changes within a department may be and are being effected simply on orders from the President or his cabinet members.

Within the department of commerce alone, it was declared, economies of twelve million dollars annually are to be effected, mostly without any orders being submitted to congress. Functions of the government are being eliminated, employés discharged, and economies in materials effected, it was asserted. The President is signing one or more orders to this effect every day.

GERMAN CHURCH SPLIT WIDE OPEN IN BISHOP WAR

Nazis Warn Opponents of Possible Disorders.

Shame a Money Lender

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 2.—Carrying a sign reading, "I am a usurer and bloodsucker," a money lender was marched through the streets of Mors, a town in Rheinland, Prussia, today by four Nazi storm troopers. Nazi leaders alleged that he had charged interest as high as 80 per cent in numerous cases. They decided that he must be punished beyond the regular laws.

BERLIN, June 2.—(AP)—The Protestant church fight over the office of first bishop of the reich grew warmer today as the leader of the German Christian Nazi group warned his opponents of possible disorders at Whitsunday services this week-end. The church seemed split wide open over the issue.

Dr. Joachim Hossenfelder, chief of the Nazi church organization, in a letter to Dr. Hermann Kapler, representative of the church organization which elected Dr. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh to be bishop, returned to the attack.

The Evangelical church here, Dr. Hossenfelder said, has instructed all ministers to include an indorsement of Dr. Bodelschwingh in the Whitsunday prayers.

Urged to Call Off Plans.

"I do not think this plan can be carried out without serious unrest," the Nazi churchman said, "but I anticipate a spontaneous protest and that demonstrations will start during divine services."

Dr. Hossenfelder urged Kapler to call off the Whitsunday plans "in order to avoid desecration of divine services by protests."

Dr. Bodelschwingh planned to deliver an address over the German national broadcasting system Sunday, but the Nazi pastor in charge of religious broadcasts refused permission.

Whitsunday sermons will be broadcast by the two Nazi churchmen, Dr. Hermann Mueller, the unsuccessful candidate for the bishopric, and Dr. Hossenfelder.

Four Reds Sentenced to Death.

ALTONA, Germany, June 2.—(AP)—Four communist ringleaders of the bloody Nazi-communist riots here July 17, 1932, today were sentenced to death and six others to hard labor from three and a half to ten years. Twelve persons were killed and 50 injured in the riot.

Bans Visits to Germany.

VIENNA, June 2.—(AP)—The Austrian government retaliated against Germany today by refusing to grant visas to Austrians bound for Germany. The German government recently announced that travelers to Austria would have to pay $270 for visas. Even members of the Austrian parliament have been refused permission by the Austrian government to cross the border.

ARGENTINA'S SHARP NOTE TO BOLIVIA MAY LEAD TO BREAK

BUENOS AIRES, June 2.—(AP)—An Argentine note to Bolivia protesting against bombings by Bolivian military planes is so vigorously phrased it may bring about a diplomatic rupture, it was said today on good authority. The note, dispatched yesterday, protested against damage suffered by Argentine citizens in the bombardment of Puerto Casado April 27.

Only Bolivian acceptance of the protest and an apology, or withdrawal of it by Argentina, can avert a diplomatic break, it was said here, and neither nation was expected to back down.

Julio Gutierrez, the Bolivian minister to Argentina, declared today that Argentina has blockaded 375 miles of the Bolivian frontier by closing Puerto Yrigoyen on the Putumayo river fronting the Chaco.

CATHOLICS DEFY SPAIN AS CHURCH LAW IS SIGNED

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, June 2.—The Roman Catholic episcopate tonight released its thunder against the religious bill shackling the church, once all powerful in Spain, which President Zamora signed this morning after long hesitation. The bill was passed by parliament some time ago by an overwhelming vote.

Before the ink was dry on this major piece of revolutionary legislation, which nationalizes church property, halts educational activities of religious orders and terminates the special privileges of more than 100 religious orders and subjects them to severe control, seven archbishops and two bishops brought forth a sensational pastoral.

This pastoral will be published tomorrow morning and on Sunday will be read from every pulpit in Spain. It damns the law as sacrilegious and despoliatory, a final outrage against the divine rights of the church and a threat to the peace and prosperity of the nation.

Urges "Passive Resistance."

It serves notice on Catholic parents that with the closing of religious schools their children must not be sent to state establishments and hints at canonical punishment if this warning is disregarded. It summons all Catholics to avail themselves of "all just and honest means" to see to it that "while the law is enforced" it does as little harm as possible to the interests of the church and the faithful.

Tonight's pastoral is the most energetic protest voiced by the church in its two years' struggle with the Spanish republic. It outdoes in violence even the utterances of the former primate, Cardinal Segura, who was expelled from the country. The government is understood to be preparing again to throw a heavy guard around the churches and convents lest new burnings ensue.

Hint at Action by Pope.

An ardent Catholic himself, President Zamora signed the bill this morning just 24 hours short of the delay granted him by the constitution. By waiting up to the deadline he is assumed to have voiced his personal displeasure with the law. His action, however, is generally felt to have lost him the confidence of the left wing Republicans, while it has in no way lessened the wrath of the Catholics. The Catholic press today called on him to make a stand against the law, and by a socialist deputy he was charged with "Bourbonism."

Between the lines of tonight's pastoral is seen an intimation that those responsible for the bill who were Catholics will hear from Rome. It is reported on the best of authority that the name of a number of Catholic deputies who voted for the law will be sent along with that of Zamora to the Vatican.

DEATH RESULTS FROM FALL.

KINDERGARTEN IS BOMBED IN CUBA; CHILDREN HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, June 2.—A dynamite bomb exploded today in a public kindergarten in Havana. Fifty-six children escaped death. The building was partially destroyed. Several children were in the building, but none was killed. The building was badly damaged. Several children were seriously injured.

The bomb was carried into the school by terrorists during a public exhibition of manual arts closing the school year. Five suspects were arrested.

Representative Oscar Montalvo died today of wounds received yesterday in a gun fight in the conference hall of Cuba's new capitol building. Col. Felipe Sanchez, retired army officer, a bystander, who was shot in the head, is still in a grave condition.

Plea Is Self-Defense.

Mario Cuellar shot Montalvo for publishing an article attacking the politically prominent Cuellar family. He admitted the shooting to police today after his surrender last night, but claimed he fired in self-defense.

Audiencia court has requested the authority to prosecute the imprisoned man's brothers, Senator Celso Cuellar and Representative Francisco Cuellar, in connection with the shooting. Congress will consider the petition tomorrow. The brothers fled yesterday. Police have been unable to locate them.

Soldiers Clash with Rebels.

Meanwhile, army forces skirmished with a large number of rebels in Santa Clara province. Five rebels were killed and a large quantity of arms and ammunition confiscated.

Enrique Hernandez Pereira, a rebel leader, was slain in a clash with troops near Trinidad. An army communique said that within the last 24 hours two officers and nine soldiers were killed in clashes. The rebel casualties were announced as ten dead and scores wounded.

President Gerardo Machado and Ambassador Sumner Welles renewed their informal conferences to revise the reciprocity treaty today. It is expected the negotiations will not be concluded until after the London economic conference.

INDIANA BANDITS ARE IDENTIFIED IN CHICAGO MURDER

Leonard and Jack Patrick, brothers, captured with Danny McGeoghegan and two other men on May 29 after they held up a bank at Culver, Ind., were identified yesterday through photographs as participants in the robbery of the University State bank at 1354 East 55th street several weeks ago in which Cashier Carlson J. White was killed. Chief of Detectives Schoemaker in making the announcement concerning the Patrick brothers said he had asked the witnesses to go to South Bend and look at the prisoners in jail there to substantiate their photographic identifications.

KANSAS ESCAPED CONVICT CAUGHT; TWO SURROUNDED

Oklahoma Posse Is After Them in Hills.

Siloam Springs, Aak., June 2.—[Special.]—One of the eleven convicts who escaped from the Lansing, Kas., state penitentiary on Memorial day was captured at noon today near Dripping Springs, Okla., eight miles northwest of here. Two others of the group, it was reported, had been surrounded by a posse in the rugged hills and their seizure was expected soon.

The man in custody is Lewis Bechtel, who was serving a sentence of 10 to 21 years for bank robbery when he made his break for freedom. He and five others, separating from the six older criminals who planned the escape, kidnaped three women soon after leaving Lansing and kept them as hostages for about ten hours. The women were not harmed by the fleeing convicts.

Convicts Fire on Policemen.

Bechtel was caught in a farmhouse, where he had forced the occupants to prepare a meal for him. He surrendered without a battle. Posses had been searching through the hills along the Arkansas-Oklahoma line since early yesterday, when Bechtel an. his two companions fired on policemen here. They fled back to the hills and engaged in a battle with Oklahomans commanded by Sheriff Curtis of Delaware county. It is believed they then separated and went individually into hideouts in the hills.

Since the escape the eleven convicts have been credited with the murder of a policeman at Chetopa, Kas.; a $2,100 holdup of the Bank of Chelsea, Okla., and numerous stickups of autoists, some of whom were robbed of their cars.

No Trace of Six Others.

No definite trace of the older and more desperate convicts, the six who took Warden Kirk Prather and two guards with them when they left the prison, has been found. They are led by Wilbur Underhill and Harvey Bailey, killers. There have been reports that they doubled back on their trail after releasing the warden at Welch, Okla., and may by this time be in Missouri or Iowa.

SENT TO PRISON AFTER INNOCENT SON IS SET FREE

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—A Brooklyn father who let his son serve six months in the penitentiary for an offense he, himself, committed, was sentenced to the federal penitentiary today for a year and nine months.

Federal Judge Marcus B. Campbell of Brooklyn passed the sentence on seventy-three year old Vittorio Grillo, who confessed last February that he had been stealing money from registered letters in the postal substation of his son, Angelo's, drug store, Brooklyn.

Angelo was convicted of stealing $4.28 from a registered letter planted by postal inspectors after considerable money had disappeared from letters posted at Grillo's store. After Angelo had served six months of a two and a half years' sentence Vittorio confessed.

He said he had been out of a job for a long time and had no way of earning money to indulge his taste for wine. So he took to stealing money out of letters, steaming them open in the drug store washroom and then resealing them.

$29.50 TAXI FARE IS NO DRAIN UPON WALTER'S PURSE

New York, June 2.—(AP)—The taxicab fare from Broadway and 71st, Manhattan, to Bay Shore, Long Island, is $29.50, as Walter Delancey McCombe is in a very good position to know.

Mr. McCombe's position is in jail. The meter said $29.50 and Mr. McCombe said he couldn't pay it.

It wouldn't have been so bad if McCombe had confined his New York to Bay Shore traveling to a single trip. He made the journey earlier in the week and the meter said $29.50 then, too. When McCombe declined to produce the money he was sent to jail for two days.

He had no more than got out of jail than the urge to go to Bay Shore smote him anew, and he made the trip again. Back in court, he was given a three day sentence.

"What was your idea in taking these cab rides to Bay Shore?" the court asked.

"I wanted to get out there," responded Mr. McCombe.

CLAIMS CURATIVE VITAMIN CAN BE PLACED IN MILK

The valuable vitamin D essential in the curing and prevention of certain diseases, especially in children, can now be made abundant in pasteurized milk, according to Dr. H. E. Van Norman, director in charge of the dairy exhibits at the World's Fair. The milk, however, cannot be marketed because of the present pure food laws.

Prof. Zuker of Columbia university developed the method by adding the vitamin to a neutral oil and placing the oil in the milk. Under a provision of the law which forbids the placing of foreign substances in milk this is not permitted.

Speaking to a delegation of dairymen at the Exposition yesterday, the director of the dairy exhibit said that movements had been started to effect changes in the law to permit the sale of vitamin D impregnated milk.

N. U. Given Cash to Pay for Honor to Prof. Grant

Receipt of an anonymous gift of $300 to pay the cost of a series of lectures in memory of the late Prof. U. S. Grant, head of the department of geology and geography at Northwestern university, was announced yesterday by Dr. W. H. Haas, professor in that department. The lecture series will be given, probably in November, by Dr. W. H. Collins, director of the Canadian geological survey.

BOOKS

Tells Poignant Story of Love and Economics

Popular German Novel Appears in English.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Little Man, What Now?" by Hans Fallada. [Simon & Schuster.] Published yesterday.

HANS FALLADA.

WITH a success in Germany equaled recently only by "All Quiet on the Western Front," Hans Fallada's "Little Man, What Now?" comes to us in translation by Eric Sutton. Its European popularity has an excellent chance of being duplicated here, since the book will have its initial introduction to the American reading public as the June choice of the Book of the Month club.

Now and again a book is written which has an especial poignancy due not only to its contents but the pertinence in matter of time of its publication. A novel about the war, for instance, had an especial hold upon readers immediately after the war, which was lost until a decade or so later it was given a perspective.

The international economic sloughs of the last few years will, of course, in future appear in all fiction depicting the period. After a decade or so the sad, bad years will be as much of the background and as vital to any fiction of the period as the war was, and is, of fiction which, however casually, records its years. But thus far fiction has taken little notice of hard times.

Europe has enthusiastically taken to itself this novel about yesterday in Germany, "Little Man, What Now?" Herr Fallada's masterpiece has even been called the "All Quiet of the Depression."

The story of the "Little Man" and his struggle for life and happiness is one of the touching documents of our literary generation and it is, also, almost a cry out of the wilderness.

Not that "Little Man, What Now?" is in any sense a preachment. It is the simple, utterly unadorned story of a "little" man (in the economic sense) who, as the book opens, is meeting the girl he is in love with outside a doctor's where, together, they are told she is going to have a baby. They decide to get married (after they have figured carefully how far his meager wage will take them in their matrimonial journey.) Most of the book is the record of the early months of their marriage, of the birth of their baby and their unadulterated joy in each other and in their child. The world is almost literally shut out for them, partly because they have no money to take the world into their lives and partly because they are fulfilled in their mutual love.

There are pages of such poignancy as to be, if they were just the merest trifle off key, melodramatic instead of humanly vibrant—the incident of the birth of the child, for instance. Because there is no money for a taxi, Hans walks Bunny to the hospital as her pains are upon her, waits for news, is sent away with the echo of an agonizing scream forever implanted in his consciousness, and, when he is finally told over the telephone that a child has been born to them, rushes out to try to find a flower to buy to take to her when the hospital is opened in the morning. The flower vendors on the streets have long ago rolled up their camp stools and departed. Desperately he wanders around the public parks, but nothing is yet in bloom. Suddenly he spies a bush with golden blossoms along its stalk. Without a moment's hesitation he snaps it from its stem, takes it home, and puts it in a bottle of water, and the next morning when the doors of the hospital are opened walks in with his flowering stalk up to the cot which shelters Bunny [the hospital is so crowded that she has not yet been given a bed] and into her fragile arms. There is rich sentiment in the story of Hans and Bunny, but not one word of sentimentality.

But what makes "Little Man, What Now?" most memorable is its air of utter reality. Life is just a day by day affair for them as it is for all men everywhere. There is much amusement as well as sorrow in their daily routine. Very funny things happen to the little man—his efforts at escaping marrying his employer's daughter, his mother's racketeering, his venture into a nudist club.

Overlaying the amusing incidents is always the instability of the lives of the little man and the wife who has a tremendous and a really noble courage. Bunny is a happy woman who loves her husband and her child [the moment she knows that it is to be born] and who is determined that they shall have happiness. And, even in the last bitter moment when Hans is finally broken in spirit and cries, "The police . . . they shoved me off the pavement . . . they chased me away. How can I ever look anybody in the face again?" Bunny can answer, "You can always look at me. Always and always. You're with me and we're together." And the book ends with the simple sentence: "Then they both went into the hut where the baby lay asleep."

Is that man whom I met this morning on the corner another Hans? The immediate and timely appeal of the book is inherent in that idea which involuntarily fills your mind when you have finished the touching tale. "Little Man, What Now?" is something more than a merely timely novel, however. It is an unforgettable record of love which economics could not kill, as well as a vivid picture of human beings like sparrows in a sudden snowstorm, their nests blown away, their trees leafless, their perches glazed with ice, with nowhere any purchase for their slowly numbing little claws.

A Cop Stops Pearl Buck and This Tells You Why

Pearl Buck, on the way to give a lecture, was stopped in the middle of the street by a policeman who asked her if she wasn't the author of "The Good Earth." She replied that she was. He went on, "Well, I just wanted to tell you that 'The Good Earth' is the best written book I have ever read." Then the two of them were joined by another police-author and they all indulged for some minutes in a heated discussion of life and literature.

"Voodoos and Obeahs" to Be Published in England

"Voodoos and Obeahs," by Joseph J. BRIEF REVIEWS

BY M. D.

Max Miller, author of "I Cover the Waterfront," published last year, scores again with "He Went Away for Awhile" [Dutton]. It is autobiography quietly and contemplatively written. The main character of the book decides at the age of twenty-nine to take a year's leave of absence from his newspaper and reëvaluate his life in the solitude of a simple shack on top of a bluff overlooking the sea. Love and death, ambition and greed, war and culture and civilization are the themes of his study. Gently and simply, with a gracious and tender wisdom he seeks the answer to the particular riddles of his own life. He returns at the end of the year, refreshed and philosophical, to his job on the newspaper. This is a book that should delight people who love good writing and unobtrusive and rare thoughtfulness.

MAX MILLER.

Nard Jones in "Wheat Women" [Duffield and Green] has written a saga of the soil, a saga concerned with the cultivation of wheat in the northwest. The first few chapters deal with the western trek of a group of people after the civil war. The caravans were separated, one group persisting bravely against starvation and disease, the other giving in to the needs of the flesh in a terrible and unmentionable crime. The heirs of these two families meet many years later with the strains of their heritage in their blood.

NARD JONES.

The rest of the book describes the conflict of the love of the soil and the love of self. Except for the rather sketchy treatment of character, unavoidable in the number of pages the author allots himself, the novel has an epic quality that is suggested in its outline form.

Writers' Views of Immortals Made Into Book

And Cecil Harmsworth Puts Charm Into It.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Idle readers of a literary turn of mind have been much pleased by a book lately published in London under the title "Immortals at First Hand." It is the work of Cecil Harmsworth, who has gathered for his own pleasure many of the opinions expressed upon the subject of their famous contemporaries by writers past and present. The charm of such a book is considerable, and while some have objected to "Immortals at First Hand" that it does not contain everything ever said of everybody, it must be admitted that it is much better as it is. If, in a new edition, blank interleaves could be supplied for the reader's own supplements, every serious objection to the book would be met.

CECIL HARMSWORTH.

An interesting fact about this book is that it is published by the editor's own son. Desmond Harmsworth, a member of that celebrated family to which the popular press of England owes so much, is a nephew of Lord Rothermere; and his interesting experiment in publishing books has been noteworthy.

His father, who has compiled "Immortals at First Hand," and who has added to it some impressions of his own of the leading politicians of our day, was at one time undersecretary for foreign affairs. He has long been known as a man of humane politics and great culture, and this pleasant book is the fruit of wide reading.

Another writer whose family link is with politics is Steven Runciman, the son of the president of the board of trade. His book, also greatly admired, is a learned and scholarly history of Byzantine civilization. A third is Lady Eleanor Smith's brother, the young Lord Birkenhead, the first volume of whose biography of his famous father, the first Lord Birkenhead, is now published. As for Miss Kate Rosenberg, who has just collaborated with R. T. Hopkins in writing a book about the Bank of England [an important book], she is a sister of that Miss Rosenberg who is secretary to the prime minister. It is said with truth that the discretion of both Misses Rosenberg is extraordinary, for between them they must know all the secrets of British politics and finance, none of which they ever betray by so much as the twinkling of an eyelid.

The nonfiction book of the moment in England is Dr. A. N. Whitehead's "Adventures of Ideas," which is being read by all the wise and learned. The novel most admired by general readers with a zest for new ideas is Claude Houghton's "Julian Grant Loses His Way."

But the quietest and calmest novel readers are looking eagerly forward to the second work of fiction by F. C. Boden, who wrote "Miner." "Miner" was a first hand picture of life among those delving folk from whom the author springs. It was simple and truthful and brimming with beauty. Its successor deals with the same kind of people and is entitled "Flo." If, as I hope, it advances Mr. Boden's reputation it will be a book of the year.

Marie Lowndes Pens Novel About Lovable Busybody

Marie Belloc Lowndes, the sister of Hilaire Belloc and the famous writer of mystery stories, has turned her pen to a nonmystery novel, "The Duchess Intervenes" [Putnam]. It tells the story of a duchess whose personality is far more important and significant than her position. Her one deep interest in life is the affairs of her friends, in which she intervenes constantly trying to bring them peace and contentment. Sometimes her ruses fail, sometimes they bring only annoyance to every one concerned, but her intentions are always kindly and generous. The record of this lovable busybody's activities makes a charming book, humorous, gay and interesting.

BRITAIN IS READY FOR TRADE WAR! WORLD WARNED

Wants Truce, but Is Also Willing to Fight.

LONDON, June 2.—(AP)—Unless the nations lay aside prejudices and make mutual concessions for agreements, the world economic conference, which is scheduled to begin here June 12, is sure to fail, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, told the house of commons today.

"Then, indeed, it would have been well if the conference never had been held," he said in an address which set forth the hopes and fears of the British government for the approaching parley.

Failure of the conference might bring despair, the chancellor said, "of emerging in our own time from depression, hardship and suffering."

Britain to Give No Quarter.

Countries which have adopted an aggressive attitude toward Great Britain need expect no quarter from the British government if the economic warfare continues, he asserted.

"Much as we regret the economic warfare which has arisen between us and other countries," he said, "we must maintain that warfare as long as the other countries have taken the aggressive and are unwilling to make any reparations or restitution for the wrong they have done us."

Chamberlain and the British government were criticized by a Labor member for merely following the lead of President Roosevelt and not laying down a definite constructive plan for the economic conference. Disregarding this criticism, Chamberlain laid down a threefold objective which he said Great Britain would seek in the coming discussions.

Seeks to Raise Prices.

This three pointed program was:

First, to raise the world level of prices.

Second, to reach an understanding upon currencies with a view to eventual restoration of the gold standard.

Third, to reduce barriers to international trade.

Revival of international trade, the minister asserted, is essential to any increase in prices, and this revival is itself, he said, bound up with political tranquillity and restoration of international confidence.

Greater adaptation between production and consumption would assist in raising the price level, Chamberlain believed. The real aim to be sought is restriction of overproduction, he told the commons.

Wants Stable Money.

"To permit overproduction to continue under present conditions is absolute folly," he said.

Under the second objective, he continued, the aim of the government is to protect the principal currencies of the world from fluctuations which have no relation to intrinsic values. Such fluctuations are fatal to ordinary processes of trade, he held.

"We hope the international conference will arrive at some agreement with regard to steps that may be taken leading ultimately to what we must regard as essential to restoration of trade, namely a stable international money standard," Chamberlain said.

Regarding restrictions on imports, the chancellor indicated that he thought he saw "some yielding" in the rigidity of views of other countries on this subject. He hoped that states which employ restrictions would be prepared to relax them for the sake of better understanding between nations.

Defends British Tariff Boosts.

Chamberlain saw no inconsistency in the desire of the British government, which recently established a system of tariffs, to see tariffs of other countries reduced. He thought that few persons in England wished to return to free trade.

"We do not desire to make our own tariffs prohibitive," he said, "and we are certain that a continual raising of tariff walls until they form no longer a check but a complete bar to trade—well, that is a policy which is injurious not only to the country against which the barrier is raised but also to the country which tries to be self-sufficient.

"Necessity drives us on. Even now, with all the tremendous shrinkage in international trade, that shrinkage has not yet ceased.

"Unless we are prepared each of us to put aside our prejudices and give something to secure agreement, it is sure that this conference will fail. Then, indeed, it would have been well if the conference never had been held.

GERMAN PRINCE WEDS COMMONER AT BONN TODAY

BONN, Germany, June 2.—(AP)—Festivities leading up to the marriage tomorrow of Prince Wilhelm, eldest son of the former German crown prince, and Dorothea von Salviati, a commoner of Italian descent, commenced tonight with a torchlight procession.

University students affiliated with the National Steel helmet war veterans participated, led by a student band playing martial tunes. Thousands of citizens lined the street. Prince Wilhelm and Fraulein von Salviati responded to ovations from the porch of the latter's parents' villa.

The prince, a steel helmet battalion leader, broke with Hohenzollern house rules in becoming engaged to a girl who is not of equal rank and it was reported that he had renounced his rights to the throne. Until recently monarchists had regarded the 26 year old prince as the most available candidate for the throne in event the monarchy was restored.

The marriage ceremony is to be most simple and only family members and intimate friends are to be present.

Notre Dame Senior Gets 4 Months as Tipsy Driver

South Bend, Ind., June 2.—[Special.]—Theodore Feldman, 21, Detroit, was fined $300 and sentenced to serve four months on the penal farm in city court today for drunken driving. His automobile struck and injured Mrs. John A. Stockley. Feldman was a member of the Notre Dame senior class and was to receive his degree Sunday.

Heads Delegation

MISS MARY ANDERSON.
[Harris & Ewing Photo.]

GENEVA, June 2.—(AP)—It was announced today that the Washington government for the first time since 1919 will send a delegation to the international labor conference which open here next Thursday.

The agenda of this meeting includes proposals for a 40 hour working week, unemployment insurance and assistance to the unemployed.

An unofficial communique indicated that Miss Mary Anderson of the department of labor would head the American delegation which will assume the rôle of observers with the privilege of participating in discussions. Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba, and Uruguay will send complete delegations and other Latin American states also will be represented.

U. S. DELEGATES GIVEN TASKS AT LONDON PARLEY

Pittman to Handle Silver Issue.

ABOARD THE S. S. ROOSEVELT WITH THE AMERICAN DELEGATION TO THE LONDON ECONOMIC CONFERENCE, June 2.—(AP)—With whitecaps flashing against the porthole and the ship rolling heavily, the American delegates to the world economic conference assembled tonight in Secretary of State Hull's flower-filled cabin for their first meeting of the trip and decided to split up the various topics on the program of the parley.

Secretary Hull said afterward that Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, was the most suitable person to study silver and kindred monetary questions.

Hull May Handle Tariffs.

Other assignments are not yet definite, but the secretary of state is expected to concentrate upon means for moderating tariff rates.

The first thing the nations need to do, Mr. Hull said, is to survey the conditions of economic extremism which have choked international trade from the normal level of fifty billion dollars annually to less than twelve billions, and to decide whether to continue the practice with its demonstrated disastrous results.

Asked whether the American delegation is to offer such a resolution, Secretary Hull replied that he was unable to say, pending talks with his colleagues.

Discuss "Mechanics' of Task.

This first meeting was described as a discussion of the mechanics of the task. More detailed work will be done tomorrow. Dr. Herbert Feis, chief technical adviser and William C. Bullitt, special assistant to the secretary of state, attended the session as well as the four delegates themselves.

Apprised of Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain's statement that Great Britain is ready to join the United States in efforts to raise world prices, Mr. Hull said it was encouraging as far as it goes.

Removal of trade restrictions would help prices, the secretary of state said, arguing that subsidized efforts to sell and refusal of nations to buy have driven prices down.

Fire Sweeps Roosevelt Field Hangar; $500,000 Loss

New York, June 2.—(AP)—An estimated half million dollar damage was caused by fire of an undetermined origin that swept through a hangar at Roosevelt field, on Long Island. The hanger was leased to William B. Leeds. Some twenty airplanes were quartered in it.

COMMONS GIVES BRITISH CABINET FREE DEBT HAND

Government Refuses to Reveal Its Policy.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, again today managed to avoid satisfying the curiosity of the British parliament and people as to the government's policy with regard to the payment of the $75,950,000 installment on the war debt due the United States June 15. He was questioned by Laborites during the debate on adjournment in the house of commons.

The house at the end of the debate adjourned until June 13. The government is free in the meantime to make any decision it pleases on the war debt without fear of parliamentary criticism.

Defends Separation of Debts.

Labor speakers urged that war debts be included in the agenda of the world economic conference, which will open here June 12. Chamberlain replied:

"Separation of the war debts from the conference agenda was inevitable. After all, the debt is not a debt of the conference as a whole. It is the debt of an individual nation to other nations and can only be settled by negotiations between debtor and creditor. What have the other 30 or 40 nations to do or say on the subject of war debts? No, it is to be discussed between the parties concerned.

"The member asked if I could not make some suggestions which would free us from the necessity of default. The government of the United States already is in full possession of the views of his majesty's government. They were expressed officially in the communication we made to the United States when the Dec. 15 installment was paid.

Fears a Misunderstanding.

"They have since been further developed in the conversations in Washington between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald, and if I say nothing now it is because at this moment any word of mine, however innocuous might be its intention, might be the subject of misunderstanding on the other side of the water, and I am not prepared to take any risk of saying anything which, however, inadvertently, might prejudice the chances of a satisfactory solution of this very delicate question. I think we would do well to assume that our difficulty is fully appreciated by the American government."

Croat Independence Plea Is Received by League

GENEVA, June 2.—(AP)—A petition signed by 250,000 Croats in North America and about 60,000 in South America, demanding recognition of the independence of five provinces in Jugoslavia which are populated chiefly by Croats, was presented to the league of nations today. The petition, which was submitted also to the disarmament conference, protests against the Belgrade dictatorship and declares that Croat independence is necessary for the peace of Europe.

M. P.'S CHARGE JAPAN IS GOBBLING UP BRITISH TRADE

Demand Measures to Recover Markets.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—During debate on a motion for adjournment today in the house of commons, when any question can be raised, several members of parliament carried out a prolonged attack against the growing menace of Japanese trade competition within the boundaries of the British empire.

Increased unemployment and further injury to the Lancashire cotton industry were predicted unless stringent measures are adopted.

"Japanese competition is an economic peril and menace," said Thomas Levy, a Conservative. "The Japanese work for very little pay, their standard of living is very low, and their currency is greatly depreciated.

Claims Markets Are Lost.

"Neither this country nor any European country could compete with conditions as they exist in Japan. This competition is taking away from us markets in the dominions, colonies, and protectorates. Japan is relentlessly crushing us in markets which once were our customers. What is more, markets that are of our own kith and kin."

Levy quoted a staggering list of figures on the increase of Japanese exports to British possessions.

"The matter is urgent," he went on, "and unless our ministers reach some arrangement of mutual advantage to Japan, England will have no alternative but to place quantitative restrictions upon imports. The colonies and dominions are not playing the game if they expect us to take their goods while they buy from Japan because of cheaper prices."

Three other members joined the attack. Maj. H. A. Procter produced an undergarment which, he said, could be sold in Great Britain for 14 cents after paying the duty. He said socks could be retailed for 4 cents a pair.

Britain Opens Inquiry.

Lieut. Col. John Colville, parliamentary secretary of the overseas trade department, asserted that tariff barriers are unable to deal with the case because the problem is too complex. He pointed out that Japanese efficiency and the depreciated yen have aided Niponese exporters. He also revealed that the British government has conducted an inquiry into the charge that Japanese industry enjoys a government subsidy.

"We have no evidence that it is subsidized on a scale sufficient to make any difference in the price at which the goods are sold," Colville said. "The growth of Japanese exports in the markets in which our manufacturers are vitally interested led to a demand for counter measures, either in the form of high duties or quantitative restrictions, and particularly for discriminatory action against Japan by abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese trade treaty."

Colville pointed out that the Indian government already had adopted such a course.

School Building Set on Fire Three Times in 24 Hours

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—For the third time in 24 hours, a fire of incendiary origin was discovered late today in the Washington Irving High school. Fire Marshal Brophy said he was convinced the fires were started by a pyromaniac. A patrolman has been detailed to special duty in the building. Today's fire occurred soon after the 6,000 pupils had been dismissed

THE JUDICIAL ELECTION.

No more difficult or important duty presents itself to the conscientious citizen than voting for judges. Judicial fitness involves not only qualifications of character upon which the layman may pass but special facts of judicial competence as to which he must largely depend for guidance upon the bar. In respect to both, because lawyers have more knowledge of the candidates' qualifications than nonpractitioners, the recommendations of the bar primaries have been in most instances respected by voters and in most instances have deserved it. Professional judgment is nevertheless not infallible, being affected inevitably by considerations, conscious or unconscious, which are not objective and disinterested. This is a complaint among lawyers even more than among laymen and cannot be ignored. Nevertheless with reasonable reservations and exceptions the public has been well advised to follow bar guidance.

In the present as in other campaigns, however, a principle or policy is involved which cannot be wisely underestimated. It is the principle of service during good behavior. This is not fixed in the law, but it expresses sound public policy. Voters should recognize and reward competent and faithful service and for the public good retain the benefits of experience. Sitting judges who submit themselves for reëlection should be retained unless a clear case for retirement has been made out.

THE TRIBUNE, in its suggestions for Monday's election, has followed both policies as in the past so far as they are compatible. As between candidates who have not been on the bench THE TRIBUNE indorses the Bar association report. As to sitting judges we have applied the policy of service during good behavior and thus recommend for reëlection all the sitting judges against whom, in our opinion, the bar committee has not made out a sufficient case for retirement. We think a sufficient case has been made against Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski and recommend in their place the two highest candidates among nonjudges in the Bar association list.

On THE TRIBUNE specimen ballot we have placed crosses before the names of candidates recommended upon the foregoing principles. But for the convenience of voters who prefer to be guided solely by Bar association recommendations we have placed the letter B before the name of each candidate recommended by that organization.

A BILL TO BE VETOED.

One of the measures awaiting the judgment of the governor would permit teachers to desert their tasks, that is to strike, and thereafter to be restored to their jobs without impairment of pension or other privileges. The measure is an invitation to insubordination and would be a flagrant injustice to the public. There is now a rule which permits the board of education in its discretion to reinstate teachers who have resigned for reasons of health or other circumstances justifying such allowance. But the bill now before the governor represents obviously only the desire of the mischief makers in the teaching body. It gives them a privilege to which they have no just claim and inexcusable immunity for disloyalty and insolent disregard of duty to the children and the community. In justice to both, and even to the loyal majority of the teaching body, it should be unhesitatingly vetoed. In passing it the legislature has shown a deplorable submission to the clamor of an arrogant group whose political activities in the past are largely responsible for the schools' bankruptcy and the governor owes it to himself and the people of the state to refuse to share the discredit of such weakness.

NATIONS IN ARMS.

Many people have thought that groundwork for disarmament in Europe would be the rejection of the nation-in-arms theory of defense. There are at least two ways of looking at the problem. One view seeks to find something which will be an automatic guaranty against war. The other is more moderate and probably more within the realities. It looks for some arrangements which will eliminate provocation, threatening attitudes, disturbances of civilian life, and the great expense of maintaining conscript armies.

France, for instance, at the beginning of the Franco-Prussian war was relying upon a small professional army which it thought more proficient than it proved to be. It is true that that small army had not prevented Napoleon III. from disturbing the peace of Europe with his military policies, but a more sensible man could have avoided the traps Bismarck set for him. The armament in Europe in 1870 was not in itself the costly burden or the serious threat which it later had become in 1914. The armies of 1870 could have been controlled by peace seeking diplomacy. In 1914 the armies, even where they did not control diplomacy, could not be controlled by it. The military machine had taken things in its own hand. Conservative people will feel that Europe has gained a great advantage if nations in arms cease to be and if every view one nation takes of another no longer finds the whole scene one of guns and bayonets.

REPEALING THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT.

As the people of Illinois go to vote on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment it should be understood, here as in all other states, that the one legal remedy for the situation created by prohibition is repeal. It is not a question of repeal or retention of the amendment and its enforcement act. The alternative is not enforcement but a much wilder confusion than the country has yet known. States which want prohibition can have it, for themselves, but they cannot have it for others which do not want it.

The liquor issue now is whether the people of the country shall have restored to them the power to regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages in a legal, orderly, acceptable, and accepted fashion or whether the illegal traffic goes completely out of hand.

If conditions were reversed, if a small number of small states were insisting on the repeal of the amendment and the majority sentiment in the rest of the country were decidedly for the retention of national prohibition, the small number of small states could be put in their place and kept there. At least the effort to do so would be within the reasonable expectation of the government. A minority obstruction to repeal cannot include such a possibility. What happens in such a case is that the majority states are forbidden to deal with the regulation of intoxicants legally. They cannot by statute set up systems of control which will work.

Without repeal the country goes from bad to worse. With repeal it can hope to profit from experience, its own and that of other countries, and put the sale of intoxicants under such control as each state may decide to adopt. There is the Canadian system, as an example, and there are well proved systems in Europe. What will not work is the American scheme of absolute national prohibition. Nothing can be done about it for the better until the eighteenth amendment is out of the way. The amendment, recording its failure in the Volstead act and its bitterness in several others, will continue to be a failure if it is retained, and that failure will be the more damaging because it will prevent the substitution of anything better.

One state can help another to the restoration of better times and better conditions by the size of the vote it gives to repeal. The impetus is increased as the roll is called. That is a reason for energetic work in getting out the vote in Illinois.

ELWYN SHAW FOR THE SUPREME COURT.

In the Sixth judicial district an important contest for a seat in the state Supreme court will be decided at the polls Monday. The membership of our highest court of review is of concern to every inhabitant of the state, although members are chosen severally by districts. We are all therefore interested in the outcome in each district where there is a contest and the result in the Sixth district is especially important.

In this contest Mr. Justice Heard is running for reëlection, a Republican candidate. Sitting judges should be retained, we have always contended, during good behavior, that is to say, when it has not been demonstrated that they ought to be replaced. In the case of Justice Heard this, in our opinion, has been demonstrated. His dissenting opinion in the suit which resulted in the recovery to the state of at least a good part of the interest on public funds withheld by Small from the state treasury was and remains, we think, in the minds of disinterested lawyers and laymen a reflection upon his judicial competence. The reasons given in this dissent were of the flimsiest quality as the explicit findings of the majority opinion make clear. The prestige of justice as administered by the highest tribunal of the state should not be disparaged by such opinions.

It was characteristic of the Small administration that public office was used as a private family snap. Whether Justice Heard be considered as a Small adherent or not, his son is publicly charged with drawing two comfortable salaries from the public till.

These circumstances, we think, throw a rather forbidding light upon the background of the judicial process in Justice Heard's keeping. The Supreme court of Illinois in recent years has not ranked as it should among the high courts of the states nor has it the confidence it once enjoyed with the bar of Illinois. For this unfortunate situation we believe Justice Heard shares a considerable responsibility.

It is fortunate that the people of the Sixth district have an easy choice in the fulfillment of their duty to themselves and their fellow citizens of the state. His principal opponent, Elwyn R. Shaw of Freeport, is an outstanding lawyer of the district, of approved character. A third candidate, Judge Liddell, is not developing strength and voters should concentrate upon Mr. Shaw, whose election will be a credit to the Sixth district and a service to all the state and to the Supreme court.

Editorial of the Day

HORATIO BOTTOMLEY.

[Baltimore Sun.]

Horatio Bottomley, who died yesterday in the free ward of a London hospital, was perhaps the perfect specimen of what Englishmen with a "public school" education describe as a bounder. He printed scandalous pieces in his "dirty rag," John Bull, about the best people, was forever discovering that some statesman in a silk hat was selling out the country to Germany or America, and, in the end, ruined himself by a swindling scheme of the most childish sort. He got seven years in Wormwood Scrubbs and served five of them. His incarceration, expulsion from parliament, and subsequent poverty left this "card" in obscurity until his death.

It is being said that the loyalty of the proletariat to Bottomley, even when it was discovered that he had swindled them, is evidence of his surpassing wizardry as a mob master. It probably is. Bottomley knew how to get on board the immediately adjacent bandwagon, whether it was private scandal in the peerage or public scandal in the United States. But also, although most English people would never admit it, Bottomley's popularity can be explained by the fact that a man of the people, who rose from poverty to a place of power, could step it, toe to toe, with the gentry. The "lower orders" in England may be forever plucking their caps and they may be distrustful of a certain type of earnest welfare worker, but they take a secret delight when the upper classes are made uncomfortable by a self-made man from the east end.

Anyway, the "man who might have been prime minister" is dead, having expressed in his last moments astonishment that the end of "H. B." should be "like this." In view of his enormous success, his former great fortune, and his astonishing hold on certain sections of the masses of Great Britain, it does seem extraordinary.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

HOW REFRESHING TO READ the names of the kings that Dr. Breasted has brought back from his expedition into Asia Minor—Darius, Xerxes, Sargon II., Sennacherib, Ushpia, and many more It is like a cooling breeze from the north on a stifling August afternoon. For most of these boys passed to the great beyond over four or five thousand years ago, and it is certain that none of them has been or will be found on the preferred list of buyers of Mr. Morgan's stocks.

WE UNDERSTAND that Mussolini, not to be outdone by Washington, has ordered the title of "private" in the Fascist army be changed to "professor." So, no matter how many professors Franklin Delano has around him, Mussolini can always order his army any time he feels like it: "Pro-fes-sors . . . By reg-i-ment! . . . Right wheel! . . . March!"

THE LOWEST DOWN, ornerlest thief we ever heard of has stolen 150 "stylish stout" corsets from a Chicago dressmaker. Laugh, you mere men, if you will, but if you only knew how much it means to a lady to preserve her girlish figger you would arm yourselves with shotguns and swords and turn out with bloodhounds to chase this scoundrelly thief to earth.

LUNETTE, THE FLYING LADY.

Gar Hendershot was found one autumn day
Out in the Perkins wood near Mill brook dam,
With long, dark cuts across his face, and he
Had sharp spur marks imbedded in his side;
Had been shot twice through with an accurate gun.
And Gar was dead as blackberries upon
A bloodless thorn branch, ragged in the wind,

Came into town with Caley's Carnival
Wearing riding boots that had never seen a horse—
And lace-trimmed shirts that only had a front,
There would be trouble in the county seat,
And he was right.

Gar Hendershot had come
Of age, and his inheritance was due.
His father, Rawhide Jim, had always been
As mean as hedgehogs to both of his boys,
And all but hitched them to the plows when they Were kids. He never gave them pocket change;
So Gar for the first time at Carnival
Was not beholden. And he got set on
A girl that danced the serpentine outside
The Du Pree tent, with great light thrown on her

Inside the show, beyond the curtained door—
She was "Lunette, Queen of the Upper Air"!
Flying with spangled wings of gauze, spread out
Against the canvas of the big top tent
A web of shining, poorly hidden wires.

But when Gar saw her . . . it was like a dream;
It seemed that for the first time in his life
A single vision was for him alone.
A silver paper star dropped from her dress
Into Gar's lap, as she "flew" up and down.
Had it been real it could not have meant more . . .
It promised something far above himself.
He pressed it to his lips, and measured it
When he went outside, against bright Arcturus,
And it was larger. Night was a small ship
Wherein two souls could sail for Paradise.

And when he waited, long after the show
To give Lunette the silver ornament,
She said her name was not "Lunette" at all,
But Sally Seasons from New Amsterdam.
And every night she climbed out of the train
Where carnival folks live when in a town—
For a time she fled the influence of Du Pree
And joined Gar, and Sally found

When first they met . . . it was as though two souls
That had been absent temporarily
Reclaimed the gold they'd lost; were like
A vivid past reanimate awhile.
Time was for them like herds of buffaloes
Galloping past to leave them in the dust;
Their thoughts were like the sound of distant lutes

And then one day . . . the train pulled out upon
The steel rails of the North Division track;
As Gar rode down the poplar-bordered road
At milking time, with cows that bawled aloud,
He burned with hatred and with jealousy,
And roped Gar's horse and killed him where he fell.

Du Pree escaped, as sometimes rats will do,
And Sally . . . well . . . she must be flying still,
With real stars tight-fastened to her dress,
For when she heard Gar Hendershot was dead
She cut the wires that held her in the act
And fell into the sawdust ring below,

"PRESIDENT TELLS ANNAPOLIS Graduating Class How Much He Loves Navy." But inasmuch as half of the 432 graduates have been forced back to civilian life because of the administration's reduction in the naval officer personnel the happy young graduates who were being shipped home should have chanted to Franklin Delano the words of the blithesome old song by W. "I know it was right to dissemble your love,
But why did you kick me downstairs?"

RESTLESS CHILDREN.

CHILDREN sleep poorly by reason of any one of several causes. The cure for one of these will meet with no opposition from the child himself when it is put in operation, although he may not care for the academic explanation. The reference is to the use of sugar as a cure. Even if the parent be uncertain as to whether the treatment is called for in the particular case, the child will be willing to try the experiment.

A certain group of children are very restless sleepers. Some of them have night terrors and other kinds of bad dreams. Some are sleep walkers. Others are bed wetters. When they awaken in the morning they are pale, hollow-eyed, and many have circles under the eyes. They yawn frequently. If the parent notices closely, a sweetish odor on the breath or a sweetish body odor can be detected. If the urine be examined in the laboratory acetone can be detected in some cases.

In other words, the children have acidosis, and that is at least a part of the explanation of the sleep trouble, though some of it may be secondary to the restlessness of the night. These children have acidosis because they have drawn too much upon their stored sugar. As a rule, the children of this group tend to be tall and thin, somewhat underweight, and active and restless in disposition. Such children will sleep better if they are given some sweets just before retiring. For this purpose, lump sugar, candy, ice cream, cakes, or sugared fruit, cooked or raw, can be used. The advantage of sweetened fruits is that they supply alkali as well as sugar. Whatever is given it should be simple.

The drawback to giving sweets to children is in keeping the appetite good for more substantial foods which they so much need—meats, eggs, breads, cereals, and milk. A simple sweet, not highly flavored, taken at bedtime, interferes very little with normal appetite and taste for simple, unflavored foods.

With many children it is well to keep some sugar, or other sweet, close to the child's bed, and to give it if the child has a night terror or walks in his sleep. If a child is tossing and manifesting other signs of unusual restlessness, waking him and giving him some sugar candy may be justified.

There are adults who could profit by following the same plan. They are nervous people who are hollow-eyed and pale in the morning, and who yawn repeatedly until they have had breakfast. They find that taking something into the stomach seems to make them over. This does not always apply, however, to those who are pepless until they get the morning cup of coffee, particularly those who get the kick they need from black coffee taken without sugar or cream.

PROBABLY THE HEART.

W. D. writes: My wife has been very ill, but is now on the way to recovery. She was undernourished, had a nervous breakdown and a rheumatic heart. She suffers from gas and she claims her heart pains her during these attacks. What should be done? What is a rheumatic heart?

REPLY.

Your wife appears to have an organic heart disease caused by rheumatism. Because of passive congestion persons with heart disease are apt to have enlarged livers and poor circulation, and attacks of indigestion cause heart symptoms. In consequence, a very simple diet, plain, wholesome food, and small meals are advised. Is it possible for your wife to spend some time in the convalescent homes for heart cases? We have a booklet on heart diseases which you can get by sending 10 cents and a stamped, addressed envelope.

CAUSED BY PARASITE.

J. B. writes: What causes scabies or the seven year itch? Is there a cure?

REPLY.

SKIN AND HEART.

L. D. writes: In a recent article on the skin you stated: "Impulses registering here can increase or decrease the load the heart is called on to carry." What did you mean?

REPLY.

People who have heart disease do better if they live in a warm, even climate. Getting wet or chilled drives the blood out of the skin area and into the deeper tissues, increasing blood pressure and adding to the strain on the heart. Violent emotional outbreaks may have the same effect. So does eating a hearty meal.

TREE REPLACEMENT.

Chicago, May 30.—[Friend of the People.]—Please tell me where to get a permit to cut down two poplar trees that are in the parkway in front of my home. The roots have grown into the basement and have blocked the sewer. A. A.

Our inspector reports that there are two live 20-inch poplar trees 12 feet apart, the roots of which are breaking up the sidewalk and basement floor. The owner has agreed to remove the trees and replant a Norway maple. We have therefore issued to him a permit to do this. WALTER WRIGHT, Superintendent of Parks, Recreation, and Aviation.

COMMISSION CHARGES.

Chicago, May 31.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I contracted for a second mortgage of $3,000 for a period of two years, to be paid monthly. The commission charged was 25 per cent, plus 6 per cent interest on unpaid balance. I have since lost my job on account of wage assignment for delinquent payments. Can you advise me if this is usury? G. A. B.

If the commission was actually a charge by a broker for finding a third party willing to lend the money to you, then it would not be usury. If it was a charge he made for lending his own money, then it probably would amount to usury.

CLOSING ESTATE.

Chicago, May 31.—[Legal Friend of the People.] — Under certain conditions the estate of a person who died testate may be closed without the usual administration proceedings. Kindly quote a law or a decision under which this procedure is allowed. M. J. H.

Naturally, there would ordinarily be no court decisions on estates which were closed outside of court. The proper approach is to ask what legislation or court decisions require a probate in other cases, and the answer would be that probate is necessary to show the barring of claims such as to give a salable title to real estate.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 3, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—Next Tuesday (June 5) is national registration day. On that day the United States will take the first step toward getting into the war with Germany effectively. On that day more than 10,000,000 men who are 21 years old and not yet 31 will register for the selective draft which is destined to produce an army of 1,000,000, perhaps 2,000,000, fighters for the European trenches.

NEW YORK.—Both federal and state officials say the situation is well in hand and that no disorder is expected at the Tuesday registration. They are to be prepared, however, and the entire New York National Guard will be held under arms. Ten thousand men will be mobilized in New York City. Orders for the mobilization of the men in their armories were sent from Albany by Adjt. Gen. Stotesbury to Maj. Gen. O'Ryan.

WASHINGTON.—In response to the senate's resolution of inquiry, Secretary Redfield notified congress that on May 1 there were under construction in the United States 537 steel vessels, with tonnage of 2,039,000, and 167 wooden vessels, aggregating 214,700 tons.

WAR SUMMARY—Grand Duke Nicholas, former Russian army leader, is reported arrested in royalist riots at Tiflis. Anarchy reigns at Petrograd. Rome reports an advance of about 400 yards along a front of more than a mile in the thrust on Triest. Repulse of Austrian attacks in other sectors is claimed. Berlin reports the capture of French positions near Allemont, northeast of Soissons, with numerous prisoners and much loot taken. The claim is made that Portuguese soldiers were taken prisoner on the Arras front.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Where is the official art exhibition of the Exposition?

QUESTION—By what transportation is the Fair reached?

ANSWER—Bus, private automobile, street car and elevated trains.

QUESTION—Is there any provision anywhere in the grounds for the care of children?

ANSWER—Yes, children may be checked on Enchanted Island, the children's playground.

QUESTION—If the gates close at 10 p. m., as announced, does that mean that persons attending the theater or other evening entertainment will not be able to get into the Exposition grounds to visit the dine and dance places which are permitted to remain open?

ANSWER—While no definite program has been formulated as yet, such visitors will have no difficulty getting into the grounds. At 10 o'clock each evening all exhibits will be closed and, probably, no more tickets will be sold. However, those holding tickets will be allowed to enter on presentation at the gate. If demand warrants a cashier will be placed at some centrally located gate for evening visitors.

QUESTION—Is an admission charged for children?

ANSWER—A charge of 25 cents is made for children under 12 years of age, and children in arms, under 3 years, are admitted free.

EXPERIMENTS IN WASHINGTON.

Duquoin, Ill., May 31.—I suggest that your paper take note of the Roosevelt emergency legislation not as empirical attempts to solve a difficulty of such nature and proportions that any solution were welcome but in regard to its constitutional aspects and its consonance with American political tradition. I am one of those who believe that any constitution is preferable to none at all, and that the relics of the past, however inadequate, should be retained while there is such weighty reason to suspect that the present could devise nothing better or as good. I do not accuse the President and his advisers of plotting the death of the constitution, though undoubtedly they would find that document somewhat archaic if they ever took the trouble to read it. The fact is that the constitution, as a mode of government, expired with the passage of the eighteenth amendment and has been fundamentally dead during the prohibition era. You cannot change the whole spirit of the basic law of a people and expect the letter to retain any force.

But if the Washington experimenters and their laboratory assistants have not killed the constitution they are at least making the chance exceedingly remote of its ever being revived. It is my belief that Mr. Roosevelt or his advisers under cover of a national calamity are introducing profound changes in our governmental concepts which would never be countenanced by the sober, practical sense of the people. I do not say that the Democratic program is bad. We are given to understand that it is exigent and pragmatic, responsive to the urgent peril of the nation, above all theories of government and distinctions in principles. The only principle being that very inclusive one of the people's welfare, the only test of the legislation is by its results. Either the cure succeeds or it fails; whatever the effect, the perception of it is retrospective.

There is no doubt about the tenor of mind in Washington. The era of inductive science enters into a new phase with the appearance of the government scientists in the White House, in the cabinet, or on their doorsteps. Evidently the American people, having fostered the scientific attitude to create a very magnificent material civilization, have at last become the victim of their own instrument, and after a noble career in the march of progress they are given a conspicuously minor rôle by the new casters—to react. We are in the age of inductive government. There is no need to inquire into precedents; the germs of disease are always present in every healthy body. And perhaps it were a departure from character for the catalyzed to question the merit of the catalyzer. But in the vast and lethargic silence, while a nation is being transformed, a still, small voice may yet wonder audibly whether there is some doubt in the other guinea pigs.

SPECULATOR.

INCORRIGIBLE.

Chicago, May 31.—Your editorial "Incorrigible" is commendable both from the standpoint of fearlessness and interest in the people.

If a man in the position of chief justice of the Municipal court does not realize by this time that it is economy and not extravagance the people want and must have, he never will, and my guess is that unless THE TRIBUNE gives him an allopathic dose of publicity he will persist in his course and trust to luck that his actions will be forgotten by the people. Meantime these very people will be footing the bill and will later on holler at the injustice of everything in general, mostly because of their own apathy. DECENCY.

BROOKHART GETS A JOB.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 28.—Recently we read that a nationally known politician, not now in office, had said: "This government is in the hands of a bunch of insane fanatics, etc., etc." This was rather hard to believe until now, when we read that Lame Duck Brookhart is up to the government feed trough again, appointed by some of the famous brain trust advisers of the President. So here is another who believes just what the ex-officeholder states as above.

And we ex-soldiers are forced to give up pensions that Bamboozler Brookhart and his kind can live on Uncle Sam's. H. A. WILEY.

HIGH STANDARDS.

Chicago, May 31.—E. M. S. complains because the Fair administration has actually gone so far as to select the very finest people as its employés. A trip through the Fair will soon convince most any one that the clerks and other employés are better than the average in such places. The only ones I found that were inferior were in some of the private concessions where apparently breeding and education weren't required. I regret that the Fair didn't require a better class of people in all of its concessions whether private or Fair owned. J. S. M.

PEGLER.

Winnetka, Ill., May 31.—I am happy to see Westbrook Pegler back with a contribution this morning. His writings on sports have always been delightful, but his articles in late months from Washington concerning contemporary nationally known characters and the government such as it now is have been extra fine. I sincerely hope he may be spared to continue with them.

FORESTRY CAMPS KITS CONTRACTS LEAD TO RUMPUS

Senate Committee Hears Witnesses.

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—In a hearing charged with feeling the senate military affairs committee went deeply today into the question whether the administration directed the purchase of 200,000 kits for the civilian conservation corps without competitive bids. The price has been described by war department officials as $100,000 more than that for which the quartermaster corps could have bought the kits.

The committee examined with particular interest a letter written on May 16 by Louis McHenry Howe, presidential secretary, and bearing the penned approval of President Roosevelt, authorizing Robert Fechner, director of the corps, to take the purchase of kits into his own hands.

Mr. Fechner assumed full responsibility for the contract. He said he had recommended this course after James J. McEtee, his assistant, on a visit to the first forestry camp, had examined "three or four" toiletry items issued by the war department and found them defective.

Makes New York Contract.

He then made preliminary arrangements with Richard Be-Vier of the Be-Vier corporation of New York to buy toilet kits at $1.40 each, he said.

Mr. McEtee, called to testify late in the day, verified Mr. Fechner's testimony that the sole information they had on the articles purchased was furnished by Mr. Be-Vier.

He was questioned about a memorandum from his files indicating the Be-Vier corporation had once offered to furnish kits at $1.10 each.

Before these officials were called Maj. Gen. John L. DeWitt, quartermaster general of the army, told the committee that he could purchase all the articles in the forestry toilet kits, including the box, for 75 cents. He added that if the articles were brought up to army standards the whole thing would cost $5.84 cents.

Hear Quartermaster General.

Gen. De Witt described a conversation with Mr. Fechner in which he said the latter instructed him to cease arranging for toilet articles for men in the conservation corps "by instruction of the President."

The question was left in an inconclusive stage at adjournment of the committee this evening. Mr. Be-Vier will be heard tomorrow. It is planned to recall Mr. Howe, who was heard in executive session yesterday, and probably to question Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget.

The hearing was more like a grand jury investigation than a routine senatorial inquiry. All witnesses were placed under oath. The chief burden of questioning was carried by Senators Black and Reynolds, Democrats. Although a Republican, Senator Carey precipitated the inquiry.

ICKES RULES NO BEER FOR INDIANS ON RESERVATIONS

Washington, D. C., June 2.—(AP)—Indians are not to be permitted to purchase 3.2 per cent beer on their reservations.

This ruling was announced today by Secretary Ickes in a statement labeling it "an administration policy." He added:

"The laws prohibiting the sale or transportation of liquor on Indian reservations contain express prohibition of wine or beer, with no reference to alcoholic content.

"These enactments are numerous and were passed at dates as remote as a hundred years ago. They express a long established and unbroken policy of the federal government, and are unrelated to the 18th amendment or to the recent statute permitting the sale of 3.2 per cent beer.

"These laws have not been repealed by congress. Until congress repeals or amends the Indian liquor laws, the obligation of the secretary of the interior is clear and is embodied in the order forbidding the sale of beer, lager beer, ale, porter, wine, or other alcoholic beverages on Indian reservations."

SAPIRO RESIGNS AS DICTATOR OF LAUNDRY CHIEFS

Aaron Sapiro, New York attorney, has resigned as counsel for the Chicago Laundry Owners' association, according to an announcement made yesterday. The resignation has been accepted by the executive board of the organization.

In a letter to the board Sapiro said he had been informed the state's attorney was threatening to indict the members unless he got out of the association. He added that he was unwilling to place his own interests above those of the laundry industry and therefore voluntarily stepped out.

Sapiro, it is said, was the author of an agreement under which each laundry owner paid $1 a week per truck toward a fund, administered by the Laundry Drivers' union, to organize hand laundries. This fund, under investigation by State's Attorney Courtney, amounted to more than $50,000 a year.

Famous Comedian and Wife Injured

Seriously Hurt When Taxi Hits Pillar.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Joe Weber, famous to two generations of theater-goers in the comedy team of Weber and Fields, and his wife, Lillian, were seriously injured today when a taxicab in which they were riding with three friends crashed into an "L" pillar on Columbus avenue. All of the passengers were hurt.

Operation "Satisfactory."

The comedian was operated upon immediately and his condition on coming out of the ether was described as "satisfactory."

Their companions in the cab, all taken to Knickerbocker hospital by ambulance, were Hiram A. Grosner, 54, retired merchant, whose left leg was broken, and his wife, Charlotte, 50, and her mother, Mrs. J. Hunt, both of who went to their home after treatment at the hospital.

Had Been Visiting Friends.

The Webers, who live on West End avenue, hailed the taxi early this morning in front of the home of Samuel J. Siegel, a lawyer, on Central Park West, where they had spent the evening with their friends.

The cab was moving south on Columbus avenue, headed for the Grosner home, when the chauffeur swerved to avoid a collision with another car.

SAVES PORTRAIT OF LINCOLN FROM AUCTION BLOCK

Bloomington, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—An order from Sangamon County Probate court today rescued the famous Butler portrait of Abraham Lincoln from the custody of the sheriff and its ultimate disposal at an auction sale. Judge Benjamin S. Debrice ordered the painting turned over to the Springfield Marine bank.

At present the picture is on exhibition at A Century of Progress in Chicago under special arrangements made by the Sangamon county sheriff, the Edward W. Payne estate, and those holding liens against the estate.

The painting was done by George Frederick Wright shortly after Lincoln's nomination for the presidency and was one of the 20 painted by artists from sketches done at that time. The Wright picture was acquired by the late William Butler and later sold to Edward W. Payne.

The portrait fell into the sheriff's hands when levies were made on judgments against Payne totaling $107,734.

BANDITS BEAT UP PROF. PICKETT IN OWN DOORWAY

Prof. Charles C. Pickett of the Chicago Kent College of Law was beaten and robbed of $300 by two men who seized him in the vestibule of his home at 1408 East 56th street yesterday. Prof. Pickett, who had just drawn the money from the University State bank, 1354 East 55th street, said he believed the men had followed him from the bank.

He had just entered the vestibule when he was seized. One of the bandits beat and choked him while the other took the money. They fled to an automobile in which a third man waited.

GIRL LURES FOR BANDIT RING GET 5 MONTHS' TERM

Ruth Sass, 10614 Ewing avenue, and Mary Garast, 9112 Yates avenue, each 18, lures for a south side bandit gang, were sentenced to five months in the house of correction yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court. The judge, unmoved by the tears of the defendants and their mothers, said the girls had shared in the loot taken by the gang and deserved punishment.

He had continued the case at a previous hearing on the plea of the public defender that the probation officer be allowed to investigate the girls. Testimony had showed that they lured motorists to a lonely section near 103d street and Indianapolis avenue in order that they might be robbed.

The four bandits were sentenced at the previous hearing. John Iora, 21 years old, and George Schemansky, 22 years old, got one to twenty years in Joliet and Dan Manos, 20 years old, and Frank Pallanti, 20 years old, were given one to ten years in the Pontiac reformatory. Chief Justice Prystalski changed charges of robbery to larceny before sentencing Miss Sass and Miss Garast.

3 WHO SET FIRE TO A POLICE CAR GET 1 TO 3 YEARS

Three youths arrested after they had set fire to a police squad car were sentenced to one to three years in Joliet penitentiary yesterday by Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Criminal court. They are Michael De Stefano, 25 years old; Michael Messino, 23 years old, and Tony Panico, 22 years old.

The defendants, found guilty by a jury, were arrested after an automobile chase Dec. 16. Testimony showed that De Stefano had appeared earlier at the Maxwell street police station and offered to take the place of his brother, Samuel, who had been jailed for driving a car with a fictitious license. He explained that Samuel was ill.

His request refused, Michael left the station, and reappeared a few minutes later riding in a car with Messino and Panico. As they passed the police station De Stefano hurled a can of gasoline and a torch into the squad car. Police gave chase and arrested the trio.

DIVORCE GRANTED TO DAUGHTER OF MAYOR CERMAK

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan granted Mrs. Helena Cermak Kenlay, daughter of the late mayor, an uncontested divorce yesterday from Floyd M. Kenlay. He is an assistant attorney general in charge of inheritance tax matters in Chicago.

Mrs. Kenlay charged cruelty. Her husband filed an answer in which he denied her charges, but stipulated that he would not oppose the divorce. Before Judge Finnegan she testified that he struck her, knocking two fillings out of her teeth, on Jan. 3 in their home at 2348 South Millard avenue, and that he choked her and tore her dress on Feb. 10, the day they separated.

The Kenlays married May 28, 1926, after eloping from the University of Illinois, where they were students. Mrs. Kenlay was granted custody of her daughter, Mary Alyce, 2 years old. She asked no alimony and there was no property settlement, Judge Finnegan was informed.

Rob Broker in Loop Building; Tie Him Up

J. G. Hedgcock, general insurance agent, was held up and robbed of $180 by two men yesterday in his office on the twenty-second floor of the Reywal building, 100 North La Salle street. The men met him as he was waiting for an elevator and told him they wanted to talk business. When he went into his office they drew pistols and forced him to surrender the money. They fled after tying him up.

WOMAN IS HELD TO GRAND JURY IN AUTO KILLING

Charged with Manslaughter for Child's Death.

Mrs. Raymond is the mother of a 9 month old baby. Her husband, Ray, is a musician. At the inquest she testified that she was driving east on 79th street at a speed of not more than 30 miles an hour when she approached the intersection at Merrill avenue where the accident occurred. She appeared deeply agitated as she told of the tragedy.

"I didn't see a thing until the car hit the little girl," she said. "I didn't know what happened or remember anything after it happened. It seemed I struck something, then I didn't know what I was doing. I slightly remember coming home with Mr. Fitzsimmons."

Tells of Overtaking Car.

James Fitzsimmons, 5223 Dorchester avenue, a gasoline station attendant, who with A. W. Fleming, 7631 Oglesby avenue, pursued the death car, testified that they had overtaken Mrs. Raymond three blocks from the scene of the accident.

"She wasn't going more than 25 miles an hour then, and willingly stopped," he said. "She looked at me blankly when I told her she had struck some one."

Fleming told how they took Mrs. Raymond to her home, calmed her and called the police. She went later to the South Shore hospital with her husband, where she learned that the child had died.

William West Minster, 8022 Euclid avenue, a photographer, testified at the inquest that he saw the child struck down. He said that he had noticed the child walking with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Hanehan. The child ran on ahead, hesitated at the curb, and started to skip across the street.

Saw Car Hit Girl.

"The mother called sharply three or four times to come back," said Minster. "As the child left the curb I saw a car coming about a block away. It struck the girl, making no effort to stop. No horn was sounded. The street was well lighted."

On cross-examination Minster stated that Mrs. Raymond's car was traveling about 40 miles an hour, and slowed at the scene of the accident.

Virtually the same testimony was given by the child's mother. The father, who is employed in a filling station at 33d street and Michigan avenue, did not testify.

After the verdict was read Mrs. Raymond was taken to the South Chicago station. She made no comment. She was held at the station until early this morning, when she was released on a $5,000 bond put up by Robert Marcus and approved by Judge Jerome Dunne. Her husband had worked all night for her release because she was needed by their baby.

Cars Crush Boy to Death.

Chester Kopecz, 8 years old, 1105 North Marshfield avenue, was fatally injured yesterday when he was crushed between two automobiles at Haddon and North Marshfield avenues. He died at the county hospital. Odell Schausberg, 23 years old, Whitehall, Wis., and Floyd Kolessa, 22 years old, 1627 North Lincoln street, the drivers of the cars, were held.

The death of the Kopecz boy and three others yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll to 405 for 1933. The other victims:

Cornelius Collins, 29 years old, 1828 Crystal street. Died in the Peoples hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile collision last Sunday.

August Webber, 63 years old, 2717 Lincoln avenue. Died yesterday in county hospital of injuries suffered March 18 when he was struck by an automobile at La Salle and Chestnut streets.

Lymuel King, colored, 2 years old, 5328 Indiana avenue. Fatally injured last evening when he was struck in the street in front of his home by a truck driven by Herman Thompson, also colored, 15034 South Wood street, Harvey. The child died before he could be taken to a hospital.

FOUR POWER PACT HITS NEW SNAG; SIGNING DELAYED

Mystery Surrounds the Latest Hitch.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 2.—Initialing of the Mussolini four power peace pact, which officialdom has been intimating was imminent for the last three days, appears to have struck another snag. It was announced in the senate tonight that tomorrow's session has been postponed.

It had been expected that the pact would be initialed in Rome today by Premier Mussolini and the ambassadors of Great Britain, France, and Germany. Mussolini was to have made a speech before the senate tomorrow explaining the pact.

Give No Explanation.

Official explanations are not available tonight. It was merely said that there had been delay in drafting the text. Italian officials, however, still maintain that signing of the pact is a certainty. In some quarters it is expected that it may possibly be initialed tomorrow.

Much diplomatic activity appears to be going on here tonight. Embassy officials of France, England, and Germany are working late. The French ambassador, Henri de Jouvenal, failed to keep appointments this afternoon because of preoccupation with the pact, which kept him at the embassy.

It is expected that Monday's session of the senate will be devoted to a discussion of foreign affairs and that Mussolini will make a speech.

Germany Denies Obstruction.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 2.—A spokesman for the German foreign office tonight denied that Germany is delaying the initialing of the Mussolini four power pact.

(Dispatches from Geneva said Germany was being blamed for obstructing the pact. It was said the Hitler government would not sign the agreement until assured that France would reduce its war materials.)

The foreign office spokesman said Germany is ready to sign the pact, but that further negotiations have been made necessary by French and Italian amendments.

U. S. REGULATION OF GUNS URGED BY GRAND JURY

Asks Federal Law on Master Keys.

Passage of an effective federal gun law was advocated as the best weapon against crimes of violence in the final report of the May grand jury presented yesterday to Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. A subcommittee of the jury, assigned to investigate automobile thefts, urged the enactment of federal restrictions on the manufacture, sale, interstate transportation and possession of master keys as the best means of reducing this type of crime.

"In the numerous crimes of violence that came before this body," the jurors' report said of the gun law, "almost without exception, a revolver or kindred firearm was used. As it appears certain that prevailing conditions enable criminals, unhindered, to arm themselves with deadly weapons, we are led to the conclusion that a widespread and sustained campaign should be instituted to enact a federal law or uniform state laws which would place under effectual regulation and control the manufacture, distribution, sale and possession of firearms."

Sixty Per Cent Have Keys.

The jury subcommittee, investigating automobile thefts, learned that approximately 60 per cent of the automobile thieves arrested have master keys to fit the different makes of automobiles.

The committee discovered that there are approximately 3,500 places in the Chicago area where such keys can be bought "while you wait" with no questions asked. The committee report also points out that firms in Chicago, Cleveland, Boston and other cities advertise from 5 to 96 master keys at $1.50 to $11.50 a set. These keys, the report said, will give access to 90 per cent of all automobiles.

In connection with this finding the committee reached the following conclusion:

"Effectual regulation and control by law is greatly needed. If obtained, automobile thefts and house burglaries probably would be reduced, and the use of stolen cars in committing other crimes quite likely would be lessened.

Local Laws Not Enough.

"Obviously local ordinances are not the whole remedy. As to the manufacture of master keys, ordinances merely transfer the sale to other cities. We believe the best results would come from a federal law imposing adequate restriction on the manufacture, sale, interstate transportation and possession of so-called skeleton or master keys. Insurance rates are based on losses. If losses come down, insurance rates naturally would follow. If the present losses continue, insurance rates may go higher."

THOUSANDS POUR OUT OF LONDON ON WHITSUN HOLIDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—Good weather for the Whitsuntide holiday sent hordes of Londoners to the country today. Trains this evening were packed, roads were full of cars and bicycles and the woods were thick with hikers.

Besides what passes for a heat wave in Great Britain, the hundreds of thousands pouring out of London to observe Whitsuntide in the country were benefited by a special holiday rail fare rate of one pence [two cents] a mile.

As usual, provincials were flocking into London to see the trooping of the colors in honor of King George's birthday tomorrow. The king will be unable to review his guards, however.

TOUHY GUNMEN GET ADDITIONAL JAIL SENTENCES

County Judge Perry L. Persons imposed additional jail sentences yesterday at Waukegan on James Ryan and John Twohig, members of the Touhy gang, who were found to be carrying weapons in their automobile when they were arrested April 25 near Wauconda.

He sentenced each to four months on the state prison farm at Vandalia and fined them $150 for violation of the section of the concealed weapons law, passed in 1931, which prohibits habitual associates of thieves from carrying weapons in an automobile. On Thursday Judge Persons sentenced Ryan and Twohig to three months in the Lake county jail and find them $100 each for possesing weapons on which the serial numbers had been defaced.

He pronounced the second sentence yesterday after overruling the motion of Attorney William Scott Stewart for a new trial. Attorney Stewart contended the prosecution had not shown that the defendants associated habitually with thieves, but Judge Persons upheld the contention of State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county that this was shown by the testimony of Chicago policemen who had arrested Ryan and Twohig in the past.

Judge Persons set bonds of $10,000 each when Attorney Stewart announced he would seek an appeal. Ryan is under indictment in Chicago for murder.

AWARDS $4,359 TO MRS. JELKE AS SUIT COSTS

Providence, R. I., June 2.—(AP)—An additional allowance of $4,359.63 was awarded by Presiding Justice Hugh B. Baker of Superior court today to Mrs. Eugenia Woodward Jelke, who sought about $10,000 as the cost of defending the divorce suit of her husband, F. Frazier Jelke, millionaire stock broker, and prosecuting her cross-suit against him.

Both suits were denied by Judge Charles A. Walsh in Newport Wednesday.

Judge Baker reduced to $1,250 the $5,000 request of F. J. Bodeker, Birmingham, Ala., detective, for gathering evidence to refute Jelke's accusation that his wife was unfaithful to him in Birmingham. Bodeker already had received $250 on account.

The $900 sought by Mrs. Jelke for a trip to Paris to gather evidence and take depositions was cut by Judge Baker to $500.

Mrs. Jelke already has received $1,810 for expenses, and under the court's allowance the amount expended in her behalf from her husband's money will total $6,169.63.

THE TIME TO BUY A USED CAR IS before prices go up!

There is no longer any doubt about it! Prices are going up—just as surely as they recently went tobogganing. And it isn't reasonable to expect good used cars to continue to sell at their present low prices—when everything else is rising.

If your old car needs replacing, or if you're going to be in the market for a good used car any time in the next six months, you can probably save considerable money by buying now. In addition to the influence of general inflation there is a real scarcity of used cars on the market. There have been fewer trade-ins each year for the last three years. The first strong increase in demand for used cars will not only result in higher prices, but will make a real used car shortage.

If you act promptly, you can still buy a good used car at the old low price. Right now, prices of used cars are the lowest in many years and you may never again have an opportunity such as is to be found today in the automobiles-for-sale columns of the Tribune Want Ad Section.

You will find Chicago's foremost selection of used cars in all makes and models in the Tribune. There are dozens of desirable values, many of them thoroughly reconditioned and ready for several years of hard, useful service.

Decide today to save yourself regrets later on! Turn to the automobile columns of the Tribune Want Ad Section.

4 Universities Ready to Grant 3,000 Degrees

Northwestern to Graduate 1,500 Today.

More than 3,000 young men and women will be graduated in commencement exercises at four universities and colleges in the metropolitan area during the next ten days. Starting with the presentation of diplomas at Northwestern university today, exercises will be held at Loyola university, Lake Forest college, and the University of Chicago.

Degrees will be conferred on a graduating class of 1,500 at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon at Dyche stadium of Northwestern university in Evanston. Sir Josiah Stamp, English economist and president of the London, Midland and Scottish railway, will deliver the commencement address.

Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity, will initiate 18 members of the graduating class at 8:30 o'clock this morning in Harris hall on the Northwestern campus at Evanston.

The passing out of diplomas will conclude a week of festivity at Northwestern.

Last night members of the graduating class attended baccalaureate services at the First Methodist church in Evanston. The Rev. Charles H. Heimsath, pastor of the First Baptist church in Evanston, told the class that college students have undergone a "natural and commendable" reaction against sterile religion.

"Religion has important values for life at its best," the speaker said. "If we are to lift life out of its present slough of despond, it may well be that the only way left to us is to make honest use of those strong, elemental, and enduring values that are native to religion.

"Religion brings order out of chaos; religion supplies values that are sanctioned by the universe. Too often our purposes are like curiously shaped pieces of a jig-saw puzzle. Religion supplies a picture by which the pieces can be fitted together with beauty and meaning."

Loyola university will confer 737 degrees and certificates at its 63d annual commencement to be held Wednesday, June 7, in the stadium on the lake shore campus. The Rev. John A. Ryan, D.D., of the Catholic University of America, will deliver the commencement address. Honorary degrees of doctor of laws will be conferred on Father Ryan, Gen. Italo Balbo, minister of the Italian air forces, who is leading a squadron of 20 seaplanes to Chicago for A Century of Progress; Mother Mary Isabella, superior general of the Sisters of the Blesed Virgin Mary and builder of Mundelein college, and Francis Joseph Tschan, professor of mediæval history at Pennsylvania State college.

A class of sixty, the second largest in the history of the institution, will be graduated from Lake Forest college on Saturday, June 10. The commencement address will be delivered by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, who will receive an honorary degree. Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles of Fort Sheridan, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, Mayor Edward J. Kelly, and Attorney Joseph Fleming have been invited to attend the ceremony. An alumni reception, a dinner for graduates, and the senior ball will mark the two days preceding the commencement exercises.

The 172d convocation at the University of Chicago will be held on Tuesday, June 13, in the university chapel. Diplomas will be awarded to 527 members of the class who have completed the four year course and 330 advance degrees will be awarded. Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the university, will deliver the commencement address. The annual interfraternity sing and class day will be held on the campus on June 10.

Women from 18 to 50 Rush to Register for Summer Forest Camp

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's idea of a forest camp for women struck a quick and responsive chord in the hearts of New York City's idle. Before 9 a. m. today a long line was waiting to be registered in front of the New York State Temperory Emergency Relief association's offices, and by 11 o'clock, in the first hour of registration, 50 women had been registered, and more were waiting. They continued to come throughout the afternoon.

The women who registered ranged in age from 18 years to over 50. They represented almost every imaginable line of employment, from former high salaried women executives down the line of white collar workers, to garment and factory workers. All of them seemed more animated and eager than usual in a group of idle these days, their eyes sparkling at the thought of a summer spent outdoors. Most of them expressed the hope that there will be work for them to do.

Except for registering the women who are eligible to go to camp, the state association is waiting further advice from Washington before making detailed plans for the camp. A tentative site has been selected in Bear Mountain park, but the first recruits will not leave the city for a week or 10 days at least, it was announced.

The maintenance of the camp will be under the federal government appropriation and it is expected that one of the many camps already built in the Bear Mountain park will be used.

Good Morning!

Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace;
Wednesday's child has far to go,
Thursday's child is full of woe. . . .

Remember the old rhyme? Well, according to it, this Lilly Turner is most certainly a "Thursday's child," for full of woe she is, and no mistaking! She gets all the breaks—and they're all tough.

She weds a Loud Noise whom she believes to be a Big Time vaudevillian. Circumstance reveals that he's an amusement park quack and, heaven help the girl!—which it doesn't—a bigamist! She learns of his two-timing just before the birth of her child. A good-hearted bum of a barker makes her as we so naïvely say, "an honest woman," by the bestowal of his name, and Lilly goes to the hospital where her baby is born dead. . . . Tch Tch! Only, of course, she's glad, for, as she says, what chance would her offspring have had?

And now we discover Lilly in a medicine show displaying her charms the while she spiels a little spiel declaring that the old Doc's treatments have made her what she is today. The strong man, whose muscular development is also laid effusively at the feet of Doc, conceives a violent passion for Lilly, develops acute paranoia and is carried away to an asylum—from which he escapes in due time to make the damsel more trouble—on the eve of her departure with the new strong man with whom she is in love. Thursday's child! Didn't I tell you?

This chap is no ordinary strong man. Columbia graduate, if you please, and the sort of engineer who doesn't work on railroads. The romance of Lilly and Bob that develops frankly right under the husband-in-name-only's nose is a touching thing which you feel, as the picture ends, will, in due time, work out all right. But the finale leaves you a bit doubtful.

Though I couldn't get stirred up over the story, I did like the acting a lot. As Lilly Miss Chatterton is more normal and sincere and accentless than I have ever known her. You quite understand how Fritz and Dave and Bob could fall for her in the wholehearted fashion they do.

Mr. Brent [Ruthie's new husband] is splendid! Nice, sunny smile—though I like him better in his stern and silent moments. Frank McHugh is likeable and a bit pitiful as the boozing barker. Robert Barrat makes your blood run cold as the lunatic and George Kibbee adds an artful touch as the old Doc. Minor rôles are well handled.

Direction, sets, photography, etc., are good—far better than the yarn—and you may like that. It sure packs a lot of action.

Sydney Waud's Engagement to Be Told Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

Of interest to Chicagoans is the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pitman Morrell of Morristown, N. J., are making tonight at a large dinner at their country club of the engagement to be married of their daughter, Isabel Palmer, to Sydney Peyster Waud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest P. Waud of East Walton place.

Miss Morrell, who was a roommate of Mrs. John I. Shaw [Barbara King] at Farmington, has visited here frequently and already has many friends and acquaintances who will welcome her when she comes to Chicago as a bride next year after Mr. Waud's graduation from medical school. She is tall and blonde and very attractive. She made her debut in 1929 and is prominent in social activities of that city. Mr. Waud is a graduate of the Hill school and of Princeton university, class of 1931, and is now a junior of Northwestern university medical college. He and his brother, Morrison, left Thursday to motor east to be present at the announcement party. They will be away two weeks and Morrison, who is quite an amateur golfer, will spend most of his time on the golf course.

Racing Devotees Go to Derby Today

Those of society who love horse racing will not let anything at the Fair, no matter how interesting it may give promise of being, keep them away from Washington Park this afternoon when the American Derby is run. The clubhouse will be gay with luncheons before the races, some of the hosts and hostesses being the Jack Peabodys, Howard F. Gillette, Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, the Albert J. Partridges, the Philip L. Reeds, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, the Charles B. Shaffers, and the Walter Schuttlers.

Tonight the Rufus C. Daweses, the Herbert E. Hydes, the Sewell L. Averys, the Kellogg Fairbanks, the John Alden Carpenters, the James C. Ameses, and the James M. Hopkinses all will motor to the Theodore W. Robinsons' palatial home in Lake Forest to attend a double wedding anniversary dinner for the Robinsons and the Daweses. The wedding of Frances Steel and Theodore Winthrop Robinson took place 42 years ago tonight in Joliet and that of Helen Palmer and Rufus Cutler Dawes was solemnized in Washington Court House, O., 40 years ago today. Mrs. Robinson has planned something particularly appropriate as souvenirs of the party tonight, but to tell about them beforehand would spoil the surprise.

Boys' Model Yachts in Regatta Today

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon Admiral Wat T. Cluverius will give the starting signal for the first event in the fourth annual model yacht regatta at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, and off will sail a fleet of miniature yachts built by north shore boys. The small boats will be picked up by navy cutters after they have crossed the finish line and returned to their makers.

Admiral Cluverius will award the prize ribbons and tonight there will be many a proud little boy in Kenosha, Lake Forest, or another north shore town explaining to his interested mother and sister why his sloop won the race. Or perhaps why it did not, but in any case his "wimmen folks" will be interested, for they always are in whatever their "menfolks" do.

The free for all will be the last race of the day and it always is a thrilling one with sometimes as many as a hundred boats in it. Some of those who have won prizes in past years and who undoubtedly will be for today's event are Kent Chandler, Jack Broeksmit, Freddie Wacker, Dick Manning, Arthur Ryerson, Julian Armstrong, Frank Ryerson, Juthur Pope, Hugh Dangler, Norman Patten, and Lawrence Freeman.

Admiral and Mrs. Cluverius will be at home for the last time at the Naval Training Station tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Sail for Clambake Early Tomorrow

Every one of our young society folk who are planning to join the Richardson-Stanley Clark-Hosmer clambake tomorrow on a Michigan sand dune is convinced that he won't find himself in the predicament of the young man sketched on the invitations that went out a week ago. The drawing shows a beau waving farewell on the river bank. The inscription is: "Missed the boat and am I sorry?"

At 10 o'clock tomorrow morning the fifteen couples including the John MacLaren Simpsons, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Marston II., Miss Marjorie Goodman and her fiancé, "Bud" Dewey, "Jack" Couch, and twenty-three others are embarking on a chartered yacht. And with them is going a tubful of clams and a chef from one of the city's best fish houses. The return to town is set for 8 o'clock in the evening.

Vacant apartments are not so nice for landlords, but they are fine for other tenants when they want to give parties that would tax the capacity of their own apartments. Tonight the Paget Cadys have borrowed the vacant apartment in the building in which they live on East Division street to use as a game room for those of their 25 guests who want to play poker, bridge, or backgammon instead of staying in the Cadys' apartment and playing the piano or dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Cady have invited their guests for a buffet supper, and since all their parties always are great fun, every one is anticipating a jolly evening.

Mr. Cady will move from his apartment to the residence on Cedar street of Mrs. Cady's parents, Mr.

New Fashions at Society Wedding

Miss Jeanne Wingfield, Mrs. S. Prentice Porter, and Miss Lillian Dudley at the Fortune Lawlor wedding on Thursday at Holy Name cathedral. All three were wearing the new white pique gloves, Miss Wingfield's and Miss Dudley's with frilled cuffs and Mrs. Porter's with flared ones. Miss Wingfield's ensemble of summer sheer is very new, too. Mrs. Porter, the former Elinor Durbin, and her husband have joined the summer colony in Lake Forest. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Start Showing of Sculpture at Arts Club

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Arts club opened yesterday a remarkable exhibition of modern sculpture and of drawings by sculptors. The sculpture itself fills the main galleries and the drawings are in the hall. There is little of particular importance among the drawings, though the sketch in color of horses by Alfeo Faggi is stunning, but the sculpture includes many notable pieces.

William Zorach's more than life size study of a girl fills the round room. It is a brilliant and serious achievement. There are figures in the other galleries which leave a bitter taste so the placid chastity of this nude comes as an assurance that modern sculpture is not entirely a toy for perverts. One of the more morbid conceptions is "The Glad Day," by Noguchi, and "Seated Woman," by Lehmbruck, leaves much to be desired. "Femme Accroupie," by Henri Laurens, has the making of a lively penguin.

A curious conception which has been beautifully carried through is "Knees," a marble, by Gaston Lachaise. Among the many heads of women and men the green "Head," by Epstein, stands out for its sensitive quality. It is lovely. Charles Despiau has portrayed a kindly personality in his "Head," also of a woman. The "Serpentine Woman," by Matisse, is the perfect circus cynic. The "Woman in Tub," by Degas, is a dangerous bit of modeling to leave in the open, for the tub offers itself as a most promising ash tray.

Another delightful piece of sculpture is the "Seated Figure," by Kolbe, a charming bit of work. The "Femme Enchainee," by Jean Gerard is equally lovely. Robert Laurent has a fine study of a bird in his lifelike "Pigeon." Jane Poupelet shows two delightful little bronzes, "Rabbit" and "Donkey."

"The Song," by Duchamp-Villon, two women carved from wood, is of interest. Brancusi offers the head of a woman, a curious achievement that couples itself instantaneously in the mind with the picture of a boiled onion.

There are all kinds and degrees of sculpture in the exhibit, which is well worth seeing. It will continue to the date of the club's closing, set tentatively for July 1.

WEDDING

A romance begun when both were students at the University of Chicago culminates in the wedding today of Miss Helen Elizabeth Eaton and Robert Todd McKinlay. The wedding ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the Joseph Bond chapel on the University of Chicago campus, and will be followed by a reception in Ida Noyes hall. Miss Mildred Eaton will be her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. Dorothy Harsha Lewis, Mrs. Dorothy Moulds Stevens, Miss Clara Belle McKinlay and Miss Helen Taylor. Ernest S. Stevens will be best man and ushering will be Wanzer Hull Brunelle, George Francis James, Frederick Sass Jr. and William Kent.

SOCIETY ATTENDS TEA

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Prints of every color, large and small, on silks and triple sheers, worn with cartwheel straw hats or tiny white ones, graced nearly every member and guest at the Arts club tea yesterday afternoon when the summer exhibition of sculpture was opened. Mrs. Potter Palmer was a lovely exponent of this fashion, wearing a soft blue sheer print with a large beige straw hat.

The tea table, in the center of the lounge, was stunning with its dark marble top, the crystal candelabra in the center; two bowls of white peonies on either side and the silver coffee and tea services at either end.

Among those drinking tea and wandering through the galleries were Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, chic as always in a brown print silk and brown cartwheel straw hat; Mrs. Barrett Scudder in black with half-dollar white dots, Mrs. George E. Skinkle with her daughter, Mrs. Sidney Heyworth Heap, both in blue; Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett Jr. in a gay print in reds and greens and a white hat, Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, Eleanor Holden, stunning in a small red print dress and black accessories; Miss Nellie Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Storrs, Khalil Bey, chargé d'affaires of the Egyptian legation in Washington, and his secretary, M. Cattaul; Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling and her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Brown; Miss Alice Rouiller in brown print with organdie touches and a white hat, and Mrs. Lewis Bernays, wife of the British consul, in an Eleanor blue silk dress and white hat.

New Swim Suits Mere Scraps of Bright Jersey

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The first swim suits are here—mere scraps of colorful jersey or complicated crisscross strap affairs and some new tweed effects that ought to make the most blasé lifeguard snap to attention. The shorts are trim, slim and tailored. The newest ones have jersey tops fashioned like half a handkerchief, others have a "bra" top and still others have tri-toned top sections that are exceedingly eye-filling as to color combinations.

A snappy white affair has three tones of rose and scarlet at the top, the same model in black is contrasted with turquoise and white, and a very flattering gray suit goes in to top color with red and French blue. Judging by these first arrivals, the beaches this year will not lack for either sun tanned mermaids or local color.

If you have a preference for plaid and gingham, you will like a new "Scotch and soda" swim suit made with scarlet jersey shorts and top with an over layer of red, green, and white plaid gingham. While other plaids are available, this brilliant get-together is unquestionably the most potent mixture you can find. The clever Scotch plaid top ties around the neck like a halter and the skirt section just clears the scarlet shorts.

All white suits are as spectacular as they are skillfully fashioned. Most of them [and the color models as well] are made with a reinforced section around your waistline that holds even a heavier soaking suit in position.

The black and white suits are the next in fashion with striking white bands, bows, or yokes for contrast. The new showings are difficult to resist.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. Livingstone of 270 Park avenue, New York City, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Beatrice, to Philip W. Fishel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Fishel of 201 East Delaware place. Miss Livingstone is a graduate of the Francis Parker school and Antioch college. Mr. Fishel is also a graduate of the Francis Parker school and of Ohio State university, class of '25.

Rare Collection of War Medals Put in Museum

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers Are Donors.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

When Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers returned from a European trip in 1921 they brought with them a small parcel insured for a large sum. It contained more than three dozen world war medals that commemorate in bronze, silver, and iron the history making events of that struggle, and the valor of the soldiers, both American and foreign.

Yesterday this collection of medals opened a new department in the numismatic room of the Chicago Historical society's museum.

The collection is more than a group of metal medallions. It is a vivid story of the parade of events during the war. One of the medals even sheds a new and interesting sidelight on one of the greatest disasters.

This is the heavy black piece of iron struck off by the German government at the time of the sinking of the Lusitania, May 7, 1915. An inscription on one side records the disaster and dates it May 5, 1915. The reverse side shows death booking passage on the liner, capped by a German inscription that is, translated, "Business above all."

"The medal is proof of two things," said Mrs. Chalmers. "Dated two days before the Lusitania was actually sunk, it is conclusive evidence that Germany intended to torpedo the ship two days before the submarine found it. It also proves, despite repeated statements to the contrary, that Germany knew there were women and children on board the vessel, for they are depicted in the engraving on the reverse side."

Another medal bronze reproduces the profiles of Edith Cavell, the war nurse shot as a spy, and Marie De Page, that remarkable Belgian woman who came to this country to speak for help for her countrymen. It was made by order of King Albert of Belgium and it bears intimate relation to Mr. Chalmers' war career as chairman of the Belgian relief fund in America. In recognition of his service there is today the Chicago pavilion at the Marie De Page and Edith Cavell hospital in Brussels, and within the pavilion is a memorial ward to Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers' daughter, Joan, and their son, Thomas. In addition, the order of Leopold was conferred by King Albert on Chicago's chairman of Belgian relief.

An unusual note in the collection is the gold identification locket that bears the inscription "Capt. Thomas S. Chalmers, 1100 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago." In France Capt. Chalmers, whose death came in 1923, was promoted to the rank of major. Mrs. Chalmers kept this original locket, issued by the government, during the war and had a duplicate made for her son which she now wears.

All of the medals are the work of well known artists. One of them, of Gen. Pershing, was done in bronze by J. P. Legastelois, while another, of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, in recognition of the generosity of America, was fashioned in silver by G. Devreese, a Frenchman.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall, dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening. Baron tells Dinah that Divine was secretly married to Jane. Dinah resents his hatred of Jane and doesn't trust Baron. She tells him it was she who shot Divine. Jane confesses to Fiske that she shot Divine and that she'd brought Dinah to his home. Jane's efforts to shield Dinah win Jack's admiration. Jane leaves, not telling Dinah or Jack where she is going. Baron's sister, Jerry, a dancer, calls in search of Jane. She claims to have been married to Divine. She expects to frighten Jane into supporting her claim. Divine's widow will collect an inheritance. She moves in with Dinah. Jerry and her dancing partner, José Chavel, conduct a little blackmailing plot against Dinah and Fiske.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

JEALOUSY.

It seemed to Dinah that if she could have even a few moments alone she would be able to recover her poise, to free herself from this sense of nightmare confusion. But she was to have no peace.

"Come on!" said Jerry. "Let's go upstairs."

"I want to speak to Jack," Dinah began, but knew even as she spoke how useless it was.

"No!" said Jerry. "I won't have it! You want to get him alone so that you can set him against me. No! If any one's going to talk to him alone, it's me. Shall we go out somewhere, Jack?"

"I've got some work to do," said the young man, hastily. "I'm sorry. Another time."

"Let's go upstairs, Jerry," she said. "I want to show you a new dress."

She hoped she spoke in her old tone of light good humor. She was unaware of the anxiety in her voice, the pallor and fatigue of her charming little face.

"All right, let's see your dress," said Jerry.

Dinah fetched the dress, a new one, and a wonderful bargain, which she had not yet worn.

"Let me try it on!" said Jerry.

Jerry put the new dress on, a sleeveless one of white flannel, with a smart little jacket. She looked well in it; with her supple, straight figure, her arrogant dark beauty, she would have looked well in almost anything. But she looked more like a devil than ever before—her face pale, her black eyes narrowed, as she said:

"You are criminals!" said Jerry, with a sob. "I hate you both!"

"What did José say to you this evening?"

"I don't know," Dinah answered with a fine attempt at carelessness. "And I don't care, either.

Jerry came closer to her.

"You do know!" she said. "And you're going to tell me, too."

"I can't. I was—I didn't bother to listen——"

"Liar!" said Jerry. "I've been watching you—putting on all your idiot airs. Men are——" Suddenly she began to cry. "Men are such fools. I hate them! And I hate you! For two cents I'd smash up everything. I'd go to the police and tell them about you and Jane. I'd—rather see you in prison—than have—all the money in the world!"

This torrent of hate made Dinah feel physically ill. And she could not return it. Looking at that other girl in her storm of furious tears, she felt a strange fatigued compassion for her.

"I'm going to keep your dress!" Jerry went on. "I'm going to take everything I want. And if you say one word, I'll telephone to the police, and tell them."

"Answer me!" cried Jerry.

"There's nothing to answer," said Dinah, slowly. "If I could just see Jane even for a minute, I'd beg her to let you tell the police, and get it over. We're not criminals, either of us. It's——"

"You are criminals!" said Jerry with a sob. "I hate you both! And I hate Jack Fiske! He's a sap. He's——"

She flung herself face down on Jane's bed, in that new dress of Dinah's. For a time Dinah sat watching her, saw her slight shoulders shake with sobs muffled in the pillow, saw her at last grow quiet.

Then she turned out the light and lay down herself.

The alarm clock had been broken when Jerry threw it across the room, but Dinah, for the first time, waked early of her own accord.

During the night Jerry had pulled the bedspread over herself, and lay curled up now like a kitten—still in that new dress. With infinite caution Dinah got up and dressed, her dangerous companion did not stir, yet her stillness gave no reassurance. She might well be lying there wide awake, laughing to herself.

But she reached the dining room unmolested, and saw, to her almost incredulous belief, that Jack Fiske was there, at his table. It seemed to her days since she had been able to speak to him alone.

He rose instantly and came to her.

"Better begin your breakfast," he said. "I'll sit beside you."

In Jane's chair. They had the table to themselves for the moment.

"Jack!" she said. "Do you know—have you any idea where Jane is?"

"No," he answered. "I'm glad she's out of it, at least. It's bad enough as it is."

"She's not out of it," said Dinah. "I've been thinking a lot. Jack, suppose Jerry can't make any one believe she was Philip Divine's wife. I don't believe she can. It can't be so easy to fool a district attorney and all those people. She'd have to have documents and things—and she can't have them—not genuine ones."

"I know," he said. "I saw that, of course. She can't have any papers to prove her claim. She must have come here to get them from Jane. And as Jane's gone it's nothing but bluff."

"Then if it's just bluff——"

"Still she's got to be kept quiet."

"It just can't be that way. Don't you see for yourself that we can't keep this up? The time will come when we haven't any money at all between us. And then she'll tell."

Fiske said nothing, but there was a look of stubborn misery on his face. "Don't you see?" Dinah went on. "We can't keep them quiet forever. If they're going to tell——" She paused. "It might as well be now," she said.

"No!" said Fiske.

Then it must have occurred to him that his quixotic determination to shield Jane as long as possible, at any cost, must need some justification to his poor little companion in misfortune.

"We want time to think this over," he said.

"I have," said Dinah. "For—awfully long, last night, Jack. It's just going to ruin us both to give in to them. And it won't do any good in the end, Jerry'll tell."

"I don't think she will, Dinah. She has nothing to gain by it."

"She has," Dinah began and stopped. It seemed to her useless to tell Fiske what she knew. For she could not prove it. Her knowledge was made up of nebulous things, of certain tones in Jerry's voice, expressions on her face. If she were to tell him that Jerry hated her, was desperate with jealousy, he would discount that, would consider it unimportant. He believed that Jerry acted from self-interest, but Dinah knew better.

Lying awake that night, she had achieved a strangely clear insight into the other girl's heart.

"Jerry loves that horrible Chavel," she had thought. "And she's never sure of him. Never for a moment. It's a torment to her. She was jealous of me in the very beginning, because I'm different from her, because I'm blonde and she's dark. Because she knows how easy it would be for any pretty girl to get him away from her. And now—she didn't hear what he said to me, but she guesses. And she'd do anything to hurt me, because he's hurt her so. She'd tell the police, no matter what happened to herself."

"I don't think she will," Fiske repeated. "Any how, Dinah, we've got to think this over—very carefully. We've got to be prepared with—well—an explanation for—for Jane and yourself having been there that night——"

Child's Grit Often Called Stubbornness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It was a beautiful spring morning in the country. They swung along the road—the grownup sister and the younger brother of 13, armed with cans and nets. This was to be a special trip for certain creatures hard to catch.

"Georgie," called a young voice after they had all been walking for about five minutes. "George, I'm going . . . Mama says you can't go if I can't."

A cloud had appeared on their horizon! Small brother had been following, lurking behind roadside bushes.

"Aw," said George in an aside, "Mama didn't say that. She told me last night I could go."

"Come on, don't notice him," said the grownup member of the expedition. "He'll get tired and drop back."

Vain thought. The cloud followed. Each time they looked back, there he was, trailing them at a distance.

"I'm coming," he'd call out sullenly.

"Look here, Sammy," he said, "you can't go today. We can't get this stuff if we have a lot of people along. Now, if you'll go home, I'll ask you next time. But if you follow us I'll pop you one. Now quit!"

At this Sammy looked stubborn, and the procession moved on, ignoring him. Pretty soon they stopped a moment at a wayside ravine, when their ears were assailed by a sobbing voice crying out, "I'm going—you've got to take me!"

Then older sister tried her hand. This was getting to be a pest and would be all summer, she thought. But did her firm but gentle speech avail? Not at all.

Arrived at their destination, they looked around and there was little Sammy.

"O heck!" said the leading young naturalist, perhaps touched a little bit by this passion for an expedition. "All right, Sammy, come along. But keep back and keep quiet, do you hear?"

A smile like a burst of sunshine spread over Sammy's countenance—and he made a very good fourth, at last finding for himself a big turtle which he hugged for miles.

Now then, what about Sammy? A nuisance? A pest? Unpleasant? Stubborn? Determined? Thickskinned or rather full of character and initiative and fearlessness? He might have been amenable and reasonable, but he wasn't.

Well, it was interesting to watch and speculate on. We can afford to do a little thinking about the children's behavior when it takes a form that it isn't convenient or pleasant for us. We can ask ourselves whether it may not indicate forcefulness, or other qualities that we call desirable and want handled well. The child who always fits so perfectly into grownups' wishes may not be working out his own destiny.

and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, on July 1, and Mrs. Cady will go north with her mother to Fish Creek, Wis., for a short visit. Upon her return she will join Mr. Cady at the Bissells' and Mr. Bissell will go north to vacation with his wife.

Gives Tea Tomorrow for Malvina Hoffman.

Mrs. Charles Garfield King is to be hostess at a tea tomorrow for Miss Malvina Hoffman, who is here for the opening Monday of the Hall of the Races of Mankind in the Field museum, for which she did the sculptures. Miss Hoffman's husband and sister, Samuel Grimson and Mrs. William Draper, are arriving tomorrow to be here for the notable occasion on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Grimson will be the house guests of the Stanley Fields and Mrs. Draper will be with the Kings during their stay in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field also are expected to be here for the opening of the hall on Monday.

William Goltra, who moved here last winter from St. Louis, and John S. Cromeling had to have two housewarmings in their new apartment on Scott street because they have so many friends, so tonight they are entertaining the young people who are going to the "Quarter Century of Backwards Progress" party for cocktails before the party. The party, which is a Dutch treat affair, was planned by Jack Brittingham and Bill Little in celebration of their 25th birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. George Shepard Chappell Jr. are in New York to attend the wedding this afternoon of Mr. Chappell's sister, Miss Amy Ursula Chappell, to Morgan Whitney, son of Mrs. Marguerite Palmer Whitney of New York and Nelson McS. Whitney of New Orleans, which takes place in Christ Episcopal church in Pelham Manor.

Junior League Opens New Play Today.

The Junior Leaguers are opening in a new play, "The Captivity of Eleanor Lytle," in the Enchanted Island's little theater at 10:30 and again at 3 o'clock today. It's an Indian story woven around the life of Mrs. John Kinzie, the first white woman in Chicago.

Mrs. Stephen Harrington Jr. has the lead. Miss Paula Uihlein is cast in another important part and so are Miss Ginnie Hobart and Miss Alice Jacques. Mrs. Robert White Jr. is playing Squashblossom and Mrs. W. Sanger Hinchman is Red Bill. Others in the cast are Mrs. Robert M. Hoffman Jr., Miss Dorothy Dewes, and Miss Judith Walsh.

Miss Gloria Chandler is the director. Mrs. Andrew Sandegren is the stage manager, Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III. director of scenery, and Mrs. James W. Otis of costumes.

Guests at the John J. Mitchell apartment at 1550 North State parkway are Mr. Mitchell's sister, Mrs. Robert E. Hunter; Mr. Hunter, and their daughter, Helen. Mr. Hunter and Miss Hunter arrive on Tuesday from France. Miss Hunter has been studying in Paris. On Wednesday Mrs. Hunter came from their home in Pasadena to welcome them en route and to join them in a trip about the Fair. They will leave for the west coast early next week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Andrew Drain Jr. of Brooklyn, N. Y., are here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon. Mrs. Drain, the daughter of Mrs. Pynchon, will be here for most of the summer at the Pynchons' town apartment and country house in Barrington, but Mr. Drain will return east tomorrow. He hopes, however, to come back for the month of July.

The Wilton B. Martins' daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Channing Sweet, have arrived from their home near Colorado Springs to spend two weeks seeing the Fair. Mr. Sweet's father and mother, the former governor of Colorado, William E. Sweet, and Mrs. Sweet, came east with the Channing Sweets and are staying at the Stevens.

Visitors from Canada Face Busy Stay.

More interesting Century of Progress visitors: Miss Constance MacArthur and Miss Marion MacArthur, daughters of Senator Creelman MacArthur of Ottawa and Prince Edward Island, Canada, will be here June 10 to be the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Royden J. Keith at their apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive.

And now, before their arrival, their social calendar is so filled with luncheons, teas, and dinners it scarcely seems that they will have time to see the sights of the Fair. The day after their arrival the Joseph N. Fields are having them for supper at their home. The next day, June 12, Mrs. Oakley Brown is entertaining for them at luncheon at the Arts club, and that evening the Keiths have invited some of the younger group for one of their beefsteak dinners, when a single steak twelve inches thick, weighing thirty pounds, is served.

Mrs. William H. DeWitt will be hostess to the Misses MacArthur June 13 at the Skokie club, and the next day Mr. and Mrs. John R. Mauff and their daughter, Miss Katrina Mauff, are having them out to the Milton Blair house in Geneva, which they have taken for the summer.

Then on the 18th Miss Alice Bremner will be their hostess at an evening party, and two weeks from this Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd T. Bailey of Winnetka will entertain for them at a tea and supper party.

The Friends of India, founded at the University of Chicago, are having an informal Indian dinner at 6:30 this evening at the International house.

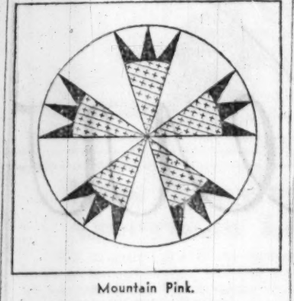
Pink and Green Suggest Prim Mountain Pink



Mountain Pink.

BY NANCY CABOT.

There is a gay charm about this prim little pattern, which comes directly from the Rocky Mountain district. It must have been inspired by the spicy pink, which grows in the nooks and crannies of the mountains. Certainly when pieced in a dainty pink print, with the petals tipped with green, it does resemble the flower.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Doris Tells How to Avoid Chair on the Sideline

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Why is it that some girls get to go places who haven't any particular beauty or background, and others, like me, remain chained to the reading lamp?" "Pennsy" asks. A thousand other girls echo the tune.

"Why is it?"

So let's try to figure out why it is. Background doesn't seem to carry the weight it formerly did, so let's dismiss that at once as a nonessential factor. It isn't how and where you were born that matters today; it's what you are, yourself? If you haven't beauty, what have you? What have you to offer people in return for being asked places? Talent?

Beauty and talent are the leaders in attracting interest in you. Are you amusing? Are you the sort of person a host or hostess would find helpful in a group? The kind that circles around and rallies the crowd into action, or good humor, or whatever it needs?

Are you a good listener? There's a chance for the girl who is, because this audience is fairly limited and a good listener becomes a necessary part of the game. Do you play a mean hand at bridge? Can you dance well—not just dance, understand, but well?

If you're the kind of girl set on widening her social scope you must grasp at every invitation. Just figure that out of dull, poky dinners may come the big contact of your life. Anyway, act as if you expected the miracle might happen. Girls who get to places and are bent on getting to more places go in for the sort of thing. They deliberately cultivate an acquaintance whose social contacts are promising.

They're not too modest about saying how they'd love to do this and that, go here and there. And providing they make themselves agreeable, the chances are good that they'll be taken along. It's quite a business, shoving yourself along out of isolation into the big camp where things are doing.

BY MARY MEADE.

One thing that makes cookery such loads of fun is the everlasting newness of it. I don't mean just new recipes and new foods and so on. I mean rather the funny little new ways of doing the old stunts which keep turning up every day or so. Of course, something that may strike me as new may have been familiar to your grandmother when she was young.

Anyway, since folk have been showering us with answers instead of questions lately, we'll turn the Saturday cookery clinic into a tip column today and see what happens. And, by the way, if you have up your sleeve some other tips for making the kitchen job quicker or more fun, send them in, won't you? They may be just the thing the other fellow is looking for and couldn't ever quite find.

Biscuits Now Think They're Muffins.

Have you ever made biscuits in muffin tins? It's a great little time saver if you're used to flouring a board, rolling out dough, cutting, and placing it into a baking pan. The speedy housewife now lightly mixes her recipe of baking powder biscuit, dusts her small muffin tins with flour, and drops into each a spoonful of dough. She bakes them as usual in a hot oven and turns out biscuits with nice round little brown bottoms and crusty, brown-flecked tops. Very nice!

Double-Cross Your Bread Molds.

So many of your neighbors keep crusts of bread and left-over toasted slices, later to be used for crumbs and croutons, in their bread boxes, with the other bread. Maybe you do, too. It seems like an easy method, but it does invite mold on both the crusts and the fresh bread. Instead, drop all crusts and stale bread into a large paper bag—not in a box at all. They will dry out speedily and mold troubles will be eliminated.

A Dribbling Pitcher? Reform It!

Aunts and in-laws always manage to inflict on a family at least one cream, milk, or sirup pitcher that drips down its front and be-spots the spick and span table cloth. If you have such a dribbling pitcher, try this stunt: Each time as you send it in to the table rub a little butter on the lip of the spout. Unless your pitcher is hopelessly balky, this will cure the difficulty.

Boil, Bubble—But No More Trouble.

Similar to the trick we play on the milk pitcher is the one perhaps you've heard of practicing on the kettle of boiling rice or macaroni which always insists on waiting till we turn around—and then carouses out all over the stove! Take care of this by first selecting a good large kettle—and then simply greasing for three or four inches down from the edge, inside the kettle, before starting the cooking.

Give the Fork a Chance.

Half the trouble with lumpy gravy and pebbly white sauce is that we don't use the right implements in the mixing. Flour and a little water may be brought to a creamy consistency about twice as fast and easily with a kitchen fork as with a spoon. The tines break up the lumps and keep more from forming.

Mirror Can't Lie About the Face 'n' Figger

Trying on New Clothes Often Discouraging.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I wonder if there are any women who go through a clothes trying-on job without being reduced to the nadir of self-appreciation. I've yet to meet one of her. We all seem to be sisters under the skin in the devastating experiment.

I wondered particularly, the other day, when I went on a shopping spree with one who seemed designed by nature—and art—to survive happily. But she, too, moaned about a spreading waistline and shoes that looked [to her only] shoddy. Some of us come off so abject of spirit that it takes days for revival.

But there is this good thing from the experiment, harrowing as it may be at the time. You can't fool yourself before a full length triple mirror if the silhouette is beginning to take on. And very, very often it is the beginning of reform in diet and living.

So shopping sprees are recommended for those who need a shock to jolt them out of their old clothes smugness. You can fool the seam-stretched old thing, but you can't fool the new Schiaperelli.

At one of the better dress houses I was told women will burst into tears at sight of themselves before the avenging mirror. Some will put up an argument with the mirror that they haven't been eating anything at all. The response they get is the cold fact that the bulges are there, the spread is true.

Hair facts come to light in those brightly lighted fitting rooms. Gray threads crop out that were not hitherto suspected. Stringiness, dullness are accentuated. So one may get a double shock, or a triple one in case the complexion doesn't stand up under the hard, clear light. All of which I claim is good for the soul—if the soul will take it for good. At least we get a fairly honest idea of how we look to others.

Some of us have to be shocked into action. Indulgent relatives and friends are too often shock absorbers. Again, for this reason, too, the trying on of new clothes is good for what ails us. Given two months after one of these "bracers," with the right reform spirit, and we could go back at the end of sixty days and challenge that mirror into admitting nothing is impossible if the will is firm.

MINUTE MYSTERY
BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

CLASS DAY.

"Confronted with the necessity of cutting operating cost, Warden Sullivan at the prison had laid off a number of employés and had shifted the remaining ones to fill in the gaps.

"When I dropped into his office," continued Fordney as he addressed his students, "he was at his wits' end. The only personnel he hadn't cut were the sentries guarding the four walls surrounding the prison. His dilemma was how could he do with less men there and comply with the iron-clad rules which he could not change!

"The walls were guarded by eight sentry boxes—one on each corner, occupied by two sentries each and one on each of the four walls, exactly half way between the corner boxes, these occupied by four men each, making a total of twenty-four sentries. As the sentries worked in twelve hour shifts, forty-eight men were employed. The prison regulations were iron bound. Not less than eight sentries must be on duty at all times on each wall and each sentry box occupied at on each wall at all times!'

"What was Sullivan to do? He must cut expenses, but how to do it within the regulations! Deputy Warden Hale, who was present, suddenly burst forth with, 'Look here, chief—you can take four men from the day shift and four men from the night shift and we can still have eight men each wall at all times!'

"I want you fellows," concluded Fordney, "to tell me how it was done. Quickly now!"

DETROIT BEATS SOX, 14 TO 1, ON ERRORS, 16 HITS

Three Pitchers Are Maltreated.

Frasier for Wyatt

DETROIT, Mich., June 2.—[Special.]—Vic Frasier, who came to the Chicago White Sox from Dallas in the spring of 1931, was traded to the Detroit Tigers for Pitcher Whitlow Wyatt this afternoon. The announcement was made by J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, immediately after the Sox-Tiger game. No cash was involved in the deal, Comiskey said.

Wyatt, a tall right hander, won nine games while losing thirteen for the Tigers during the 1932 season. Frasier won three and lost thirteen last season.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—The White Sox were in a state of helplessness again today and the results were distracting. They hadn't even a trace of good pitching, although three pitchers worked. Each of the trio was blown to bits and the Tigers paraded gaily to their fifth triumph in seven games against the Chicagoans this season. The score was 14 to 1 and play was just as one sided as the count indicates.

The pitching makes up only part of the story. With base hits popping all over the premises in seven of eight innings, the pitchers had enough troubles of their own, but were additionally aggravated by fielding blunders on the part of Luke Appling and Billy Sullivan. One of these occurred right at the start and definitely settled matters before the tussle was five minutes old.

Where's That Punch?

Still another sad note was the ease with which the Sox were disposed of as hitters. This was handled by Arthur Sandy Herring, who is of such low rating locally that he hadn't been started in a game this season. But the sudden shift from the bull pen to the mound didn't disturb him. For five innings he permitted one man to go beyond first base. In the sixth two Chicagoans accomplished that feat and one of them scored. After that they didn't even get a runner to first, although this was principally because Jack Hayes, for the second time during the day, was robbed by a one handed catch in the ninth.

The first of the three Sox pitchers was Milt Gaston. He was wild and didn't complete an inning. Appling's error helped to carry him away. Chad Kimsey was next. He was fair until the fourth, when Sullivan kicked one and made possible a five run foray. Walter Miller's southpaw twisters helped to quell this uprising, but eventually Miller received his with interest. He was thumped for eight hits in the last four innings, one a home run by Gerald Walker in the sixth. Three of them came in the eighth to add three more scores.

Aspirin for Gaston, Boys!

Gaston's unhappy first inning started with walks to White and Owen. Gehringer tried to bunt and failed, so took a swing and sent an every day hopper to Appling. The youthful shortstop booted what should have been a double play ball. The error filled the bases. Gehringer was forced on Stone's tap to Hayes for the first out, but White scored on the play. Owen scored on Walker's single to left. Stone counted when Greenberg singled in the same direction. That completed Gaston's work. Kimsey managed to end the inning after Walker had scored the fourth run on Rogell's fly to Simmons.

Kimsey gave up two singles and a run after one was out in the second. White lined safely to center. Owen did the same thing, but Haas was playing deep as usual, so had no chance to keep White from going to third on the hit. White scored while Owen was being forced on Gehringer's grounder to Hayes.

A walk to Herring set a five run

How They're Voting on American League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation will decide who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States have invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the National league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the American league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

In case more than the allotted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reach The Tribune first.

Who'll Win—American or National? Let's Argue!

Interest in the Game of the Century at Comiskey park July 6 now has reached the argumentative stage where almost any fan will tell you which team is going to win, explain just why his choice is the best, and defy contradiction.

The fact that the teams which will represent the National and American leagues have not been picked does not prevent the bleacherites from deciding everything but the score of the game.

An eavesdropping reporter mingling with the crowds in elevated trains, hotel lobbies, drug stores, and at Wrigley field Thursday found the game a favorite topic of conversation. Fans everywhere were enthusiastic over the prospect of seeing picked major league teams meet for the first time in history.

Klein! Ah, He Busts 'Em!

The reporter's quest led him first to a crowded south side elevated train. He boarded an express at State and Van Buren and took a seat. By the time the train had reached Congress street discussion of big league talent reached his ear from the seat directly back of him.

"Yo'-all take Klein," a deep bass voice was rumbling. "Dat man kin bust 'em harder 'n anybody. He sho do bust 'em."

"Sho nuf, man," the deep voiced commentator's partner answered in a Dixie tenor. "And who-all yo' gonna get to bust 'em like O'Doul? Dem boys gonna bust 'em really dat day. Dat gonna be some game."

"Yes, sah, we gonna see de picks. dat what we gonna see. Dem world series is just world series, but dis is gonna be de picks. Just de picks, dat's all. We ain't never seed the picks befo'."

Picks Ruth to Star.

The basso and the tenor were in accord. The eavesdropper was an old fight reporter. He wanted action. So he left the elevated at Roosevelt road and stopped at a corner newsstand. Three gentlemen in light gray hats and sport shoes were scanning the box scores in the final edition of THE TRIBUNE.

"Ruth might be old and broken down, like prosperity," one of them was saying, "but you can have 8 to 5 right now he'll be the star of that interleague game."

"Yeah? Well, five will get you eight," exclaimed gentleman No. 1. "That old autograph expert has never failed to come through with something special on special occasions and if this game isn't a special occasion, I want to die poor. . . ."

"You will if you bet on Ruth against Warneke and Hubbell," replied the National league fan.

"Never'll Get Them Out."

"Well, Ruth can strike out five times that day," spoke up the third man, "and there will still be so many base hits going by those National league pitchers they'll have to wait till Christmas to get a look at the stands. Simmons, Gehrig, Foxx, Dickey, West . . . why if you bet against that outfit, you're crazy."

"Well, the National league still has Klein, O'Doul, Terry, and Hartnett," the National league supporter argued.

"And you still got a ticket on Dick O'Hara to win the Derby," he was told.

The eavesdropper left them to their arguments. His quest next took him to the Palmer house. Two elderly men, expensively attired, lolled in easy chairs in the lobby. The reporter took a seat near by and listened to ten minutes of interesting discussion on political topics. Baseball seemed to be the last thing these two men would talk about. One asked the reporter for a match and with the ice thus broken, the reporter joined the con-

LEVINSKY WINS FROM GRIFFITH IN TEN ROUNDS

Tuffy Floored, but Bounces Up Immediately.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The $25,000 boxing lesson King Levinsky received from Tuffy Griffith two years ago paid Levinsky dividends last night when the King outpointed Griffith in ten rounds at Mills stadium. The decision of the judges and the referee was unanimous.

Levinsky's margin of victory was so large that the judges were able to penalize him for fouling on two occasions and still give him a comfortable advantage in the scoring. Although Griffith appeared to be in the best shape of his career, he was unable to keep pace with Levinsky, who used a sixteen pound weight advantage and his great strength to bully the smaller Griffith in each round.

Griffith Cut Over Eye.

Griffith, however, was never in any serious danger of a knockout and repeatedly stood toe to toe to slug with the heavy hitting Levinsky. There were two knockdowns, Griffith going down in the third and seventh rounds. He refused to take a count, however. Neither fighter suffered any serious damage until the tenth round, when Levinsky opened an old cut over Tuffy's eye. Griffith had the better of a furious exchange at the time, with Levinsky hanging on. The injury made it impossible for Griffith to see, and he had to spend the closing seconds of the round cowering under Levinsky's savage charge.

Show Draws 4,744.

The 4,744, who paid $8,354.70 to see the show, the first major outdoor attraction of the season, clamored for one of the famous Levinsky knockout punches from the start, but it was not until the fifth round that the King landed his first good blow. It was a right to the jaw and staggered Tuffy, but Levinsky was slow following up.

This round also brought the first flareup of the reported bitter feeling between the two fighters. Levinsky leered at Griffith, made several discourteous remarks, and leveled with a right hand. Griffith staggered back, but when the King followed up Griffith made him miss by 3 feet. He wound up the maneuver by laughing at the King and belittling him as they clinched.

After the fight, Jack O'Keefe, Griffith's manager, revealed Tuffy had suffered a fracture of the right hand. Griffith said he had received it in the second round when he landed high on the King's head. He did not seem to favor it in the remaining rounds, however, and landed with hard rights that stopped Levinsky's rushes.

Hold up Levinsky's Purse.

Griffith's superb condition more than anything else prevented Levinsky from making a better showing. Griffith did not tire greatly and rallied repeatedly. This irked the King, who resorted to tactics that led to two warnings from Referee Phil Collins and an order from Chairman Joe Triner of the boxing commission to hold up his purse on charges of disorderly conduct pending a hearing Monday.

The official vote was: Judge Rube Metz, 57 to 43; Judge Livingston Osborne, 51 to 49; and Referee Collins, 58 to 42, all for Levinsky.

Knockouts in Preliminaries.

Jack Roper, stable mate of Griffith, gave away 25 pounds to Frankie Simms in the semi-windup and punched out a decision over the 217 pound Cleveland heavyweight. Roper carried the fight to Simms from the first bell and battered away with both hands for eight rounds. Simms, reputed to be a terrific puncher, did not land a good punch.

Marty Sampson was awarded a technical knockout over Tony De Marco in the seventh round when a left hook to the chin knocked De Marco out of the ring. De Marco disqualified himself by dropping to his knees to wait out a count of nine after he had hurried back into the ring.

Kansas Team Wins Central Track Meet

BY CHARLES NEVADA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 2.—Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university sprinter, set a new world record for the 220 yard dash around one curve tonight as Pittsburg, Kas., Teachers' college won the eighth annual Central Intercollegiate conference track and field meet at Marquette stadium.

The teachers surprised a record stadium crowd of 8,000. They finished with a total of 38 points, ten more than Marquette university, the defending title holder, 18 more than Michigan State college, which was third, and 20 more than the University of Wisconsin, which came in fourth. Twelve other schools trailed these four leaders in the scoring.

Metcalfe was timed in :21.2 in his world record performance. That victory, together with a triumph in the 100 yard dash, which Metcalfe won handily in :09.5, made him the high point scorer of the competition, which attracted more than 200 athletes from 20 schools.

Nine Records Fall.

Nine meets mark were broken, one established and another tied during the 16 event program. Central records were surpassed in the 100 yard dash, 440 yard run, 880 yard run, one mile run, 880 yard and one mile relays, and in the javelin throw, discus throw and the pole vault.

Pushing Metcalfe for honors was Capt. Jack Tierney, a teammate, who finished second to Ralph in each of the short sprints. Both wound up a busy night by appearing on the winning 880 yard relay team, which also set a record.

TUNNEY FEARS SCHMELING HAS NO REAL PUNCH

San Francisco, Cal., June 2.—(AP)—Because he thinks Schmeling "lacks a real punch," Gene Tunney would favor Baer if he were making a bet on the outcome of the battle between the two Maxes next Thursday in New York.

Tunney described Schmeling as "strong and game," but added: "I do not think he is great or destructive. If he wins from Baer it will be by decision, for my opinion is that he lacks a real punch, unless he nails some 'chump' running in. If I were forced to bet I would have to bet on Baer."

The board of directors of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association, operator of the Hawthorne race track, announced at its meeting yesterday that the position of president and director, left vacant by the death of John C. Schank, will not be filled until the annual meeting in August.

However, Joseph A. Murphy, general manager of the plant, was named acting president and director until the August meeting.

[PAST PERFORMANCES ON NEXT PAGE.]

And so here it is Derby morning, when, after an interim of 40 years, Chicago is ready to put on its second World's Fair American Derby at Washington Park.

In all the miles of amazing display of scientific discoveries to be seen in this year's Fair, there is no building nor exhibit noting any improved method of picking the winner of a horse race. The odds are just the same as they were 40 years ago that you are wrong.

It is left up to you to determine which of the 10 fashionable 3 year olds named overnight will come pounding home this afternoon to win the $25,000 prize. You are no doubt just as much at sea as were those folks on that other World's Fair Derby morning in June of 1893.

Head Play Vs. Field.

With science unable to shed any light on this winner business the romance and uncertainty of racing still lives on. All of its attendant thrills will be present this afternoon during the mile and a quarter battle.

Twenty thousand or more are expected to jam Washington Park, and by post time, which will be shortly after 5 o'clock, most of them will have come to the conclusion that it is a battle between Head Play, the red flier from old Kentucky, and the field. Last night Head Play was the 7 to 5 favorite, many points below any of his rivals—this in the face of the badly mussed up 3 year old championship races in which the red cyclone himself has won only one of his three important engagements.

Two Fillies in Field.

Eight colts and two fillies make up the field for this second World's Fair Derby. Charley O, a Chicago colt which won the Florida Derby and finished third in the Kentucky Derby, is vying with Mr. Khayyam from the east, conqueror of Head Play in the Wood Memorial stakes, for second choice. Each was at 4 to 1, while the third choice was the easterner, Gold Basis, at 10 to 1.

Gold Basis, owned by Morton L. Schwartz of New York and trained by Maxie Hirsch, is rather an unknown. He has not started for some time, but has been carefully pointed by Hirsch to repeat his coup with Gusto in the American Derby last year.

Bamboula and Technique, two fillies practically sure to start, are considered of the highest class and with only 113 pounds up will have a big pull in weights over the colts. Bamboula a week ago won the Illinois Oaks and Technique on Thursday won a seven-eighths mile dash from the best 3 year old fillies at Washington Park.

Filly Wins First Derby.

The first American Derby was won by Ed Corrigan's great filly, Modesty, but that was 49 years ago. None of her sex has won the coveted prize since. There is a possibility one of these fillies will get the decision in today's race.

Fair Rochester, many pounds better on a soft course than on a hard one, has shown enough since his last winning effort at Washington Park to warrant his owner, Lon Jones of Kentucky, to try for bigger things. A big, handsome, brown colt is this Fair Rochester. He comes from the same sturdy family as Head Play, both claiming Fair Play, the sire of Man O' War, as their grandsire. Fair Rochester no doubt will give a good account of himself.

Kurtsinger to Ride Head Play.

Jockey Charley Kurtsinger from New York will ride Head Play. Kurtsinger handled the big red colt so well in the Preakness that Trainer Tom Hayes decided his new rider, Lee Humphries, was hardly strong enough to do Head Play justice.

Johnny Gilbert, Pete Walls, and Eddie Barnes are other riders from the east who will wear silks in the Derby. Tommy Taylor feels confident that Gilbert will steer Charley O. safely home. Walls will ride Mr. Khayyam. Barnes will pilot Swinhaven.

The reason the Washington Park officials are expecting record crowd is that this is the first major stake race run in or around Chicago at which the low admission price of one dollar has prevailed.

Related to 1893 Winner.

Boundless, after a delay of an hour and 40 minutes at the post, won the first World's Fair Derby in 1893. Boundless and Head Play are kinfolks.

Head Play is a descendant of the great imported horse Australian which founded the American family of Fair Play, Man O' War, Display, and all those great racers which have made turf history in this country, including Boundless. The daddy of Boundless was Harry O'Fallon, he by Australian. Head Play goes back to the same Australian through My Play, full brother to Man O' War. Fair Play, the sire of My Play, was sired by Hastings. The latter was by Spendthrift, a son of Australian.

So the folks at the second World's Fair Derby will not only wager with determination and by great volume on Boundless' forty-second cousin or his twenty-eighth nephew but they also will expect great things of him.

FOULIS, VON ELM TIE FOR ST. PAUL LEAD WITH 70'S

Archie Hambrick Second with Par 72.

The Cards

St. Paul, Minn., June 2.—[Special.]—Cards for Jim Foulis and George Von Elm, who tied for the lead in the first round of the St. Paul open golf tournament today, follow:

Par—Out	445	343	544—36

Foulis—Out	445	363	434—36
In	544	243	444—34—70

St. Paul, Minn., June 2.—[Special.]—George von Elm of St. Louis, self-styled business man-golfer, and Jimmy Foulis of Hinsdale, Ill., tied for the lead in the St. Paul Open golf tournament at Keller course today at the end of the first round of 18 holes. Finishing after Von Elm had posted his 70, for what seemed a certain first place, Foulis put together rounds of 36 and 34 to overtake him. Par is 72.

Aside from a lapse on the fourth hole, when he went two over par, Foulis was unbeatable. Needing two birdies for a par 36 on the first nine, Foulis stepped up and shaved a stroke off regulation counts on the 8th and 9th holes. Again on the 10th hole, he went one over but gained it right back with a birdie on the 12th, following with a birdie deuce on the 15th and adding another for good measure on the 18th.

Von Elm Ignores Wind.

Von Elm was very much on his game today. He refused to be awed by a 26 mile wind as he started. Driving well, approaching accurately, then holing out putts right down the line, Von Elm made the turn in 35 strokes. When the wind had subsided he continued, to come home in the same number of strokes.

Two strokes back came Archie Hambrick, the Zanesville, O., professional who won the driving contest yesterday. Hambrick stroked each round in par 36 figures.

Tied at 73, one stroke over par and three strokes back of Von Elm and Foulis, were Walter Hagen, Paul Runyan, Ralph Guldahl and two local players, Les Bolstad, amateur from Midland Hills, St. Paul, and Len Mattson, home club professional.

Cooper in 74 Group.

One stroke farther back was another group consisting of Harry Cooper, Olin Dutra, Johnny Revolta, Ernie Penfold, Minneapolis Golf club professional; Sam Parks Jr. of Uniontown, Pa., and Lee Herron, Interlachen club, Minneapolis, professional.

MOMO, the improver in condition, began improving after reaching final three-eighths, stood light pressure gamely, and was up in final strides. MARTIE FLYNN had good speed from start, took command gradually, and held on stubbornly, but was not good enough. RUSTY, on outside early and taken to inside in stretch, was blocked in final sixteenth.

MISS MELODY, away fast, but taken back slightly when in close quarters leaving back stretch, worked way through on inside in stretch and weakened after getting to front, but lasted. MISS MARR, probably best, had fine speed, was inclined to bear out and, holding on well after being headed in final eighth, was wearing down the winner. SOBIEHA, slightly improved and a strong factor from start, lost much ground and weakened slightly after nearing the lead.

BRIGHT BUBBLE took command easily, made a clever rating and, continuing gamely after bearing out entering stretch, held SWEEPRUSH safe. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 4:45. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

YUCATAN, given a badly judged ride and in close quarters for seven-eighths, suffered sharp interference from ANITA ORMONT at stretch turn, slowly worn down THROUGH OMOND and, weakening, got a close decision. THROUGH OMOND, taken front and steadied along for seven-eighths, slowly gave way to winner and came again second. AULANDER came up with a rush on inside after reaching stretch, was brought to outside with difficulty, and was bearing over late stages.

Winner trained by W. Sims. Went to post at 5:11. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

BEAVER, rated in front under stout restraint for three-quarters, failed to withstand GAILLARDIA after reaching final quarter, but after being headed held on well and, aided by strong riding, got up in final strides. GAILLARDIA, under strong restraint for seven-eighths, weakened after reaching front and bore out and, FINNIC, poorly rated, lost ground at stretch turn and was weakly ridden in stretch.

Derby Brings Race Notables to Homewood

American Derby visitors were out in force at Washington Park yesterday. It was the largest week day crowd of the season.

Tom Taggart Jr., of French Lick Springs, Ind., was among the early arrivals. Two of his horses finished second during the afternoon. They were Wind Song in the first race and Through Omond in the sixth. Through Omond lost by an inch or less. The crowd didn't like the decision and roared out a bronx cheer at the judges. Still they paid off on Yucatan, the even money favorite. The finish was so close only the judges could separate the two horses.

E. Phocion Howard, the New York publisher; John I. Day, dean of America's turf writers; Bob Saxton, another dean, from Cincinnati; Bill Smith, the oil magnate of Louisville; Sheriff Hubbard Petty of Louisville; and Col. Phil Chinn, the noted Davis Harum of Kentucky, were others on the lawn trying to find out who will win the Derby.

The best race on the program yesterday was the Windy City, a gallop at a mile and seventy yards. Bright Bubble, a daughter of Bubbling Over, won it with Sweeprush, the Illinois Derby winner, second, and Rocky News, from Audley farm stable, third.

While Jockey Jack Westrope snatched a lucky victory on Yucatan in the sixth race, he didn't look so good on Sweeprush and Pantaloon, both of which finished second. The sensational kid will have to learn how to throw the nose of his mounts across the finish line in a close battle before he will reach stardom.

Miss Melody and Miss Marr, both Chicago fillies, staged a sensational stretch duel in the Jackson Park claiming purse and Miss Melody, which races for Stuyvesant Peabody, got the verdict by a nose, Jockey Porter on Miss Melody outriding Westrope down the stretch. The followers of the Peabody horses celebrated, for they had just lost a nose verdict on Mr. Peabody's Martie Flynn a few minutes earlier.

Mr. Khayyam impressed the work watchers at Washington Park yesterday morning when he was opened up for three-eighths of a mile. He breezed the first quarter in :23 2-5 and the three-eighths in :35 2-5 under wraps.

GIANTS, 11; PHILLIES, 3.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 2.—(AP)—The New York Giants went on a batting spree in the fifth and sixth innings today and wound up with enough runs to beat the Phillies, 11 to 3. It was their second victory of the series and their sixth straight over the Phillies this season. The Giants made 19 hits, 12 in the two big innings. On an attempted rundown Jackie Warner chased Sam Leslie across the plate with one of the runs in the fifth. Score:

Sox Lose, 14-1, to Tigers as Pitchers Flop

Tiger rally in motion in the fourth. He moved to second on White's sacrifice and home on Owen's triple to right center. Gehringer singled over Appling's head and Owen scored. Sullivan let Stone's roller seep through his hands. The error relieved Kimsey of responsibility for what followed. He fanned Walker, which should have been the third out. Then he hit Greenberg, after which Rogell and Hayworth singled, scoring three men. Miller stepped in and concluded the unpleasantness.

Until they broke in with their only run in the sixth, the sufferings of the Sox were extensive. Only three of them hit safely in the first five innings. Swanson tripled with two out in the first inning and Simmons threw him down by fanning. Sullivan singled after Appling had struck out in the second and was doubled up on Dykes' grounder. Another double play was inserted into the fifth after Appling had singled. Further grief was caused by Walker's one handed catch of Hayes' wicked drive in the first and White's sprint that enabled him to capture Simmons' fly out near the flagpole in the fourth.

Will It Never Cease?

Another double play in the sixth cut the Sox short with one run despite two doubles and a single. Berry doubled against the left field screen. Miller fanned, but Hayes slashed a double to right, Berry scoring. Haas resorted to bunting to see if it would improve his luck, and beat out a slow tap to Owen. Then Swanson banged one squarely, but Gehringer leaped up to grab it and throw to first before Haas could scramble back. A moment later this run was retrieved on Walker's homer over the score board in left field.

Miller escaped from a jam involving three men on base with only one out in the seventh, but the Tigers made amends in the eighth. Rogell opened with a single and the next two fellows were set down. Then the fun started. White walked and Owen singled to center, Rogell scoring. Gehringer tripled over Haas' head, scoring two more, after which Stone was nipped on a fly to Swanson.

Jones to Pitch Against Tigers in Series Final

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—Sam Jones will be elected to pitch for the White Sox in the final game of the series with the Tigers tomorrow. He trimmed them here by 12 to 0 on April 18. The Tiger pitcher will be Fred Marberry, the former Senator, unless Tommy Bridges suddenly recovers from an attack of nose bleed. The latter was slated to work today, but the doctors advised against it.

Simmons as a rule is flawless in his defensive work but he today was fooled on a ball. He took a bruise on the right forearm and on the chin as a result. Al started back on a low drive by Hayworth in the fourth and then charged in with hopes of catching it. The drive proved to be a sinker. It dropped in front of him and did a three cushion from ground to arm to chin. No physical damage was done.

There is talk of the White Sox making a South American tour next fall. It all depends on how well they do in the current pennant race. The late Charles Comiskey always wanted to take his team to the southern hemisphere but never got around to it. J. Louis Comiskey, now the owner, has the same desire.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: In 1873, and several years thereafter, the Star and Crescent flour mill of Eckhart & Swan was located on the west branch of the river adjacent to the south approach to the Randolph street bridge.

On the north side of the approach, extending to about Lake street and west to Canal street, was the lumber yard of Charles A. Rietz & Bro. The lumber schooner Charles A. Rietz used to tie up at the dock about every two weeks with a full cargo of lumber which it brought down from the north. Herman Hetter.

Fifty-eight years ago the first and fastest fast mail was started between Chicago and New York. It was known as the White Mail because it was made up of seven railway postoffices, all painted white, each car bearing in gilt letters the name of a governor or ex-governor of states through which the train passed.

The White Mail ran through New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. In railway mail schedules it was termed the "New York and Chicago R. P. O." It was started by the New York Central in 1875, ran a year, suspended and then started again, and has operated ever since.

"The Girl I Left Behind Me" was the big hit that entertained Chicago playgoers during the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. On its opening night, May 29, that grim old Indian fighter, General Miles, sat in a box and nodded approval. THE TRIBUNE, in its review of June 4, carried a three column drawing of the distressed heroine crying "I love you" to the handsome young lieutenant.

Words.

It's funny, when you think of it,
The big words we invent;
They seem to make for ignorance,
I wonder if it's meant?

Like water, fire, air,
In joy and love and wife and bairns
And food and work and care.

And if we think of words at all,
We cannot help but see
The most important of them all
Are God and You and Me.

Greatest Game Poll.

While geographical location appears to exert some influence on the balloting for choice of teams in the greatest baseball game of all time at Comiskey field, July 6, it is somewhat remarkable how fair the fans are in their indicated preference. There may be honest difference of opinions as to which are the greatest players, but nowhere in the list of those leading at the present time are any "false favorites," as we say at the race tracks.

Big Argument On; Who Will Win July 6?

Expect Great Slugfest.

"Unquestionably the greatest sporting event of the year," the large man answered, "and most certainly the greatest thing that has ever happened in baseball. If it is possible, Frank, we'll see that game. It should develop the greatest slugging bee you ever watched. With those American league home run hitters filling practically every position in the lineup, I guess I'll have to go along with them."

"I think you are wrong, Fred," said the man addressed as Frank. "Warneke, Hubbell, and Lucas could show the American league stuff they have never seen."

"Warneke didn't show the Yankees last year," said Fred.

"Well, he didn't do so bad," Frank replied. "Those long range hitters of McCarthy's got only two extra base hits off him—a home run and a double. Both of those came in the last game."

What They Did to Warneke.

"Perhaps they got only two extra base hits," his friend pointed out, "but they beat him, 5 to 2, earning all five runs, in one game, and knocked him out of the box in the last one. If you'll look in the book I think you will find the Yankees got 15 hits and seven runs off him in eleven innings. And they will take care of Hubbell. Grove is as good a left-hander, if not better, and the Yankees have taken care of him on occasion."

Fred and Frank then began questioning the reporter. He withdrew—not gracefully, perhaps, but speedily—and went to Wrigley field. Finding a seat in the bleachers, he waited.

"Wait'll dese mugs meet the American league," started the argument in the second inning.

"Whaddaya mean, mugs?" some one piped up. "The National league will take those fellows to the cleaners. Wait'll they take a look at Warneke and Hubbell."

"Yeah, Ruth'll laugh when he sees Warneke," chirped the American league supporter.

Becomes Free Style Discussion.

"He didn't laugh in the world series," some one else volunteered. This was a free style discussion now, nobody barred.

"No, he was too busy pinning Warneke's ears back," replied the American leaguer.

"Well," ventured an elderly man, less blustery and less partisan, "they didn't give the American league a break when they picked the White Sox park. All those long distance hitters will find it tougher on the south side than they would here."

"But hitting isn't going to have a thing to do with it," interrupted a late comer. "It will be a pitching battle. Why with each pitcher working only three innings, one run will win the ball game. . . ."

"If the National league pitchers aren't scared to death," the American leaguer broke in.

". . . . they can bear down for three innings, and when you haven't seen their stuff before, you don't get used to it in three innings, even if you are Ruth or Simmons or Klein."

Looks for Great Fielding.

"You can bet you'll see some of the greatest outfielding you ever saw when those fielders start running at Comiskey Park," another bleacherite remarked. "They really can show what they got out there. Boy, they got to go get 'em there or look bad."

The reporter thought so, too, and made for a seat in the grandstand.

Amateur Boxing Bill Is Tabled by Legislature

The amateur boxing bill, indorsed by the Illinois Athletic commission and the Central A. A. U. several weeks ago, has hit a snag in the house of representatives where it is up for third reading. Some representatives oppose the measure because it would reduce state taxes at amateur shows from 10 to 5 per cent. As a result it has been tabled until the next session of the legislature in the fall.

Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois boxing commission, wrote to Gov. Horner yesterday on excessive taxation at professional shows, pointing out that most states collect only 5 per cent. The competition is unfair, Triner contended.

N. U. Outhits Cubs, but Is Beaten, 6 to 3

The Cubs defeated Northwestern university's baseball team, 6 to 3, at Wrigley field yesterday, but were forced to concede the hitting honors to the Wildcats. The collegians collected ten hits off Lyn Nelson, while Elmer Johnson and Lefty Harris held the Bruins to eight.

The crowd of 3,000, most of whom came expecting to see the big leaguers indulge in a bit of batting practice, remained to see the Wildcats wage a battle until the final putout.

After a shaky first inning in which the Cubs collected four of their eight hits, Johnson hurled airtight ball until relieved by Harris in the sixth. The Bruins nicked Lefty for four hits in the remaining innings.

Cubs Score Four in First.

The Cubs scored four of their runs in the first inning. Koenig walked to start the game. Bill Herman singled and Babe Herman walked, filling the bases. Auguston's two base wild throw on Stephenson's grounder scored Koenig and W. Herman. There was a momentary lull in the scoring as Demaree lined to Auguston, whose throw to Remus doubled Stevie off second. Hendrick's triple and Campbell's single accounted for another pair of runs. Jurges flied to short to end the inning.

Wildcats Score in Sixth.

Three of Northwestern's hits were for extra bases. Remus doubled in the first, but died on base when Potter and Auguston struck out. Weldin hit a two bagger in the third and Ganzauer got a similar blow in the fifth.

Northwestern bunched four singles in the sixth to score its first run.

The collegians counted two more runs in the eighth after two were out. Auguston singled and scored on Harris' single to center when Koenig fumbled Douthit's throw to third. Johnson then singled to score Harris.

Manager Charlie Grimm trotted out his regular lineup, with two exceptions. Mark Koenig replaced Woody English at third and Campbell substituted for Gabby Hartnett, who enjoyed a motorman's holiday by watching the game from a box back of home plate. Taylor Douthit relieved Riggs Stephenson in the fifth and Zach Taylor went to first in the sixth.

Cardinals Face Warneke Today; Lon Seeks No. 8

Lon Warneke has been asked to see if he can't do something about these rampant St. Louis Cardinals when they meet the Cubs at Wrigley field this afternoon. Lon has pitched against the Redbirds only once this year—he beat them, 3 to 0, in the season opener, April 12. Warneke will be after his No. 8 victory of the year, and if the Cards beat him they will be the only team except Cincinnati to set him back.

Lefty Jim Mooney, obtained from the Giants last winter in the Mancuso deal, will oppose the Cubs for the first time in a year.

PRINCE IS FOUND DEAD; OVERDOSE OF DOPE BLAMED

NICE, France, June 2.—(AP)—Prince Nicholas Karageorgevitch, cousin of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and a former officer in the Russian imperial army, was found dead today in a hotel here. Police said his death was caused by an overdose of a narcotic.

Prince Nicholas, who was 38, was exiled from the court of Jugo-Slavia as result of family quarrels.

The prince married Dorothy Snyder Cochran of Brooklyn, N. Y., on Nov. 15, 1927. They were divorced on June 30, 1930. After the marriage the French press disputed his claim to the title of prince, and his claim to cousinship with King Alexander was repudiated by Jugo-Slavia.

The prince's parents, Prince Arsene of Serbia and Princess Aurore Demidoff of Russia, were divorced in 1896. They had two children, Nicholas and Paul. The children's uncle, Peter, became king of Serbia and their father went to Serbia with Paul. Nicholas was left with his mother. When Prince Arsene's mother-in-law died, leaving a large Russian estate to Nicholas and nothing to Paul, Prince Arsene had his son Nicholas stricken from the family roll.

CHICAGO LEADS BUSINESS RISE, SAYS MACAULEY

Motor Leader Thinks Fair Big Spur.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—After two months of growth in motor car sales and production, Alvan Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, with a conservatism nurtured by three and a half years of depression, this afternoon told an interviewer that "there is every indication of an upturn in the general economic conditions of the country."

ALVAN MACAULEY.

The manufacturer added that A Century of Progress is enabling Chicago to lead in this upturn; that the Fair is and will continue to be a substantial stimulant to Chicago and as a market for all commodities, including automobiles.

Motor Output Rising.

May production of motor cars in the United States and Canada is estimated at 210,000 as compared with 192,516 for the same month of last year. The April output was 189,284 as compared with 155,136 for April of 1932. For June the industry expects a continued increase, although this is contrary to the seasonal trend in other years.

"What's the meaning of these statistics?" Mr. Macauley was asked. "What accounts for this apparent break in the depression?"

The manufacturer, seventeen years president of a large motor car company and four years president of the industry's chamber of commerce, pondered a moment.

"The country isn't any wealthier today than it was four months ago," he remarked as if thinking aloud. "I'm not enough of an economist to see where the public is much better off if everything rises in price, including labor.

"But there is no doubt but what there is a general revival in buying. And I believe the governing influence is that the public at last has been converted to a reasonable confidence in the future.

Business Change Policy.

"In industry there is a significant change in policy. Since 1929 we have been trying to reduce losses or swell meager earnings by cutting expenses. These were cut to the bone. Now industry is trying to reduce losses or increase earnings by going after more business.

"The trend in wage rates is upward. The trend in commodity prices is upward. It is reasonable to expect that retail automobile prices will follow this trend."

General Motors units are increasing wages 5 per cent. Observers here estimate this will mean a weekly pay roll increase of $125,000, effecting 100,000 workmen throughout the United States.

DRY GOODS MEN FAVOR FEDERAL INDUSTRIAL BILL

Support of President Roosevelt's industrial bill was urged in a resolution passed at the closing session of the National Retail Dry Goods association yesterday afternoon at the Palmer house. Thirty-eight thousand retail dry goods stores all over the United States, giving employment to approximately six million persons, were represented.

A resolution was also adopted which read in part that the administration's bill can best be served through adoption of a code for retail distribution by the retail crafts and not through the imposition of codes which control previous steps in our economic system. A committee will be appointed to prepare a statement of fundamental principles applicable to retail distribution.

There is danger in certain retail taxes because they are so easy to impose and there is the possibility that congress may enact others, Kenneth Collins of Gimbel Brothers, New York, pointed out.

Establishment of local agencies of control for retail distribution, parallel to proposed federal supervision of industry, was urged by Harry Schacter, president of the Kaufman Straus company, Louisville, Ky.

San Francisco Reserve Bank Cuts Rediscount Rate

The Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco has reduced its rediscount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent, it was announced yesterday. Reductions in the rate have already been made by the reserve banks in New York, Chicago, and Boston. The Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco also made its first issue of federal reserve bank notes under the emergency banking measure in the week ended on Wednesday, it was announced.

West 31st St. State Bank Has $135,000 Free Deposits

The West Thirty-first Street State bank had $135,000 in "free" deposits when it reopened Monday and not 60 per cent of that figure, as reported. Depositors agreed to a 40 per cent waiver of the total deposits of $248,000 which left $135,000 free from restrictions. New money of $55,000 was put into the bank. Officials report favorable business since reopening of the bank.

Stamp a Type Rare in Britain; Common Here

BY HOWARD WOOD.

When Sir Josiah Stamp, G. B. K., K. B. E., C. B. E., Hon. D. Sc. Oxford, etc., addressed the members of the Economic club Thursday night at the Union League club he was among kindred spirits.

Sir Josiah—not a true bred economist himself—was talking about economies to 500 members of the Economic club, almost none of whom were economists.

* *

But it was not the lack of university training in economics that provided the common ground between speaker and audience. It was rather the mutual feeling that exists between men who have come up through the ranks to win their high places by hard work in a world that up to now has held out these rewards for individual effort and initiative.

Sir Josiah is that rare anomaly among titled Englishmen—a "self-made" man. He started out as a minor clerk [he would pronounce it "clark"] and has risen to be chairman of one of Great Britain's greatest railroads and a director of the Bank of England.

* *

At Sir Josiah's right and left along the speakers' table sat other men who, like him, have climbed from humble beginnings to high positions. There was Melvin A. Traylor, born in the Kentucky hills, city clerk of a small Texas town at 23 and now president of one of the largest banks in the United States.

There was John McKinlay, Scotch immigrant boy, who went to work for Marshall Field & Co. in 1888 when he was 14 years of age and is now that company's president.

* *

Fred W. Sargent, country lawyer from Iowa, who has climbed to the presidency of the Chicago and North Western railway, sat next to S. T. Bledsoe, a country lawyer from Texas, who has just been made president of the Santa Fé.

Present also was Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President of the United States, who started out as a Nebraska lawyer, and some 500 other business men, bankers, lawyers, etc., most of whom could be traced back to "little red schoolhouse" beginnings.

* *

Some of the things that Sir Josiah said went over the heads of most of his audience, not because of the inability of the hearers to grasp the subject but because Sir Josiah has apparently fallen into the way of most specialists who unconsciously strive to give the impression of great erudition by stating the simplest fact in the most complicated manner.

For example this:

"A sine qua non of the future is that the central bank or the government should have some fairly approximate and frequent up to date knowledge of the total balance of indebtedness in its markets."

* *

The speaker rolled off that one in the same friendly and guileless manner that a garage mechanic might speak of a cam shaft or a radio man might mention a "condenser."

Sir Josiah frankly admitted that he believes economics to be beyond the ordinary individual.

"The trouble with most of us," he said, "is that we should be able to understand the most recondite problems of economics with our pipes in our mouths, in our slippers and dressing gowns, sitting in easy chairs with our feet on the mantel."

* *

The substance of Sir Josiah's talk was that the study of money is not an exact science, and that monetary developments come largely by accident and are subject to the vagaries of mob psychology, that the old system has broken down and that nobody knows what system will replace it or how it will work.

But in the course of his address he touched lightly on something more fundamental than a change in monetary systems when he spoke of the current world revolution in the relations between government and business.

* *

And his hearers wondered for a moment whether in another generation self-made men in high positions could gather and recall how they worked their way to the top or whether a newer and more paternalistic system would give men numbers for advancement like Saturday night customers in a small town barber shop.

EASING POLICY LOANS BAN UP TO COMPANIES

Insurance Chiefs O. K. Flexible Rules.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A new set of regulations governing the loan and cash surrender privileges of life policy holders, somewhat more liberal than those now in effect, was adopted yesterday by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners in session at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

GEORGE S. VAN SCHAICK.

In effect the new regulations give individual companies greater freedom in granting of policy loans and cash withdrawals, while allowing them to continue to take advantage of the emergency rules if they choose to do so.

Under the rules adopted the company may grant policy loans and cash withdrawals "to the extent required to relieve need or prevent hardship."

Companies Can Grant Loans.

The rules were adopted in the form of a resolution presented to the convention by a special committee headed by Commissioner George S. Van Schaick of New York.

Thus the chances of the policy holder to get a loan on his policy or draw down on his cash value will rest entirely with the company. The rules give the company such broad discretionary powers that they may either grant the requests of policyholders or continue under the protection of the moratorium cloak.

The committee straddled in its recommendations between the demands of some of the smaller companies who want the loan and surrender ban continued and the wishes of the larger concerns who have been represented as chafing under the emergency rules.

Conditions Should Govern.

In reporting its findings the committee declared that it recognized that identical conditions do not prevail in all sections of the country and that "the present uniform regulations should be retained in those jurisdictions where in the opinion of the commissioners the situation requires it."

The new rules are so flexible that should an emergency arise it would be possible for all companies to halt loans and cash withdrawals without changing the regulations.

Complete lifting of the ban will depend on the reaction of policy holders to the new regulations, it is believed. If the demand for loans and cash withdrawals keeps within normal bounds the way will be cleared for removal of all the emergency restrictions.

Although the commissioners' association is purely an advisory body the regulations adopted by it are usually adopted in the various states when not in conflict with existing laws.

Discuss Receiverships.

The costly consequences to policy holders of receiverships and liquidations in the insurance field occupied the attention at the morning session yesterday.

Nearly 300 persons, including the 40 state commissioners and officials of practically all the leading insurance companies, heard Commissioner Van Schaick decry the present evils attending the liquidation of companies doing an interstate business. Commissioner Van Schaick urged the enactment of federal legislation to bring companies under the bankruptcy laws. Such a step is the only way in which to provide a statutory basis for uniform practices in liquidation in various states, he said.

DOLLAR WEAKER AGAINST POUND AND THE FRANC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

The pound sterling rose 1¼ cents to $4.00¼, the French franc rose ¾ point to 4.66⅝ cents, the Belgian belga was up 5 points to 16.50 cents, and the Swiss franc gained 1 point to 22.88 cents. Dutch guilders were unchanged at 47.65 cents.

Trading in the exchanges was dull and price changes were generally small.

Beer Tax Puts U. S. Revenue Over Last Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Tax collections of the federal government increased by more than $43,000,000 from April to May, due largely to the beer tax and the pickup in business, the treasury department announced today.

Total revenue for May amounted to 157 million dollars, compared with 114 millions in April.

The May tax increase carried the total revenue receipts for the first 11 months of the fiscal year up to one billion 793 million dollars, 23 millions higher than the total for the same period a year ago. This is the first time since the depression started whittling down the government's income that receipts in the current year have exceeded those for the preceding year.

Beer Tax Big Help.

Increased revenues are due largely to so-called miscellaneous internal revenue taxes, the category which includes the beer tax and the nuisance taxes imposed a year ago. Miscellaneous internal revenue increased 24 million dollars over the April total as the beer tax hit its stride and as the gasoline and other excise taxes reflected recent increases in production.

Despite its heavier income the government ran a deficit of almost 99 million dollars during the month of May. Added to the deficits for the preceding 10 months of the fiscal year, this loss brought the total deficit thus far in the fiscal year to one billion 684 million dollars.

Spend Nearly Three Billion.

In addition to its deficit on the ordinary budget, the federal treasury has advanced one billion 195 million dollars to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, making the total in excess of all disbursals over all receipts about two billion 880 million dollars thus far in the fiscal year.

Reflecting the borrowing which the treasury has had to do to cover its deficit and to furnish money for the R. F. C., the outstanding public debt has increased to 21 billion 853 million dollars. The advance since the fiscal year began on July 1, 1932, has amounted to two billion 366 million dollars.

The public debt is now only four billion 744 million dollars lower than its war time peak. On Aug. 31, 1919, it reached 26 billion 597 million dollars.

CHICAGOANS ASK U.S. DELAY TRADE CONTROL PLANS

Holding that the provisions of the national industrial recovery act will seriously cripple industry and commerce, a delegation from the Chicago Association of Commerce is to leave for Washington shortly to ask President Roosevelt and other government leaders to postpone final action on the bill until the next regular session of congress. Announcement of this action was made by the association last evening.

The delegation will ask for the delay until there has been an opportunity for consideration of the changed trade agreements and relations between nations that are expected to come out of the London economic conference, and to allow inclusion in the bill of other modifications desired by middle western business groups.

SIGNS OF A 'CORNER' IN RYE ARE CREDITED TO BIG SPECULATOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 2.—The local grain trade is keeping a keen watch on the rye market, due to the fact that conditions approaching a "corner" are reported to have developed in consequence of the enormous operations of a well known speculator in the last few weeks.

This operator is widely known in commodity market circles, particularly by reason of his large scale operations in the past, and was much talked about in Wall street some months ago when he was reputedly caught heavily "short" of one of the most volatile of the automobile stocks.

Now this speculator is understood to have obtained a tremendous position in rye through his operations in the May option. According to reports in usually well posted grain trade circles, this individual took delivery on a total of more than 4,000,000 bushels in May.

Knowledge of this action having leaked out, users of the grain are understood to find themselves in something of a quandary in looking ahead to assure themselves of necessary supplies.

With the foregoing total tied up in one source out of an indicated carryover of 6,000,000 bushels or thereabouts expected at the end of the crop year, which terminates on July 31, next, the market naturally is viewed as being in an especially "tight" position.

Delay Report on Stewart Warner Vote

Richmond, Va., June 2.—(AP)—Stockholders of the Stewart-Warner company, a $15,000,000 automobile accessory corporation, balloted for a board of directors today, but the result of the poll will not be announced until Wednesday.

The recess was taken after the balloting to permit the election inspectors to check the proxies voted.

Two rival groups, representing the management and the opposition, submitted slates of nine names each, with both sides nominating R. J. Graham of Belleville, Ont.

Oscar U. Zerk of Chicago, an inventor, led the opposition. He contended the corporation has paid too large salaries to its executives at the expense of shareholders.

The management group, through Ralph M. Shaw, chairman of the stockholders' meeting, asserted the contest was precipitated two months ago because the "company would not buy more of Mr. Zerk's inventions." He said the company had made effective all feasible economies.

Nearly three-fourths of the company's outstanding stock, 1,250,000 shares, was represented at the meeting either in person or by proxy. The company has 20,000 stockholders.

Judge Scorns New Financing for Insull Firm

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley yesterday denounced as "nefarious" a proposal to reorganize the Southern United Gas company, an Insull subsidiary, involving the payment of 51 per cent of the common stock of the company as a bonus to the reorganizer. The plan was presented by the so-called Worcester committee, headed by Clarence I. Worcester of Philadelphia, at the hearing on reorganization of three Insull subsidiardies—United Public Service company, United Public Utilities company and the Southern United Gas company.

The Worcester plan contemplated making the Southern United Gas company a separate entity, and the underwriting of a $100,000 bond issue for its reorganization. The committee planned to make the new bonds a first mortgage lien on the property and to relegate the outstanding first mortgage bonds to a position of junior securities. The plan asked for the committee's service a bonus of 51 per cent of the common stock of the company.

Won't Consider Plan—Lindley.

After hearing the plan as presented by a representative of the law firm of Hyde, Westbrook, Watson & Tooman, attorneys for the Worcester committee, Judge Lindley said:

"Very frankly I confess, gentlemen, that this court will never comtemplate the offer at any time, in any plan of reorganization, of a plan which undertakes to give a big bonus in common stock to any reorganizer.

"The system is nefarious. If money cannot be procured in any reorganization on first mortgage bonds, then it should not be procured. That practice in the last ten years has been the chief contributing element, in my opinion, to the sale of securities that had no merit.

"The investment houses were tempted by the bonuses of common stocks that were offered them, they fell for the temptation, and they unloaded upon their customers securities that they never would have been put upon the market except for the bonuses they received."

Cites Bonus Instances.

After citing instances in which bonuses were paid in common stock for underwriting bond issues at the expense of the public, Judge Lindley said: "So long as I have anything to do with a court of chancery I shall not approve the continuation of what I consider a most nefarious practice."

"If we are going to finance this thing, gentlemen, we are going to do it with a sound basis or not at all," the judge said. "I am not going to let any underwriters get any bonus. The day for that sort of thing is past. The sooner it is forgotten in the records of the investment bankers of this country the better off their profession will be." Hearing in the reorganization matter was continued to June 14.

STOCKS RUSH UP TO NEW HEIGHTS; VOLUME SWELLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 2.—They "blew the lid off" the stock market again today. Trading hit the most furious pace of the entire "inflation boom" movement at times and virtually the whole list bolted to new price peaks for the year or longer.

Net gains of 1 to 10 points were numerous. A few fast movers provided pyrotechnic displays of even greater brilliance—Homestake Mining, for instance, with a perpendicular rise of 20 points to a new high.

Sales volume ran to 6,862,000 shares, making it one of the half dozen heaviest trading sessions of the last two years.

Profit taking on a moderate scale went on throughout the day, slowing up the advance appreciably at intervals. With few important exceptions, however, final figures were the best of the day.

Trade News Boosts Buying.

The new outburst of speculative buying was attributed—for want of a more direct explanation—to the encouraging nature of the week-end trade reviews and the usual grist of improved news from industrial productive centers.

The reviews indicated a growing belief in responsible quarters that the upturn is now based on something more than the usual seasonal considerations. Federal Reserve bank figures indicating that the government's credit expansion program is "taking hold" also lent impetus to the buying movement.

Still another factor was the comments of a leading British financier hinting at the possibility of a "gold currency" parley and a disposition on the part of the British government to return to the gold standard at an early date if conditions shape up right.

Public Buys; Pools Active.

The public, which obviously is coming into the market on a bigger and bigger scale, showed little partiality in its patronage of issues or groups. Bull pools were conspicuously active in various quarters of the list in behalf of favorites slated for a special showing.

There was also considerable evidence, particularly at intervals when the trading showed a disposition to slow down, of the old bull tactics of

Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation

Preferred and Common Stock

To the Stockholders of Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation:

The policy of the Management in refusing to furnish stockholders with sufficient information to permit them to judge either the real financial condition of your Company or the results of its operations, has given deep concern to an increasing number of stockholders. So serious has the matter now become that the undersigned, already representing the holders of over 25% of the common stock of the Company, have constituted themselves a Committee to lay the matter before all the stockholders.

As a result of the Management's policy of concealment the New York Stock Exchange has announced that the Company's stocks will be stricken from the Stock Exchange list on August 23, 1933, unless prior thereto the Company furnishes stockholders with adequate information in regard to the present condition of the Company and agrees with the Exchange as to the manner in which the financial reports of the Company will be published in the future.

The recent correspondence between the Management of your Company and the New York Stock Exchange has for the first time disclosed that the Company has purchased and holds large amounts of its own stocks, has been declaring dividends on this treasury stock and has been crediting an equivalent amount to unspecified reserves. The information disclosed in the annual reports to stockholders is so inadequate that the President of the New York Stock Exchange has advised the Management of your Company that "within wide limits" "the lack of information as to details of your income account makes it possible for the management of your Company to vary the reported income up or down, at pleasure." The Stock Exchange has accordingly concluded, its President states, that the income account of your Company, as furnished its stockholders, "amounts to nothing more than a statement of an arbitrary amount which the management and directors of your Company have elected to call 'income'."

Striking the stock from the list of the New York Stock Exchange would have serious consequences for practically every stockholder of the Company. However, there are graver aspects of the situation. Experience has long demonstrated the inherent risks of a policy of concealment and the danger to stockholders of permitting secrecy and mystery to replace a fair disclosure of facts.

Stockholders, of course, have no direct control over corporate reports. This is in the hands of the Management, over whom is the Board of Directors. It is only through their power to elect directors that stockholders can control the Management. The present Board of Directors of your Company does not require the Management to give the stockholders the information to which they are entitled. As now constituted, the Board does not adequately represent the stockholders.

The charter of your Company provides for twelve directors. In addition to the President of the Company, the Board contains two of his subordinate officers, a Vice-President of the Company and the Secretary of the Company. An Assistant Secretary of the Company was elected a director about a month ago but is reported to have immediately resigned, leaving a place vacant. Thus, at least a fourth of the Board consists of the Management. Such a situation may be proper under normal conditions where the Management accepts the principle of reporting adequately as to its stewardship. It is intolerable where the Management persists in secrecy. This type of Management, unless subject to the supervision of a Board of Directors properly representative of the interests of stockholders, is dangerous.

The Committee believes that the directors who are subordinate officers, and perhaps a fourth director, should be replaced. The Committee believes that three or four new and representative directors will be able to force a change in the attitude of the Management toward the stockholders. The Committee believes that this will result in immediate compliance by the Management with the request of the New York Stock Exchange to furnish information to stockholders and will prevent the Company's stocks from being struck from the list; and will assure compliance with any proper request which may be made in the future by the Stock Exchange to furnish information to stockholders.

The Committee does not propose the election of an entire new Board of Directors or even a majority of the Board, as the Committee believes that the election of three or four new directors will produce a Board representative of the stockholders. Nor does the Committee propose the removal of the President.

The Committee proposes that a special meeting of stockholders be called to remove not more than four directors and to elect their successors, the meeting to be held at the office of the Company, 61 Broadway, New York, N. Y., on Thursday, August 10, 1933, at 11 A. M., Daylight Saving Time.

The Committee asks the stockholders of the Company to obtain from the Secretary of the Committee and to sign and return to the Secretary of the Committee a form of call for the special meeting of stockholders. After the stockholders have called the meeting, the Committee will be ready to suggest the three or four representative new directors for your approval.

Stockholders of record are urged promptly to obtain the form of call from the Secretary of the Committee and to sign and return it to his office. While the meeting will not be held until August 10, 1933, it is essential that the calls for the meeting be returned promptly so as to provide ample time to mail the formal notices of the meeting, etc.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 2.—In the most active market since operations were resumed following the bank holiday bond prices gained from 1 to 8 points today.

The swelling demand for speculative bonds, which developed late yesterday, carried over into today's trading and increased as time went on, with the result that nearly all the favorites of this type attained new peak levels.

Spectacular Gains Made.

Second grade issues, principally railroads and utilities, kept close harmony with the sharp advance of stock prices, with trading at a pace seldom witnessed during the last year or more.

Among speculative utility and industrial liens spectacular gains here made by International Telephone, American and Foreign Power, Chile Copper, and Postal Telegraph, all of which issues appreciated from 3 to 8 points.

Expect Good Rail News.

As in stocks, the demand for railroad bonds was attributed to expectations that car loadings to be reported tomorrow will be at the year's peak. Another powerful influence on prices was belief that carrier earnings for May will compare favorably with the same month last year. The advance of utilities reflected steady improvement in power output.

While the rise was progressing at a fast gain among lower grade bonds, little attention was paid to high class domestic issues. Most of them drifted listlessly, some slightly under and others above yesterday's finals. The same kind of market prevailed for United States government bonds.

Mutual Benefit Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: Kindly let me have information through your Investors' Guide column concerning the financial condition of Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, N. J.—E. C. E.

Answer: Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company [Newark, N. J.] was established 88 years ago in New Jersey. Expenses of management are low. They were 10.45 per cent of total income in 1932, against 10.34 per cent in 1931 and 10.74 per cent in 1930.

In 1932 total income was $109,115,000 and disbursements aggregated $109,422,960. Income in 1931 totaled $115,532,000 and disbursements were $99,427,600. The drop in income was due to decrease in new insurance, decrease in renewal premiums as the result of lapsed policies, and reduced income and rents. Although total death claims and matured policies paid in 1932 were smaller than in 1931, there was a sharp increase in cash surrender of policies. This was responsible for higher disbursements.

At the close of 1932 liability on policies outstanding totaled $489,352,000 Special reserves, unpaid losses and claims, dividends payable and other liabilities brought total liabilities to $565,067,000. Instead of maintaining a surplus account, the difference in assets and liabilities is termed a "contingency reserve." This totaled $23,805,000 on Dec. 31, 1932.

Admitted assets totaled $588,872,000. They included $31,233,000 real estate; $214,253,000 mortgages; $150,689,000 bonds [amortized values]; $6,706,000 stocks [June 30, 1931, values]; $4,483,000 cash, and $157,048,000 policy loans.

Foreclosed real estate constituted 4.7 per cent of invested assets; farm mortgage loans, 24.4 per cent; city and suburban mortgages, 13.6 per cent; United States and governmental subdivision bonds, 2.8 per cent; railroad bonds, 17.3; utility and other bonds, 6.6; guaranteed and preferred stocks, 1.2 per cent; policy loans, 27.8 per cent, and cash, .8 per cent.

Insurance in force totaled two billion 335 million dollars, against two billion 465 million dollars the year before.

GRAIN TRADERS WATCH AND WAIT; PRICES NARROW

Wheat Sags, Recovers; Corn Is Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders have again assumed the policy of watchful waiting and speculative operations have generally been curtailed until there are new and sensational developments in the situation one way or the other.

Wheat prices yesterday held within a range of around 1 cent, breaking early on the continued favorable crop comments from the spring grain area of the American and Canadian northwest only to rally later on buying by houses with eastern connections and on the strength in stocks. Prices closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower. July was 73⅝ to 73¾ cents; September 75⅛ to 75⅝ cents and December 78¼ to 78⅜ cents.

Weather inflation has been a material factor in helping along the recent advance in wheat prices is doubted by some of the best posted grain men.

Crop News Considered.

Action of the wheat market in refusing to hold advances to around 75 cents for the July and the falling off in speculative interest on the part of the public are regarded as the main factors in causing the bearish sentiment which has predominated in trade gossip the last few days. Lacking concrete inflationary action directly applicable to grains, the trade has turned attention to the outlook for the new crop, and this has tended to increase pressure on the upturns.

Export demand for Canadian cash wheat was slow, with sales of 400,000 bushels in all positions finally reported. The Whitsuntide holidays abroad tended to restrict the demand. There were intimations, however, that some Chicago hard winter wheat might find its way abroad ultimately, presumably for mixing purposes. Winnipeg futures closed ¾ to 1 cent lower in Canadian funds, while Liverpool was ¼ to ⅜ cent higher.

Corn Market Easy.

Favorable weather for completing corn planting over the belt led to local selling of that grain and a lower level of prices, net losses for the day being ¾ to ¾ cent. July was 44⅞ to 45 cents, September 47⅜ to 47⅛ cents and December 50¼ to 50⅝ cents. The country sold 85,000 bushels of cash grain to arrive.

Leading longs in rye added to their holdings of futures yesterday and the market developed independent strength, closing ⅝ cent higher, with July at 61⅛ cents and September 62¼ cents. Oats were ¼ to ½ cent lower, with July 24½ to 24⅝ cents and September 25⅜ to 25½ cents. Barley was off ⅝ cent at the last, with July 34⅞ cents and September 36⅝ cents.

BUTTER FUTURES RALLY

Aggressive buying pushed butter and egg futures higher on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter closing unchanged to ⅜¢ higher, and eggs up ½@¾¢. Butter was steady at the opening, but selling depressed it within a short time and a din of following. Buying became heavier later and the market rallied quickly, the close being at the top. News was also favorable again, the four markets storing 179,000 lbs more than last year. Eggs were under pressure early but failed to decline. Buying assorted itself later with new support and covering at the close pronounced. Storage news failed to influence again. The four markets stored 30,000 cases more than last year. Sales: Butter, 59 cars; eggs, 80 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 4 cars; eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

HOGS MAKE BEST GAIN IN 16 DAYS; TOP SALES $5.05

The hog market swung back into its old stride yesterday when prices rebounded sharply from the low close of Thursday. The advance was the sharpest in sixteen days, with the general average 15 cents over Thursday's price, at $4.90. Top sales reached $5.05, the highest mark since Monday.

The trade was by far the liveliest in two weeks. Fresh receipts, plus the 7,000 carried over from the preceding session, were cleaned up in short order, mostly at the highest prices of the day. Buyers who have been bearing down on prices for several days became a little anxious when supplies suddenly let up to the extent that available offerings here yesterday were hardly up to requirements of the trade.

Receipts Decline Sharply.

Barring a week ago the run was the smallest for a Friday since April 14. Previously this week, however, receipts have been generous, with the total above last week, notwithstanding the fact that Tuesday was a holiday.

Cattle prices retained the sharp gains scored previously this week, but the market showed a disposition to idle at its new high point. The predominance of lower grades in the short receipts tended to lessen buyers' interest in the available offerings for sale, the bulk of the supply consisting of steers selling downwards from $6.50.

The trade is carrying a nominal quotation of $7.60 for prime yearlings, but the best in yesterday's run of stock consisted of 16 averaging 955 pounds that cashed at $7.25.

Cattle Above a Week Ago.

Cattle are closing mostly 25 cents higher than a week ago, prices advancing in face of the two Jewish holidays during the week and the sluggish condition of the beef trade in the east.

Lambs forged ahead to new high levels under brisk competition. Gains of 15 to 25 cents were scored in the early part of the day, when the bulk changed hands, but later in the session advances of as much as 50 cents were found in various classes. City butchers were aggressive in the new crop lambs at $8.25 to $8.50, while larger houses did most of their buying in last year's crop of shorn lambs, now called yearlings. These sold largely at $6.35 to $6.50, with several loads to packers as high as $6.75 to $6.90, new 1933 highs for this branch of the trade. Prices showed mostly 25 cents advance, compared with the close of last week, and were almost $2 over the low point of the winter.

Sheep receipts have been very light. The May total was smallest for that month since 1926.
